

Poetry
EDOLENS.
BY A. W. H.

Infolent! Infolent! yes, I am infolent;
So is the grass growing tenderly, slowly,
So is the violet fragrant and lovely;
Drinking in quietness, powerfully content—
So is the bell in the light boughs swinging;
Sally's song of gratitude singing;
Only on living and loving intent.

Infolent! Infolent! yes, I am infolent;
So it is like to gather my pleasure,
So to the tumultuous wave of a mountain,
Curtaining safely its eloquent secret—
Nerve and sensation in quiet repose;

Silence as blossoms the night dew is closing;
Only the heart is beating strongly and calm.

Infolent! Infolent! yes, I am infolent;
It is like to gather my pleasure,
Out of emotions unmoveable treasure,
Midnight and morning—by forest and sea—
With soul resounding with exultation,

Ecstasy in autumn's solemn emanation;

Hopeful and happy with Spring and the tree.

Infolent! Infolent! yes, I am infolent;
