SAINT JOHN, N. B., MONDAY EVENING, AUGUST 17, 1874. VOL III. The Globe says one of the speakers at the Orillia meeting yesterday sat down without "turning a hair of the Treaty."
We don't wonder at that. Like the editor of the Globe the Treaty is baldheaded.—

The recent Odgerite parade in Trafal gar square, London, as a declaration of war against Prince Leopold's annuity, was not a particularly successful enterprise. George had only 500 or 600 hearers when he began to expatiate. Some of the speakers acknowledged that the Prince had a very estimable character, nevertheless the vote of £15,000 to him was none the less a Parliamentary breach of trust.

The London correspondence of the N. If Y. World has this little budget of operatic gossip: Patti has taken a furnished villa at Dieppe, where she goes for three weeks' sea-bathing. Gound will not allow his opera of "Mirella" to be performed in England, because some one here cheated him out of his copyright of "Faust." Capoul's engagement in Prusia is for four months; he is to sing sixty nights and to receive 60,000 francs. Twelve artists are engaged to go to Russia—among them Patti, Nilsson, Capoul and Eoli.

For some time past a report has obtained general circulation and credence in New York City, that Whitelaw Reid of the Tribune, had proposed marriage to Miss Anna Dickinson, and had been definitely given to understand that he "was not the man." A few days since Whitelaw Reid wrote to Miss Dickinson, requesting her to allow him to deny, through the Tribune, the rumor that he had been "flatly jilted by the eminent lady." The reply he got was so cutting that it will not pass from the memory of man for years to come. "If memory of man for years to come. "If can stand the rumor," writes Miss
