IV. (Continued.) Well, these cottage wrens heard Rag-ged Robin and the rest making merry on this Christmas night, and made th remarks on what was going on. But they did not see every thing. The best room in the cottage was lighted up by means of wooden hoops, which were sus-perded fat from the ceiling, and around the sime of which were very the internet the 1ims of which were stuck Christ candles of all colors. There were holly and mistletoe on the walls, and on the O In and after MONDAY, Sept. 28th, and un-til further notice, the steamers New Bruns-wick, E. B. Winchester, master, and City of Poritand, S. H., Pike, master, will leave Reed's Point Wharf, every MONDAY and THURSDAY mornings at 8 o'clock, for Eastport, Portland and Boston, connecting both ways at Eastport with stmr. "Belle Brown," for St. Andrews Robins-town and Calais. Returning will leave Boston every Monday and Thursday morning, at 8 o'clock, and Port-land at 6 p. m., after, the arr.val of noon train from Boston. No claims for allowance after Goods leave the warbouse. and misterioe on the walls, and on the mantel piece, and over the door, and in the passages, and hanging everywhere Trum the celling, so that there were i lenty of opportunities. How many kisses were given it would be impossible to say, for nobody stood on ceremony, and least of all Bluebell, who was fond of being kissed. So the night passed marrile un kissed. So the night passed merrily un-til it was time for Sass fras to leave, and "good by" had not been said. Coltsfoot aw that Sassafras could not say the word before strangers. sept 29 "Let us walk together down the lane," he s id. "Come, Bluebell, take Myrtle's hand; come along, Robin; we four will hand; come along, Robin; we four will be enough." He whispered to Sassafras that he would tell the father and mother. They walked down the lane, and at the foot of it Sassafras bade good-by-to larged Robin first, who, when he understood that he was about to lose his friend, fair ly blubbered, and ran off to hide his grief. "Going away!" exclaimed Blueball. "Where to?"

"Where to?" It was a difficult matter to make the little maid understand why it was imper-ative that Sassafras should go away to foreign countries; she thought one coun-try was enough to live in, she said. But the word had to be spoken, despite her ignorance of mecessary things. ignorance of necessary things. "I will never forget you, Bluebell," said Sassafras, "and I want you to think
