

D 33075

he may be called upon to take; that his work, however obscure it may seem to himself or others, is, nevertheless, an essential part of the whole; and that perfection in completion of a great edifice, such as this, will be found only in the sense of duty and skill revealed in the ~~erection~~ ^{direction} and ~~performance~~ ^{execution} of its minutest details.] [I cannot better express to all concerned, what I know all present will wish me to say, that we trust this building may be worthy of the all-important part which the Bank of Canada may be expected, through the years, to play in relation to the financial, industrial, and social needs of the Dominion, and which ^{the place} the building itself will have in the permanent adornment of the Nation's Capital.