

board, quarterage and horse keep was apparently about $265.00. The circuit deficiency was $175.25, divided presumably between the two men in proportion to their allowances, which would take about $40.00 from his $265.00. The superintendent of the circuit, with a family of seven in-all, apparently received about $705.00.

In 1862 Andrew Gray succeeded Mr. Bigney as assistant preacher.

In those days, when it was necessary to expend money for repairing or replenishing the parsonage, the amount was apportioned among the several appointments on the circuit. For instance, in December 1862, it was decided to expend $64.50 on the parsonage, and the amount was apportioned to be raised as follows : Lunenburg $8.50, Peninsula $8.50, Mader's Cove $6.50, Bridgewater $2.50, New Germany $8.50, Ritcey's Cove $12.00, Rosebay $12.00, South $2.50 and Feltzen South $3.50. These figures may be assumed to give the quarterly meeting's estimate of the financial ability of Methodism in the several districts mentioned.

At the quarterly meetings held December 29th, 1862 and March 16th, 1863, Joseph G. Angwin, who had been appointed as second assistant preacher on this circuit, with headquarters at New Germany, was present.

At the March meeting it was resolved, on motion of Mr. Angwin, seconded by John Dauphinee, that a new circuit should be carved out of the Lunenburg circuit, to be called the New Germany circuit and to include New Germany, Springfield, Arenburgs, Foster Settlement, New Cornwall, Northfield, Bridgewater, Branch, Pleasant River Road and Ohio, to take a young man for four years and after that time an ordained minister. This recommendation was carried into effect during the year.

At the third and fourth quarterly meetings held March 16th and May 18th, 1863, two new names appear, John Deal and Leonard Herman.

REV. JAMES BUCKLEY.

At the quarterly meeting held September 14th, 1863, Rev. James Buckley presided as superintendent, and Andrew Gray was present as assistant preacher, having been appointed for a second year at the request of the quarterly official board.

In 1864 Robert O'B. Johnson was assistant minister on this circuit. The names of Francis Morash, Henry Moser, Frederick Lohnes and Nicholas Corkum appear as members of the quarterly official board. In May 1865, the list of circuit officials contains the name of Frank Young, Western Shore, in addition to names that have already appeared.

REV. JOHN J. TEASDALE.

In 1865 Rev. J. J. Teasdale was superintendent of the circuit, remaining two years. During his first year John Morash and Lewis Morash were elected trustees to fill two vacancies on the board.
