Had to Give up and go to Bed.

Several Doctors Attended But Did No Good.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills CURED.

Read what Miss L. L. Hanson, Waterside, N.B., says: "I feel it my duty to express the benefit I have received from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. A year ago last spring I began to have heart failure. At first I would have to stop working and lie down for a while. Then I got so bad I had to give up altogether and go to bed. I had several doctors attend me but they did me no good. I could get no relief until urged by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Before I had used three quarters of a box I began to feel the benefit and by the time I had taken three boxes I was completely cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure nervousness, sleeplessness, palpitation of the heart, skip beats, and all troubles arising from the heart or nerves. Price 50 cts. box, or 3 for $1.25, all dealers, or Rybridiser at Work in England All the Year Bound.

The business of seed-testing is never really at an end, for experiments are constantly being made with (so to speak) the fathers and mothers of both farm and flower seeds. The hybridiser is at work in the hothouse all the year round, crossing new varieties and trying experiments of every kind. Then, when he has succeeded in raising a glorious new variety, specimens of it are sent out and seeds raised from the finest plants. One of the richest-colored prunulas yet raised was obtained by a very handsome white flower. Yet, strange to say, subsequent attempts with similar parents all proved failures. Another curiosity was the crossing of gloxinia with gesnera. Fertile seed was obtained, but all the seedlings proved sterile, and utterly declined to be propagated. In 1891, the seed of "Her Majesty"—a white gloxinia—was declared successful, but experiments had been commenced as far back as 1877. In that year the flower selected for the seed experiments was excellent in form and substance, but it had a pink band at the throat which the seed experiments was excellent in form and substance, but it had a pink band at the throat which the seed experiments was excellent in form and substance, but it had a pink band at the throat which the seed experiments was excellent in form and substance, but it had a pink band at the throat which the seed experiments was excellent in form and substance, but it had a pink band at the throat which the seed experiments was excellent in form and substance, but it had a pink band at the throat which the seed experiments was excellent in form and substance, but it had a pink band at the throat which the seed experiments of other hand, there are seeds in the same room with a diameter of more than one inch.—Windsor Magazine.

Another King in Great Britain.

Another sovereign besides King Edward rules within the British Isles, says Tit-Bits. His kingdom is Bardsey Island, situated three miles south of the Carnarvonshire Peninsula in Wales, where he rules with autocratic sway. The inhabitants number seventy-seven, including the King and Queen, the former being the direct descendant of a long line of monarchs who have reigned in the island from time immemorial. The language spoken is an archaic form of Welsh, and is totally untelligible to the people on the mainland. The King, in the intervals between regal duties, acts as doctor, schoolmaster and registrar of births, marriages and deaths, and does not Another King in Great Britain.

They know nothing of the outside They know nothing of the outside world, as newspapers never penetrate to their isolated kingdom. The area of the island is about 370 acres, and on the south-east side there is a small harbor, which will admit vessels of about 45 tons. In the quaint cottages many exquisite 'examples of old Welsh carving are found, and the beautiful ruins of St. Mary are of particular interest to Mary are of particular interest to the antiquarian.

Do Birds Whistle or Sing?

It has often been cause for astonishment that an animal so remote as a bird in the line of development from man should be the only creature in the least degree capable of imitating the human voice. A talking horse has from time to time been advertised; but for practical purposes man's only mimic is the bird. An American naturalist has recently man's only mimic is the bird. An American naturalist has recently written to prove that birds are not singers, but whistlers; that is to say that the notes are produced through a tube—to be technical, through the slit known as the glottle—not by the help of vocal chords. But the whole distinction is beside the point. Anyone who has seen a bird singing will have seen both the vibration of his throat and the variations in the extent to which he opens and closes his beak or mandibles; and given these accompaniments, together with the production of an articulate language, whistling and singing become identical, in spite of technical terms suggesting a distinction. People are accustomed to the idea that only a few species of birds, such as the partot and the jackdaw, can be taught, but in the wild life almost all birds are mimics to some extent, and probably more of them than people realize could be taught to imitate human sounds. The starling has astonishing skill in taking off other birds; and even the racuous jay can produce a song, or a whistle if the word is preferred, which would do justice to a thrush—London Globe.
