STORY OF THE HUNT, 1901

By the Reporter Hunt Club
At Lah-ne-o-tah Lake

In the Valley of the Maganetawan . . .

As told by the Scribe of the ATHENS REPORTER.

As intimated in last chapter part of the club decided to go on to the hunting grounds a week ahead of the rest, fix up camp and do a little fishing and partridge hunting. Len, Marsh, Geo. M. and Billy were the men who elected to go on ahead, but at the last moment Marsh found it impossible to get away. He had a large quantity of mica ready for shipment and he found a customer and had to help sort and deliver it that week. Consequently the others had to go on without him. The trip from Brockville to Burk's Falls was made without incident and in the early morning they boarded the steamer, Wenonah, for a 28 mile trip down the Maganetawan river to the little village of "The Mag," as it is usually called in short, by the settlers in that section. The steamer made good time and reached the wharf at about 10.20 a.m., where they found their old friend, Schmeller, had been taken down to the shore of the lake and early next morning after their arrival a start was made for the camp on Lah-ne-o-tah Lake. It was about two miles from the settler's house to the shore of Lake of Many Islands, over a road that had been built expressly for the Reporter Hunt Club, by the settler. It was laid out across the fields, through swamps, up over hills and wound around the brow of several steep hills entailing a lot of hard work for men and team in its construction. The road ended at the side of a little creek, which emptied into the lake some forty rods distant. Here the boxes and bags were unloaded, put into the boats, and a start made down the lake. The team was taken down to the shore of the lake by a bridge path, and put on the raft, that had been made some three years before, for the purpose of transporting the team and a rude jumper across the lake. This raft was made of able on this occasion. They unwound about three hundred feet and carried it to a point where a couple of men hauled the line in hand over hand. The end of the raft was run near the shore and held until the rope was moved on to a little island, and so on from island to island until the landing at the foot of the lake was reached. Here the new jumper was hitched to and a number of the boxes and bags were piled on the bottom and a large skiff lashed securely to the top.

It was about two miles through as fine a stretch of virgin timber as can be found in Ontario. When the lumbermen were clearing out the pine from that country years ago, they cut roads through the woods in all directions. The main roads were used in the fall and spring to convey the supplies to the camps built in the centre of the pine region and were made passable for wagons. In many places corduroy with a good strong team and lumber wagon, ready to take them on to their destination. A drive of 9 miles over a fairly good road, known as the Nipissing-colonization road, (built many years ago by the government as a main road up through the lumber regions). During the past two years the government had expended quite a sum in repairs to this road and the first four or five miles was as good as the ordinary roads in Leeds county. On reaching the settler's home, the party found an excellent dinner awaiting them, even to the pumpkin pie, so highly prized by Len, who had a great hankering for good victuals. Word had been sent on ahead for the settler to procure a couple of good strong men to assist in portaging the supplies into camp. The four boats belonging to the party a dozen cedar logs about thirty feet long, securely lashed together. A few boards were put in the centre of the where the horses stood to prevent them from moving around and swamping the craft. A couple of long sweeps or oars were provided to propel the craft to its destination, and the men in the boats were expected to assist by hawling a tow line hitched to the stern of each boat. On reaching the shore of the lake it was found that a stiff head wind could not make any headway with the sweeps and the tow line in the boats. Before leaving home, Geo. M. had suggested that a few hundred feet of cotton rope be procured as it would not doubt come in handy a good many times during the trip. This proved invaluable bringing several rods in length, were put down across creeks and low marsh ground. It was nearly ten years since the route taken by the men with the team had been used by the lumbermen, and the bridge and causeways were in many places, in a very dilapidated condition, requiring great care on the part of the teamster to prevent accident. Several large trees and an innumerable quantity of small trees and brush had to be cut and cleared out of the road. All these delays took time and hard work to overcome and it was well along in the afternoon before the first load was dumped at the foot of the rapids. It took two trips to transport all the stuff across the portage, and it was nearly dark when the boats were loaded and a start made down the creek or river about two miles to the old camp

Bronchitis

"I have kept Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my house for a great many years. It is the best medicine in the world for coughs and colds."
J. C. Williams, Attica, N. Y.

All serious lung troubles begin with a tickling in the throat. You can stop this at first in a single night with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Use it also for bronchitis, consumption, hard colds, and for coughs of all kinds.

Three sizes: No. 1, enough for an ordinary cold; No. 2, just right for bronchitis, hoarseness, hard colds, etc.; No. 3, most economical for chronic cases and to keep on hand.
J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

on Lah-ne-o-tah lake. The two young men who had help in the work of getting the supplies to camp were strong and willing and they rushed the work and just at nightfall they had the satisfaction of landing at the camp and finding it in a good condition. The camp stove was soon unpacked and a roaring fire going. While Billy got on a good warm supper the boys fell to and placed all the boxes and bags under cover, got out the bedding and fixed up the bunks in a temporary manner for the first night. It was so late that the men hired as helpers could not get back to the settler's and they all stayed in camp that night. The team being left in the woods where the boats were loaded.

FACTS FOR CATARRHAL SUFFERERS.

The mucous membrane lines all passages and cavities communicating with the exterior. Catarrh is an excessive secretion, accompanied with chronic inflammation, from the mucous membrane. Hood's Sarsaparilla acts on the mucous membrane through the blood, reduces inflammation, establishes health action, and radically cures all cases of catarrh.

FRONT OF YONGE

(Held over from Last Week.)

On finishing up a successful season's make in the Caintown Union Cheese Factory, the patrons gave a grand oyster supper on Tuesday last which was a great success. There were some excellent speeches given by:—Messrs. G. P. Graham, M.P.P., D. Derbyshire, M. J. Connolly, O. Gibson, cheese-maker, Ira Tenant, Mr. Webster and many other local speakers. Mr. Poole, President, occupied the chair which was well filled.

Mr. Thomas Dickson and wife of Caintown were in attendance at the Brockville market last Saturday. They report a fine display of goods for sale.

We lost a good citizen and neighbor in the death of Mr. Edward Quinsey, of Caintown, last week. The remains were placed in the vault at Yonge Mills. The last rites for the dead were performed by the Rev. Mr. Vasar of the Methodist church.

DAYTOWN

A gang of men are getting out square timber on this street.

Wm. Hoffman has been on the sick list again.

Mable Hoffman is on a fair way to good health again.

Rufie Stevens and George Stevens have taken their departure for Michigan. Some think it was rather a sudden move on their part.

A party of young people of Athens drove out to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wood's and spent an enjoyable evening last Thursday night. Dancing was indulged in until the small hours when they took their departure all voting it a good time.

Dyspepsia

From foreign words meaning bad cook, has come rather to signify bad stomach; for the most common cause of the disease is a predisposing want of vigor and tone in that organ.

No disease makes life more miserable. Its sufferers certainly do not live to eat; they sometimes wonder if they should eat to live.

W. A. Nugent, Belleville, Ont., was greatly troubled with it for years; and Peter H. Gaare, Eau Claire, Wis., who was so afflicted with it that he was nervous, sleepless, and actually sick most of the time, obtained no relief from medicines professionally prescribed.

They were completely cured, as others have been, by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

according to their own statement voluntarily made. This great medicine strengthens the stomach and the whole digestive system. Be sure to get Hood's
