DR OTTO SCHMIDT. The message was delivered to Miss Godfrey, and about 9 o'clock the lady's father came into the office. The clerk having stepped out for a moment, I got up to wait on him.

Mr Godfrey wanted to know if we had a copy of the telegram that came for his daughter that evening. I told him that I was acquainted with the contents. He then wanted to know if I would tell him what was in it. He said that he was not at home when the message came; that his daughter had gone out and had left the message for him, but that the servants had mislaid it.

As Mr Godfrey is a well-known citizen delay. Ilcomplied with his request. The contents of the telegram had an entirely different effect upon him from what I expected Instead of being surprised or shocked, it seemed to make him very angry. He recovered himself quickly, however, and with a curt "Much obliged" he walked out. I wonder who Will is ?
