ANDREW-HARRIS NUPTIALS.

Marriage of an Esteemed "Old-Timer."

(Saturday's Daily.)

The fine old homestead of the Groat family has been the scene of many enjoyable festivities in the past, as a centre of hospitality in Edmonton, but it could not easily have surpassed the animated and pleasing scenes of yesterday afternoon on the occasion of the nuptials of Mr. Robt. Mackay Andrew, formerly of Wick, Scotland, one of the most popular and esteemed of Edmonton's citizens, and Miss Harriet May Harris, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Harris of Chipman, formerly of Kent, England. The marriage was celebrated at the Groat homestead at the desire of Mr. Groat, because of the warm personal friendships existing between his family and the groom—his father-in-law, since the latter's arrival in Canada. The wedding was consequently the occasion of a very pleasing reunion of many of Edmonton's old-time residents.

As carriage after carriage drove up to the handsome parlor of Mr. Groat's new residence, built on a picturesque bend of the Saskatchewan, the guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Groat, assisted by their daughter, Miss Margaret Groat. Of the members of the family assembled to witness Mr. Andrew's marriage only Mr. Forbes and Mr. John Groat were unavoidably absent in the north.

Shortly after five o'clock the bridal march being played by Mr. Harper, the bride party entered the drawing room, where the guests awaited. The groom was attended by Mr. George Groat, and the bride escorted by her father. Little Miss Marjorie Poucher made a winsome flower girl. Rev. Dr. McQueen was the officiating clergyman, having risen from a sick bed to perform the marriage ceremony for this "old timer" and friend.

The bridal couple stood during the brief ceremony under an archway decorated with ferns and bridal roses. The bride's fresh brunette beauty was heightened by an attractive gown of ciel blue bengaline silk with chiffon ruchings on skirt and sleeves, trimmed with flounces of white chiffon. Over the soft marjorie folds of the bodice was a beautiful bodice garniture of seed-pearls. A saff of ice blue liberty satin completed a very attractive costume. The bridal bouquet was of white roses and maidenhair fern. The little flower girl was daintily frocked in white India silk with Val lace trimmings. Mrs. Harris, the mother of the bride, was gowned in black silk with black chiffon trimmings; Mrs. Matthew Groat wore black silk voile over taffeta with black lace applique and ornaments. Miss Margaret Groat wore a pretty cream voile with Dutch yoke, lace bordered, and soft silk girle.

After the marriage ceremony a delightful supper catered for by Dodge was served in the supper room, which had been decorated with the British and Scotch colors. The supper tables were effectively decorated with tall vases of crimson and white roses, with Scotch heather and ferns. Elsewhere the long dining room had been temporarily converted into a ball room, the polished floor being cleared of rugs and waxed and the trellis prettily decorated with palms.

The morning room and drawing room which are an suite with the dining room served as sitting-out rooms. Harper's orchestra, stationed in the hallway, played old Scotch airs throughout the supper and later contributed the music for the dances. As it was to be an old-time wedding the dances consisted in large part of the enjoyable old dances—the quadrilles, the Highland schottische and a few fine old step dances that transport dancers and onlookers alike to a virile period, when individual grace and spontaneous merriment, rather than languishing artificiality, prevailed to the period when men had not to be conked to dances. As a consequence many of the older generation appeared among the dancers, and the "old-time wedding" was doubly enjoyable because of this.

The groom, shortly after supper and before the bridal couple left for Edmonton en route for a short honeymoon trip, complied with the request of his many old Scottish friends, dressed in the hills and tatters of Mackay plaid and to the thrilling skirl of the pipes, he danced the Highland fling as it is said only Robert Andrew can dance it here. The delighted applause of over a hundred guests looking on evoked a return of Mr. Andrew with three of the wedding guests who danced the old dance with Highland Scotch fire and grace.

The proximity of St. Andrew's day and the groom's attachment to Scotland (being a native of Wick, Scotland) caused the wedding decorations, music and dances to partake largely of a Scotch flavor. All the members of the house party were at Mr. Groat's desire sprays of heather with rosettes of Mackenzie tartan ribbon, Mr. Groat being of the Mackenzie clan.

Dancing continued until midnight when a late supper was served before the guests dispersed. Of the dresses worn by the guests at the marriage ceremony a few were: Mrs. McQueen, soft grey voile with white chiffon vest; Mrs. John A. McDougall, dark blue silk voile, with crease lace yoke and applique trimmings rich with cut steel decorations; Mrs. D. R. Fraser, black silk voile with applique trimmings and white chiffon vest; Harry R. Smith, grey crepe de chine with white chiffon and Dresden trimmings; Mrs. John C. McDougall, pearl grey silk eolienne en princesse with lace yoke; Miss Alice McDougall, a strikingly pretty gown of coral pink silk with lace insertions and Liberty silk sash; Miss Dickson (Strathcona), attractive princess gown of soft red silk with white lace yoke; Mrs. Poucher, black Duchesse silk with white and gold applique and white lace yoke; Mrs. D. Brown, blue poplin with white lace trimmings; Mrs. Johnstone Walker, brown silk with plaid silk bodice and trimmings; Mrs. McDiarmid, black poplin with cream lace garniture; Mrs. McCrimmon, black broche silk, with chiffon and jet trimmings; Miss Johnstone, black silk with cream lace bodice, relieved with touches of rose pink chiffon; Miss McLeod, peacock blue eolienne over taffeta; Mrs. W. West, pale grey poplin; Mrs. George Hutton, soft green voile over taffeta, with chiffon trimmings; Mrs. R. Noble Todd, champagne colored silk, with chiffon ruchings and white lace yoke; Mrs. John Macdonald, black voile with ribbon trimmings and silk broche bodice; Mrs. Houston, black voile relieved with white; Mrs. Jackson, black silk with cream bodice; Mrs. Neil, black henriette, with chiffon garniture; Mrs. Harold black silk; Miss Pinkston, crimson henriette; Miss A. Pinkston, white organdie; Miss Durrand, white point d'esprit, over taffeta, with Val lace bodice.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome fur jacket, the bride's gift to him being a set of cuff links made of small nuggets of Saskatchewan gold. A number of handsome wedding gifts were displayed in the morning room, including a silver bomboniere, Mrs. D. R. Fraser; cut glass fruit dish, Mrs. and Mrs. John A. McDougall; and Miss McDougall; Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Smith, china tea set; Mr. Lorne Yorke, gold clock and candelabra; Mr. and Mrs. John Harold, silver cake basket; Mr. and Mrs. A. Davidson, china biscuit jar; Mrs. George Hutton, a case of handsome silver fruit knives and forks, with mother of pearl handles; Mrs. and Miss Johnstone Walker, parlor clock; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McDougall, picture; Mr. Edgar Barry, cut glass and silver salts and mustard pot; Mr. and Mrs. D. Brown, dozen silver dinner spoons; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Poucher, handsome china chocolate set; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. West, carving set with stag horn handles; Mr. W. H. Jaeger, carving set, stag horn handles; Mr. and Mrs. James Ross, half dozen dinner knives; Mr. J. E. Stonex, cut glass carving sets, silver mounted; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. ## A LADDER OF LIGHT.

Have you heard of St. Augustine's famous ladder on which he rose to the height and strength of his own individuality?

First Run—1 Am.
Second Run—1 Know.
Third Run—1 Ought.
Fourth Run—1 Will.

This is a great ladder. It reaches all the way from the flowers to the stars, and all the way from dust to deity. May we bring upon it. Put your foot on the first rung for me, Tennyson's words your motto: "Man is Man and Master of His Destiny."

A CANADIAN IN LONDON.

To see Edmonton is to admire it— if one may parody the old saying: "The London correspondent writes in her letter of last week: 'I went this afternoon to see Mrs. Everard Cotes (Sara Jeanette Duncan), who is established in a cosy little flat not very far from here. Mr. Cotes has returned from Simla and they have taken up their residence for some time in London. I found Mrs. Cotes most enthusiastic about Edmonton, and the west, which she had visited this summer. Have you read her book, 'Set in Authority?' I think it is one of the most brilliant of an exciting novel. I have read it for some time. The plot is well worked out, and the types which she has sketched are delightful. I am perfectly certain that I know several of her London matrons.'

The writer, who is a prominent member of the Canadian club in London, has been for some time doing such good work, as Lily Bernard, a Toronto woman writer, also does. They interest English women in Canada and give them a correct view of the Dominion and life here. The above is the London review of the Canadian Women's Press club, a portion of which visited Edmonton last summer. In this connection she writes:

"The annual meeting of the Society of Women Journalists took place early this week, and Mrs. Elizabeth Smith (Annie Swan) was elected president for the coming year. She is vastly interested in the subject of women migrating to the Canadian west, and I feel very happy at our having a real Imperialist as president. The subject of affiliation with the Canadian Women's Press club was brought up at the meeting, for there was nothing on the statutes of the society which provided for affiliation with other bodies. Both Australia and Canada were represented by their humble servant having been trusted with the honor of bringing Canada's wish for affiliation before the members. It is now referred to the council by the members, and we will have to draft a new rule to meet the requirements of the case. We are all hoping that Mrs. Hayes (Mary Markwell) of Winnipeg, will be the representative for the annual dinner of the society in December."

SOCIAL.

(Thursday's Daily.)
Mrs. Bulyea is receiving at Government House this afternoon, and with His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, entertained at a small dinner to-morrow night.

Mrs. Joseph Whitelaw will receive at her new home on Sixth street, Friday afternoon, Nov. 30th, and in future on the first Friday of the month.

The opening of the Federal Parliament at Ottawa this year was as usual, a brilliant affair, socially. As usual the number of adies present (on the side points increases perceptibly) and this year the date of the opening caused a great many debutantes to defer their coming-out in their home towns until they had been presented at the vice-regal Drawing Room. Reports from Ottawa say that the Capital will be very gay this season, and its population will be more widely representative than usual of the different provinces.

At the opening ceremonies this year the gowns worn by the ladies were more than ordinarily handsome. The rich crimson hanging of the Senate made an effective background for these gowns and the display of official uniforms in His Excellency's military suite.

At 3 o'clock the vice-regal party arrived in the Senate. Her Excellency the Countess Grey, who was escorted to her seat at the left of the throne, was seated in an exquisite creation of white and white nouvi de soie, in empire effect, embroidered with gold spangles, the corsage heavily incrustated with pearls over a foundation of white chiffon and tulle; diamond tiara and necklace of diamonds surmounted by a string of pearls.

Her Excellency was accompanied by her daughters, Lady Sybil and Lady Evelyn, by her daughter-in-law, Lady Howick and her sister, Mrs. Benson of England.

Mrs. Benson wore deep ruby velvet elaborately trimmed with old rose points, the corsage outlined with sable; diamond ornaments.

Some of the gowns worn were:— Mrs. Frank Oliver, Parisian gown of black and white striped chiffon cloth over chiffron and taffeta, with deep hertha of Irish points and touches of pale blue and cerise velvet on the corsage, the skirt trimmed with chiffon ruffles, deep girle of black velvet; ornaments, opals and diamonds.

Miss Davies, dark crimson satin with garniture of black lace; diamond ornaments.

Mrs. R. L. Borden, princess gown of pale blue chiffon taffeta with hertha of Limerick lace; diamond ornaments.

Mrs. Clifford Sifton, gown of sapphire blue sequins over blue chiffon, trimmed with chiffon ruffles; diamond necklace.

Mrs. Roberts Allan, French gown of Carlesian lace over spangled chiffon, the bodice finished with tulle d'Alencon; ornaments, diamonds.

DONALDA'S HOME RECEPTION.

At her first appearance in Montreal as a prima donna, Mlle. Donald (Pauline Lightstone, of Montreal) verified all the eulogies of her voice received from time to time from European critics.

During the concert the young singer was presented with a gold commemorative medal from the city of Montreal, the mayor reading an address of welcome. A vice-regal party went from Ottawa to Montreal to be present at the metropolitan reception to its prima donna.

Of that evening a contemporary has written:—"Three years is an amazingly short period in which to work a mira-cle, and yet Donald's success in that time has been little short of marvellous. At the time of her last appearance here before leaving for Europe, she was an obscure young girl, scarcely known outside the musical circles of her own home city; last night she returned with European laurels already won and the certainty of greater triumphs yet in store. The whole history of music hardly furnishes half a dozen similar stories."

Young as Donald is—a scant twenty-four—her voice is wonderfully mature. In timbre, it is of the Sembrich and Melba quality, wonderfully sweet, of great purity, and flexible as a silver spring. Its freshness compensates for the lack of that long training which made the coloratura passages of both Sembrich and Melba most superhuman at times in their fullness of intention, but at twenty-three, there is so much of artistic development in sight that to attempt to put limits to what Donald may yet accomplish would be supremely ridiculous. Youth, ambition and opportunity blazon a magnificent vista for one whose genius has, at the outset of its career, attracted the attention of the musical world."

SOCIAL.

(Friday's Daily.)
Miss Boyd, of Carberry, who has been the guest of Mrs. Charles May for some time, leaves today for home in Winnipeg, the guest of Mrs. W. H. Ozard, en route to Ottawa.

The young ladies of Alberta College will hold their second annual reception on next Monday afternoon from four to six in Mrs. Riddell's apartments.

The south end of Third street was the centre of attraction socially yesterday afternoon as people found their way to the reception for Mrs. Scott at Government House and thence across the street to the post-nuptial reception of Mrs. John McDougall, Jr. At Government House Mrs. Walter Scott, receiving with Mrs. Bulyea, was welcomed to Edmonton by a number of friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Bulyea was attired in a cream voile gown with dainty chiffon trimmings.

Mrs. Scott wore a gown of black net with black velvet trimmings and touches of light blue. Mrs. Ewing received the callers in the tea room where a very artistic arrangement of pale green and white decorated the polished table where the refreshments lay. White carnations were strewn prettily on pale green satin ribbons that crossed the table; tall vases of carnations rose from an exquisite Honiton centrepiece, the whole effectively lit by candles with shades of filigree silver and delicate green silk. Those who called throughout the afternoon included all the fashionable and prominent society.

Mrs. John McDougall's pretty little home was bright yesterday with lights and yellow chrysanthemums, and the streams of welcoming people who came to greet the young bride in her new home. Mrs. McDougall, attired in a dainty gown of white silk with chiffon trimmings, was assisted in receiving by Mrs. John McDougall, Sr., and Miss Alice McDougall. In the tea room tea and coffee were poured by Mrs. Hardisty, Mrs. D. R. Fraser, Mrs. R. Second and Mrs. T. H. Whitelaw. They were assisted by a bevy of young girls in looking after the wants of the guests.

Mrs. Benson wore deep ruby velvet elaborately trimmed with old rose points, the corsage outlined with sable; diamond ornaments.

Some of the gowns worn were:— Mrs. Frank Oliver, Parisian gown of black and white striped chiffon cloth over chiffron and taffeta, with deep hertha of Irish points and touches of pale blue and cerise velvet on the corsage, the skirt trimmed with chiffon ruffles, deep girle of black velvet; ornaments, opals and diamonds.

Miss Davies, dark crimson satin with garniture of black lace; diamond ornaments.

Mrs. R. L. Borden, princess gown of pale blue chiffon taffeta with hertha of Limerick lace; diamond ornaments.

Mrs. Clifford Sifton, gown of sapphire blue sequins over blue chiffon, trimmed with chiffon ruffles; diamond necklace.

Mrs. Roberts Allan, French gown of Carlesian lace over spangled chiffon, the bodice finished with tulle d'Alencon; ornaments, diamonds.

Miss Eleanor Taylor, of Edmonton, who accompanied her aunt, Mrs. Roberts Allan, wore a dainty frock of white silk crepe de chine with soft blue girle.
