People Ignored.

Those who live on Quidi Vid Road will derive cold comfort from the words of the Government organ this morning. Ever since they learned that the sealers of the Newfoundland, whom the authorities have determined to detain for observation, were to be isolated in a structure now being erected near Quidi Vid Road, they have been in a state of alarm, fearing that smallpox might spread to their dwellings. Their alarm was natural and they looked to the Government and Municipal Council for protection. Yesterday we counselled the Government to re-consider their decision. Instead of doing so, the Daily News has promptly declared in behalf of the Government that the sealers who are under observation will it is hoped be housed in this temporary structure to-night. According to the Daily News of this morning, one case has already broken out among the 68 men under observation, and there is a risk of other cases. The Daily News is trying to make out that the furor which has arisen is due to the Opposition newspapers. This is not so. The Opposition newspapers have but voiced a natural and reasonable objection which was in existence more than 24 hours before these newspapers were issued. For instance, Councillor Mulally was on the alert on Sunday, and the Evening Telegram and Evening Herald were not issued till Monday afternoon.

It will be remembered that our objection was taken solely to the location. We stated that these men deserve the most considerate treatment, good food and comfortable quarters, but that they should be given the best available of these without endangering the public at large. We pointed out that a hastily run up shed could not be comfortable, and we drew a contrast between the housing of these unfortunate men and the housing of the members of the Picnic Party. But we challenge the Daily News to point out where we suggested that a private house should be taken. We suggested the hiring of one or two sealing steamers, cleaning them out, and making the men as comfortable as possible, and in such a way as would isolate them from others, who would be thus kept immune. The value of our suggestion is unwittingly corroborated by the Daily News itself under the caption of

"A LESSON LEARNED."
The present trouble has taught one important lesson—the necessity for a quarantine station. St. John's has never been face to face with the imperative need hitherto. It confronts us to-day, and the lesson of experience is the lesson best learned. What is wanted is a hulk, fitted up for the purpose and kept anchored, and let us hope, idle; but always ready for demands on its hospitality when the occasion arises."

The objection raised to our suggestion is that such a course would entail a delay of 18 days. The value of that objection we leave to our readers.

The puerility and insincerity of the suggestion that we should lend the house we live in as an observation hospital for smallpox is conclusively proved by evidence in the Daily News article itself. Read what the article contains. Here are two extracts:

"Lindberg's farm had taken some cases several years ago, but 68 men could not be housed where ten had only room enough."
How then would our house accommodate 68 men?

"The Rinks were considered, but apart from the certainty that no rink-owner or company would consent to ruin their enterprise, the rinks would be utterly unsuitable."

We do not own any house in the country. We rent one. We are not free agents in the matter. If a rink company would not ruin its prospects, can a landlord of a private house be expected to do what a company would "certainly" not, according to the Daily News, consent to do. Moreover, the Daily News says again:

"People do not willingly rent their dwellings for quarantine purposes."

It may be inferred from this, what is a fact, that our house was not rented to us for quarantine purposes, and we have no power to let or loan for such a purpose. The house we live in is let to us on ordinary terms, which do not permit us to loan it for a smallpox observation hospital.

It is clear then that the observations of the Daily News in this connection are utterly beside the question. We apologize for dealing with them, as they are personal but they were forced upon us by the Daily News.

If there was any sincerity in them, why did not the Daily News suggest the admirably adapted, very convenient and comfortable company man and grounds, named Beaconsfield, where Sir Edward Morris used to live and where his brother now resides. It is not our suggestion, but it is a retort which will naturally appeal to the inventor of the suggestion which appears in the Daily News.

Our suggestion was the hiring of one or two sealing steamers, and that is a much better one than that which has been adopted by the authorities, to which we object strongly on the ground of location and danger to the neighbourhood. But the protests of the neighbourhood have been ignored.
