LONDON, To-day. Bulgaria is giving the broken Turkish army no time to recuperate. In accordance with the tactics adopted throughout, the Bulgarians are following the defeated Turks with extraordinary energy. Flying columns are pursuing along the coast toward Tchatalja lines. It is believed the main attack will be delivered on Friday. Constantinople appears to have lost hope of stemming the victorious advance even at Tchatalja, and the Turkish Court is ready to cross into Asia. Apparently the Bulgarian Government has no aspirations on Constantinople itself and would be ready to conclude peace provided Turkey will agree to surrender Adrianople and some other positions in the western theatre of war, and to give guarantees to bring no more reinforcements from Asia. The Porte shows no disposition as yet to treat for peace direct with the allies until the big Tchatalja battle has been fought. What will happen then is impossible to foresee. The fall of Monastir is not improbable. The Greeks crossing the Vardar River. The fall of Saloniki is reported imminent.

Special Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day. War vessels of the most of the Powers are on their way to Constantinople. Britannia now has the whole of the Mediterranean battleships together with nine powerful cruisers, a flotilla of torpedo destroyers, in other Eastern waters or in the vicinity. A third battleship squadron, comprising eight battleships, six cruisers and auxiliaries, part of the Home Fleet with the base at Gibraltar is proceeding Eastward, all prepared to protect the population.

SOPIA, To-day. The Bulgarian vanguard, it is said, has reached Lake Dorchas, and detachment is passing between the lake and the sea. Another line of Bulgarian advance is reported to be attacking forts from town Tchatalja, while a still another column, which marched down the main road from Tchorla to Siliveri is now advancing on Rogados for the purpose of forcing a passage along the coast of the sea of Marmora. These however are only flying columns, the main body has not yet commenced the attack on Tchatalja fort. Bulgaria will reject mediation until Tchatalja has been captured, and Adrianople fallen although the entry into Constantinople is no part of the allies plan.

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE.
The Electoral College is constituted by 531 members. Each State is entitled to a membership, which apparently depends on its population. New York State has 45 members, whilst Arizona has three. The party which gains the highest number of votes, no matter how small that majority may be is entitled to the full membership. For instance Roosevelt's Party take the whole 38 members in Pennsylvania, although the vote was some 185,000 and each party obtained over 60,000 votes. It follows therefore that Roosevelt's majority in votes must have been of the slimmest dimension.

SUMMARY.
According to the latest information received before going to press the membership of the Electoral College stands thus:—

Democrat	387
Progressive	12
Republican	99
Unknown	33
Total	531

Why Who's Who.

BY H. L. RANN.

One of the most interesting pieces of architecture in this country is Col. J. Ham Lewis of Chicago, democracy's candidate for senate from the state of Illinois. Any way you look at him, J. Ham is a classic. Originally cast in the mould of a Greek goddess, upon entering politics he adopted the severe Gothic style of front elevation which Chief Justice Hughes did so much to popularize.

The crowning glory of Col. J. Ham Lewis is his whiskers. The equal of these whiskers has never been seen on man or beast. They are as full of color as a changeable silk-petticoat. On a dark day, when the Col. is in a quiet plastic mood, they are of a dull ruddiness, like unto the bronzed wing of the turkey gobbler. When perforated by the sun's bright ray, however, in the midst of one of J. Ham's bubbling outbursts on human rights, each whisker stands erect and throws off sparks faster than an emery wheel.

The Col. is proud of his whiskers and never lets them out of his sight. His political enemies charge him with doing them up in curl papers nightly, but this is a base libel. If the Col. can find out who started this story, he will prosecute him to the full extent of the law.

Col. J. Ham Lewis has two crown-like glories, the other being his collection of spotted vests. The Col. has so many of these vests that he has them classified by the card index system. He refers to them as waist-coats, and changes them with lightning-like rapidity. The two upper floors of his Chicago residence are given to these vests, which range from the coy pique effect to the massive, double-breasted chinchilla.

Col. Lewis has an income which allows him to buy pounds for his whiskers in the most reckless fashion and also enables him to change vests every fifteen minutes without running out of raw material. With two such handicaps as this, how he ever got by with the plain people at a primary election will forever remain a mystery. It must be that the people overlook his vests and his whiskers and focus their eyes on the main fact that is square.

Hold to Your Ideas.

Did you ever notice how much better you feel after having done a superb piece of work, how much more you think whole character? What a thrill one feels when contemplating his masterpiece, the work into which he has put the very best that was in him, the very best of which he was capable! This call comes from obeying the natural law within us to do things right, as they should be done, just as we feel an increase of self-respect when we obey the law of justice, of integrity within us. A famous artist said he would never allow himself to look at an inferior drawing or painting, to do anything that was low or demoralizing, lest familiarity with it should taint his own ideal, and thus be communicated to his brush. There is everything in holding a high ideal of your work. Hold the idea of excellence constantly in your mind, for whatever model the mind holds the life copies. What we think, that we become. Never allow your thought of deficiency, inferiority. Reach to the highest! cling to it. Take no chances with anything that is inferior. Whatever your vocation, let quality be your life slogan.

Keep little square blocks of wood in the kitchen to use instead of a large chopping bowl when you want to chop a single onion or a little parsley. The blocks should be 5 x 7 inches, and should have a hole in the end to hang by.
