Fake Doctor Gets Six Months in Jail.

Hartford, Conn., March 15.—Sentence of six months in jail on a charge of manslaughter was imposed on George G. Sutcliffe, so-called doctor. He entered a plea of nolo contendere. Sutcliffe's license was revoked after investigation of circumstances surrounding the death of Albert C. Hoody, whose finger he had attempted to amputate. Hoody died from an overdose of ether. Sutcliffe gave considerable aid to the authorities by testifying in the fake medical diploma cases before the grand jury.

DOMESTIC CUTS NEW ORE.

Dome has crosstuck the new ore found in the basalt by diamond drilling from the 10th and 11th levels and is now carrying on considerable exploration. Asked by The Miner as to results, an official said: "We are molting now and have run no assays yet. We should know something about values in a week. It is difficult to talk about the appearance of the ore because it is new material and we cannot judge much just from the look of it."

One drill hole, as first told by The Miner last week, indicated four occurrences within 150 feet of bore. The four aggregated 44 feet in width and averaged $15 a ton. The drill cut the ore at right angles.

RECORD MONTYRE PROFITS.

The Northern Miner understands that in the first eight months of its fiscal year, McIntyre Porcupine earned record operating profit, being $40,000 more than the total of the previous two months period. The operating profit for eight months ending February was $950,000, which is at the rate of almost $2 per issued share per annum.—Northern Miner, March 22.

Griffith Spectacle

Coming

Through special arrangements just completed, David Wark Griffith's tremendous spectacle, "Hearts of the World" has been secured for a limited engagement here and will be seen at the Star Movie next week.

"Hearts of the World" is the big Griffith production on which this master genius spent more than eighteen months, and during the making of which he was in France working under the auspices and with the hearty co-operation of David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of England, and other British and French officials. This, however, does not indicate that "Hearts of the World" is a war play, for Mr. Griffith has been exceptionally anxious to have it known that this latest effort is a simple love story with the recent war serving only as the background. He describes it as "the story of a village; an old-fashioned play with a new fashioned theme." The unfolding of the romance takes place in a French village prior to and during the German occupation, and all the experiences of the French throughout these trying times are graphically depicted as only Griffith can do it. Those who have seen his former triumph, "The Birth of a Nation," will realize just what this means, for Griffith is a producer who masterfully stops at nothing to accomplish his ends.

Some idea of the magnitude of "Hearts of the World" may be gained from the fact that more than one million men and women figure in the story, as do fifty thousand horses, squadrons of airplanes, fleets of Zeppe- lins, hundreds of lumbering tanks in action and miles of artillery.

Both the exterior and the interior of Lloyd George's headquarters at No. 10 Downing Street, London, where President Wilson took luncheon on the second day of his visit to England, are shown in the production, as well as the very roads which the President traveled on his visit to the battlefields.

Unusual Romance at the Nickel To-Night

"WHEN THE DESERT CALLS" A STORY OF AMERICANS IN THE GREAT SAHARA.

The lure of the East, the mystery of the Sahara, the enchantment of nights under tropical stars—all these fascinations are found in "When the Desert Calls," a Ray C. Smallwood Production for Pyramid Pictures, Inc., adapted by Peter Milne and Georgeette Duchesne from Donald McGibben's "Ladies' Home Journal" story, with a superlative cast featuring Violet Heming.

"When the Desert Calls" is more than an atmospheric picture—it has plot in every scene and tells a dramatic, powerful story of love and hate, revenge and sacrifice, of wonderful heroism and a girl's devotion to the memory of the man she loves. It is replete with complications and clashes, surprises and shocks, with escapes and pursuits, and it ends in a manner surprising, satisfying.

The picture's variety of setting is a tribute to the ability of Ben Carré, art director, to create reality as well as beauty in scenes that shift from a New York dive to the splendour and luxury of a club in Northern Africa; sun-flooded streets in a town on the desert's edge; details of social and business life there, together with superb tent interiors.

On Monday the Nickel will screen Rupert Hughes' latest film story, entitled "Remembrance." This picture is said to excel the great production "The Old Nest" which was shown at this theatre to tremendous business a year ago. Watch for this attraction on Monday.

No Reckless Driving

Any day now we shall have fine spring weather, and the festival of the open road will begin. There will be more motorists than ever, and thousands of new and inexperienced drivers. Are we to have a repetition of accidents in such numbers as caused general alarm last summer?

That rests largely on the angle from which the police direct their policy for making the roads safe during the coming season. If they are still obsessed with the idea of preventing every motorist on every road from exceeding the 20-miles-an-hour legal limit it is pretty certain that the really reckless driver will be slipping through the net more often than not—and we shall have a bad crop of accidents. The important thing the police have to bear in mind is that careful motorists, who fortunately die in the great majority, are themselves anxious to see reckless drivers put down with a firm hand.

What is needed, in fact, is to stop not fast driving when such driving is safe, but bad driving, which is always dangerous. The more reckless drivers the police can lay by the heels the better for motorist and pedestrian alike, and no one will be better pleased than the responsible driver, who realizes that in taking proper precautions for the safety of others he is at the same time securing his own.

Heres New One—Radio Fire Alarm

A novel means of reporting a fire has come to light from police headquarters. A radio man, aboard the freighter Marian, at the foot of Eighteenth street and the East river, discovered a blaze on the roof of an unoccupied pier at Twentieth street and sent a wireless to headquarters, which in turn notified the fire department. A fireboat quickly extinguished the blaze.

SEALING NEWS

The sealing news received from the steamers on the northern front yesterday indicates that the patch of seals has been cut up and the men were busy all day hauling the pelts on board. The Terra Nova, after being jammed in rafted ice for six days, got free at 4 p.m. yesterday, and reached the dead seals a few hours later, finding them intact. Prospects of the Ranger, Thetis and Sagona securing young seals do not look very bright, as they are beginning to dip. The Seal has a full load panned, 3,000 of which have been placed on board. The Viking in the Gulf is making very poor progress in heavy sheet ice and has nothing new to report. The following messages were received last night:—

JOB BROS. & CO.

Nepetone—Killed and panned to-day 2,000, estimate seals on board 6,000. On ice 15,000, ice very heavy, hard to travel over.

Thetis—Steamed within two miles Partridge Point. Impossible to get into Bay until conditions change.

BOWLING BROS.

Eagle—Total stewed 7,000, patch cut where we are, seals dipping, do not know if we will get enough; crew had to walk 6 miles yesterday to pan seals. All ships here except the Ranger. Men hauling seals to ship, weather calm.

Ranger—In open water, heavy ice on the inside, steering west north west.

Terra Nova—Got clear after 4 p.m. reached dead seals 5.30 p.m. All intact.

Sagona—Same position, large sheets ice difficult to get through; prospects poor for young.

Viking—In heavy sheet ice, making slow progress, steering north west, twenty miles S. Deadman's Island. Tight ice as far as can be seen.

BAINE JOHNSTON & CO.

Seal—Strong east south east winds last night, snow; ice packed on west side of Bay, very large sheets, impossible to do anything with picking up seals. Men hauling pens all day, ship jammed, 3,000 on board; finished panning.

Personal.

Mr. W. H. Herder arrived by the Silvia this morning. Rev. Canon Earp and family are passengers by S.S. Sackem for Halifax.

TRAIN NOTES.—Tuesday's west bound express left Crabbes 6 a.m. The belated express reached the city at 2 p.m. The next regular cross-country express will go out Sunday at 1 p.m.

Taking the Temperature of a Star

(By J. A. LLOYD, M.B.A.A.)

To measure the heat we get from a star seems a hopeless job. Yet it can be done.

Naturally, the measurement is almost inconceivably delicate. The instrument employed, called a "radiation pyrometer," is a triumph of refined mechanical work. It is so exquisitely frail that, compared with it, a woman's wrist-watch would look like a colliery winding-engine. Electricity does the measuring.

Essentially, the instrument consists of a tiny thermo-couple formed by the union of two wires, one of platinum, the other of silver. At the junction of the wires, is placed an absorbing surface about as large as a pin's head. This is painted black, and the light of the star to be tested is focused on this surface. The wires are so fine that they are quite invisible to the unaided eye.

When the rays of the star are focused on the thermo-couple an electric current flows along the wires. The strength of the current gives a measure of the star's heat-radiation.

The galvanometer by which the current is measured consists of an exceedingly small mirror less than a pin's head in size, hung from a thread of spun quartz, which is the finest thread known. A mark on the face of the mirror throws a reflection on an illuminated scale which is read by a microscope.

The pyrometer, in actual use, is enclosed in a glass cell from which all the air has been exhausted. In the glass cell there is a window of fluorite through which the light of the star falls on the thermo-couple.

The whole instrument is now placed in the focus of a reflecting telescope of three feet aperture, and the light of the star adjusted to fall on the fluorite window.

If the star gives out any appreciable heat, the current of electricity set up in the thermo-couple causes the quartz thread in the galvanometer to twist, and the reflection of the little mirror oscillates to and fro on the scale.

The instrument is so extraordinarily sensitive that it can measure to the millionth of a degree.

The heat of a single candle can be felt by this marvelous contrivance at a distance of fifty-three miles.—London Daily Mail.
