Baby Guarded by a Snake. WOODBURY, June 25 .- While Mrs. Chas. Whiteley, residing a few miles below this city, was engaged in household duties the other morning, she missed her little 21/2year-old girl, who was playing in the yard. An answer to a call located the child some distance from the house in a clump of grass. When Mrs. Whiteley approached the spot she was horrified to see a large black snake curled up in its lap, and the little one gleefully exclaiming, "See, see !' Every effort to rescue the child was greeted with hisses from the reptile, when frantic cries from the mother brought assistance from a neighbor, who succeeded in killing the snake, which measured over three feet. In its way the little one intimated that it had frequently played with the serpent.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Colborne Street Methodist Church. To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

As a good deal of misapprehension appears to prevail in reference to the appointnent of the Rev. Charles Smith to the Central Methodist Church, St. Thomas, 1 beg to submit the following: When it became known to the official board of Colborne Street Church that their late pastor had been transferred to the King Street Church, London, on account of the opposition of the St. Thomas Central Methodist Church, a meeting of the Colborne Street Church quarterly board was at once called. of which the following were present: Bros. F. Manness, Madden, W. Wyatt, Harwood, Buckle, W. R. Garner, Tackaberry, Nobbs, Lacey, Page, C. Manness, H. Pratt, G. Fortner and J. Nicholson, and after explanations had been made by the Rev. Charles Smith, the following resolution was moved by Bro. W. Wyatt, seconded by Bro. W. R. Garner:

"Resolved, that we, the official members of the quarterly board of the Colborne Street Methodist Church, do hereby express our heartfelt sympathy with the Rev. Charles Smith in the position he has been placed by the action of the board of a church in the sister city of St. Thomas, and that we do hereby memorize the chairman of the district to arrange that he be our supply for another year, and that the Rev. W. Rigsby, who has not completed his full term at King Street Church, be simply left in charge till he has completed his full term, and we hereby request the chairman of the district, the Rev. J. R. Gundy, and the Rev. Walter Rigsby, to be present at a meeting of the quarterly board to be held on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock." Carried. Bros. W. Wyatt, J. F. Madden and G. Fortner were appointed a committee to present the resolution to Rev. J. R. Gundy and report the result at the meeting to be held on Saturday last. A full meeting of the board convened according to adjournment, at which Rev. J. R. Gundy presided. He presented a letter from Rev. W. Rigsby, who was unable to be present on account of illness. The chairman stated that in accordance with the discipline of the Methodist Church it would be impossible to grant the request of the board asking for the detention of Rev. Chas. Smith for another year, but that an arrangement had been made which was mutually satisfactory to both ministers. It was then moved by Bro. Buckle, seconded by Bro. F. Manness, "that this meeting regrets that in accordance with the discipline it is impossible to grant their wishes expressed in the above resolution, and that we welcome Rev. W. Rigsby as pastor of our church and pledge him our hearty co-operation in his work amongst us." Carried unanimously.

Rev. C. Smith heartily thanked the board for their sympathy and kindly feeling manifested toward him during the trying ordeal, and said it was something he would never forget. After prayers had been offered the meeting adjourned. JOSEPH NICHOLSON, Secretary.

THE "STATE OF PEACE." Difference Between European Armaments Formerly and New.

M. de Blowitz, in McClure's Magazine. Europe is armed to-day to such a point that it cannot much longer support what is curiously enough known as the "state of peace." But this "state of peace" is a state in which the preoccupation of military matters absorbs the purest revenues of the country, uses up the vital forces of a nation without any corresponding production, and impoverishes the peoples, not merely because of the amount of the resources required to maintain permanent armies, but because of the number of arms and hands thus rendered unproductive.

Formerly Europe acted on the principle of years of prolonged active service and of reduced annual contingents. In these circumstances the soldier remained under arms seven or five years. Conges were infrequent. It was possible, when one was called upon to serve, to obtain a substitute, among men who made of the military life a profession, who lived and died only as soldiers, who were veterans accustomed to long marches and to all hardships, men who were excellent instructors for the raw recruit, and who formed in each army division a picked impene-trable phalanx. The armies were not so gigantic as to-day; they were easier to handle, were equipped with less deadly weapons, took their time in choosing the fields of battle, and once engaged, fought steadily, with far less murderous results than nowadays. Having coped with each other face to face, they retired after the victory with mutual admiration for each other's valor, while they concluded an honorable, wellconsidered and lasting peace. And the peace was lasting for a curious reasonnamely, just because the rival armies were not too heavy a load for the nations to carry. The nations were not crushed under their weight as they are to day. And this brings us to the point from which we get a glimpse, odd and sad as the admission is, of the limited ideal which we are bound to pursue to-day, namely, to reduce the military burdens in times of peace so that these buidens may become tolerable over long periods, and not form in themselves a determining condition of war.
