STEAMBOAT EXPLUSION.

THE BIVERDALE BLOWN UP AT NEW YORK YESTERDAY.

many Persons Injured-The Cause Un-New York, Aug. 28.—It is reported that the steamer Riverdale has burst her boiler and sunk, over fifty lives being lost.

The Riverdale halongs to Smith's line. The Riverdale belongs to Smith's line, which plies between New York and Haverstraw, touching at Palisades, Yonkers, Dobb's Ferry, Tarrytown, Nyack, and Sing g. second despatch: The Riverdale started at the Hudson on a trip to Haverstraw at 3 o'clock with fifty passengers which she took aboard at Harrison street. When opposite Eleventh street the boilers exploded. Eyewitnesses say that it seemed as if the whole inside of the steamer flew into the air. The shell of the hull careened, and continued up stream from the momentum of its own speed until it went down, bow first, at the foot of Fifteenth street. About twenty passengers, including every-body in the cabin, were blown up. The rest seized life preservers and jumping over the rail into the river were picked to by boats that had at once put out from New York and Jersey wharves to their assistance. How many were saved and how many were flowned and killed is yet unlike the condition reports are many were drowned and killed is yet unknown. Most conflicting reports are in circulation. Not over ten lives are positively known to be lost. Amony those blown up and bally scalded is said to be Garduer the evange ist. On the arrival of ambulances, the body of hars. Disson of Tarrytown was brought and report and son whose name is Charlin jumped from the upper deck and was picked up. This was the only body recovered at 4 o'clock, half an hour after the explosion. Captain Smith. the only body recovered at 4 o'clock, half an hour after the explosion. Captain Smith, commander of the Riverdale, stated that while on 'ack he heard a low rumble and immedia' sly the boilers blew up. He could not ext fain the cause of the explosion. Tugs are now cruising about the scene.

was picked up by a tag. The Riverdale was an old boat.

Third dispatch: Most of the passengers were residents of towns along the Hudson and several New York people stopping at Nyack Palisades, Yonkers and Tarrytown.
The Riverdale was formerly called the R.
G. Coffin, and later the Alexis. After being thoroughly overhauled she was pamed the Riverde'se. The steamer Chrystinah took the uninjured passengers and proceeded up the Hudson. It was reported from police headquarters that the number of light lost is supposed to be very large from police headquarters that the number of live lost is supposed to be very large from the fact that a number of bodies were seen pating in the water.

Fourth dispatch: From the best accounts obtained it seems that the number of persons killed is small, as there were few in given as to the number of passengers on board or the number of lives lost. Accounts of the number of passengers vary from fifty to two hundred, and of the killed from ten to fifty. Most trustworthy ac-counts place the number of killed at six. There is reason to believe that nearly all had a chance to escape. The engineer was about to enter the engine room to slow up, another steamer being at their landing at Twenty-second street, when the explosion

A Telegram extra says: The steame Riverdale sank six minutes after the explosion. Instantly fifteen tugs steamed to the scene from New York. There were a hundred passengers aboard when the steamer left Havrisch street, and a greater number were to be taken on at Taranturbing screet. were to be taken on at Twenty-third street. The scalding steam immediately filled all Parts of the vessel, and those not blown up nen were called out and with the police did good service. Worken were brought ashore with their legs broken. They must have been crushed by falling timbers while sitting on deck and blown overboard. Capt. Smith describes the overboard. Capt. Smith describes the seene as terrible. The Riverdale blew out the drum head of her steam-chest a year posed was almost completely oxidized.
was repaired and resumed her trips.

Fifth dispatch : The force of the explcsion was downward, the rapidity with which the vessel sank showing that her bottom was blown out. Hardly a minute elapsed between the explosion and the sinking of the hull in the whirlpool into which the struggling swimmers were drawn. The river was strewn with wreckage. The cabin doors, beams, boards and furniture were floating about. Tugs and small boats put out in swarms from New York and Jersey began rescuing the passengers and. The number saved show how efficient their work was. The passengers say the explosion was entirely without warning. The crew of a coal tar boat which was near rescued forty person. It is thought none who escaped injury had time to drown.

The killed or injured so far as known are: Mrs. Julia Dission, aged 69, Tarrytown, drowned. Her grandson jumped overboard and her bu band was pulled through a window of the sinking boat by the crew of a tug. Thomas Gregg, aged 82, New York, en route for Dobbe' Ferry, found wedged between a rail and joiner work.

These are the only ones positively known to be lost. John Crevet, fireman, is missing and believed to be killed. It is feared PHILADELP! others who have not been reported are also lost but the number is not believed to be large. Geo. A. Drymes, fireman, fearfully scolded, cannot live. Orville Gardner, evangelist, Brooklyn, scalded all over rvangelist, Brooklyn, scalded and the body. Thomas J. Sauls, badly realded. Nicholes Salair, mate which broken. Wm. Henry, an oiler on the steamer, hands and feet burned. Israel Lezarus, deck hand, badly bruised. James Tobin, Yonkers, and Nelson McGee, pilot of Yonkers, badly scalded and bruised. John Moran injured. Te-morrow the wreck will be raised and a thorough examination made. The officers do not believe any more bodies will be found. The engineer, who escaped with a few bruises, says he cannot explain the cause of the accident. The boilers were new four years ago. The explosion apparently was ult of a hidden defect. previous the steam gauge registered 2: the steamer bore the name of Alexis she received machine y and fitting of the old Broadway that was blown up in '65 within

He Ill-Treats His Wife and is Threatened With Tar and Feathers.

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 28.—The excitement at Union City over Rev. Henry Moyer's treatment of his wife, who is alleged to have been driven insane by a systematic course of inhuman cruelty, is as intense as was the excitement at Union Town over Dakes, the action of the people being very singular. When the city awoke this morning its walls and fences were covered with glaring posters calling upon the people to assemble at the market place on Saturday evening for the purpose of tarring and feath-ering the devil. Contributions of tar and feathers and a hand rail are solioited. 'Yo-day Rev. Mr. Moyer received an anonymous letter ordering him to vacate the city before Saturday, if he "would avert an unhealthy, but timely fate." The letter reads that twenty-seven righteously indignant citizens have banded themselves together for this purpose, and have sworn to accomplish it. The minister has barricaded his house, and he proposes to stay despite warning that, man of peace though he be, he will shoot down anyone attempting to molest him, and that many lives will fall before his weapons before he can be dragged

A Madman.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—The Clifton house came very near being the scene of a bloodcurdling tragedy yesterday morning. At midnight shrieks and howls reverberated through the spacious halls. Joe Abbott, a yourg, powerful man, of handsome appearance, had locked and barred himself in the ance, had locked and barred himself in the cloak room and had gone raving mad. The police patrol were called and six officers broke open the door and scaled the barricade, when Abbott dealt four of them terrible blows, felling them to the floor. He then jumped head first through a window into the hall and dashed, bleeding from many wounds, into the street. When captured and handcuffed he foamed with rage and roared like a wild beast. He had secured a $1000 government bond from a satchel and chewed it into fragments. The proprietor of the hotel stated that it was a case of stage-struckness. The young man had talent. BAST YORK EL CITON PETITION. Bill of Meagre Particulars - Men of

Straw Set Up and Knocked Down-Charges Dismissed. The trial of the East York election petitition was begun vesterday at the Adelaide street courthouse before Justices Burton Galt. Mr. Foy, Q C, and Mr. Blackstock al Rising Feared in Croatin-Arrest of appeared for the petitioner, Mr. McQuary; and Messrs. S. Blake, Wm. Johnston and Prector for the respondent, Mr. G. W. Badgerow. On the opening of the case, Mr. Foy moved to have several of the perticulars in the petition amended. The court, however, refused peremptorily to do o, Mr. Justice Burton remarking that t was trifling with the court for the peti titioner to furnish such meagre particulars as was now laid before them. The case was one in which the court would not be justified in extending any leniency to the petitioner who had deliberately re'used the petitioner who had deliberately re'used to make known the particulars of certain charges, as he should have done in compliance with the statute. The following charges were consequently struck out: 6, 9, 10, 11, 15, 22, 24, 25, 26, 27, as not giving specified information regarding the put in the box, being called by Mr. Fey. He detailed the manner in which his candidature in E st York had been carried on, stating that he had made its point to treat no one from the 1st of January till after the elec-tions were over on the 37th of February, thus denying the charges which had been alleged against him of corruptly treating voters on the polling day and at other times

In support of charge No. 1, that Mr. Badgerow had treated a voter named John Strader at Mallondine's hotel on the polling day, Mr. Strader and John Entwhistle were called by Mr. Foy. The former testicated and the strader and John Entwhistle were called by Mr. Foy. fied that he was a conservative, and known to have been such by Mr Badgerow; that on the day in question the latter gentleman asked Strader to have a drink, which the latter took in the shape of "hot Irish."

The other witness cave correlated a side of the latter took in the shape of "hot Irish."

The other witness gave corroborative evidence. Their lordships, however, had no hesitation in declaring that they placed no credence in the testimony of these two worthies whose evidence to them was contradictory and radictory and inconsistent with common sense. The charge was dismissed as was also the one that was next investigated, where James Montstephens was charged with offering meney to bribe Wm. Jones. The latter gave evidence that he was offered $5 to go on the other side, but after two or three witnesses had been called it appeared that Jones was a fusey, pompous individual, and that he was trying to make something big out of a conversation that was only meant for a joke; charge dismissed.

Charges thirteen and fourteen were being investigated when the court adjourned till 10 o'clock to day. So far, the charges against Mr. Badgerow have proved to be mere men of straw, which are being knocked down as feat.

Number of Eloquent speeches-Program of the Convention

The welcome meeting to the delegates of the North America St. George's union, their ladies and friends, was held last night n the council chamber at the city hall. The night was wet and unpleasant, but this did not seem to have any effect on the attendance of the delegates and their friends The chamber was brilliantly lighted, and British and American flags were hung around the walls as emblematical of the entiment of union between the representatives of the different daughters of mother England, Mr. Barlow Cumberland, president of the Toronto St. George's society, occupied the chair. Mayor Boswell tendered the strangers a hearty welcome to the Queen City of the west. He was glad to see so many people from the land of their adoption who still by their presence showed their love for their mother country. He regretted that the weather had tained by his friends for his safety. Being of a nervous temperament, it is feared that the apparent disgrace of a failure was too much for him to bear, and that he has committed suicide. W. J. Ramsay and John Fiskin & Co. are not creditors, as stated in The World of yesterday.

A letter was received from his lordship yesterday stating that the New York State Bar association, of which he is a guest while on this continent, has made so many engagements for him during his visit that he tion brings us hand to hand and eye to eye.

There is yet another ground on which we meet to-night. We see in you the concentration of the charitable societies of your land. We see in you all the good points of Englishmen. I can assure you that we shall endeavor to give you a warm welcome We shall try to make you come of the St. George's society, and I know that when I spaak that welcome it comes from the heart and soul of every one of us.

Colonel Denison, chairman of the local reception committee, then took the plat-form. Rev. Canon Fair of Baltimore addressed the meeting at some length with clear and earnest expression. He spoke very highly of the reception given to the Union delegates at Washington some time ago, and said that their entertainers were so diberal as to give them even their daughters in marriage. He surmised that before they left Toronto some of the bachellors whom he saw in the rows before him might have similar good fortune.

Mr. Lawson of Philadelphia and Mr. Neal of Oswego made speeches highly com-plimentary to the female sex in general and those present in particular.
