to what we admit would make us more acceptable and effective readers and speakers.

After the above expression of satisfaction we may, perhaps, be allowed to suggest one or two changes that might yet be made with advantage. At present the classes are so frequent that students are unable to prepare the work assigned from day to day. This is a loss to the student and an injustice to the teacher. Again, as the whole course was taken before Christmas the class was carried on up to the very verge of the mid-sessionals in Dal-As a consequence practice of the work assigned was altogether out of the question during the last week. The changes we venture to suggest are: That the course be divided into two parts, say of three weeks each, the first half to begin the same time as it did this session, the second after our mid-sessionals. This would obviate the necessity for crowding the work and it would come upon the student when he could best afford the time and attention which the subject deserves. We are confident that the Senate will do its utmost to so shape the course, that the fullest opportunity may be afforded for deriving benefit from it, and we hope that students may show an increasing desire to take advantage of the excellent provision that has been made for us in this department of study.

College Notes.

Many will have noticed an omission made in our first issue—thro' no fault of ours, we need hardly add. In speaking of last year's graduating class, no mention was made of W. W. Rainnie and J. S. Sutherland. Their names figured among the others in the MS. handed the printer, but they were dropped by him somehow. They certainly are deserving of more than a passing mention. Both served on the Theologue, Mr. Sutherland throughout the three years of his course, Mr. Rainnie during the last. Mr. S. had a tongue like the pen of a ready writer—and a pen like the tongue of a ready speaker. Mr. Rainnie was heard less often on the floor, but his pen was ever ready at the call of "proof." Both are settled in New Brunswick, Mr. R. at Hampton, Mr. S. at Sussex. By the way, we notice from the Halifax
