

Their Majesties Welcomed Home

The King Again in his Capital

This was the first glimpse that the people of London had of Their Majesties after their Indian Tour. The carriages are just leaving Victoria Station for Buckingham Palace.

—(copyright, Topical.

Leaving St. Paul's Cathedral

Both to witness the arrival home and to see the King and Queen driving to and from St. Paul's Cathedral where the national service of thanksgiving for their safe return from the greatest tour ever undertaken by a British Sovereign, was held, the streets of London were thronged with the people anxious again to give evidence of their loyalty and love for the persons of Their Majesties.

—Copyright, Central News.