

P R E F A C E.

THE popularity of the Canadian champion oarsman, whose worthy deeds this Epinikian ode unworthily records, is well attested by the fact, that all who have had any part in placing this little memorial of his exploits before the public have contributed their valued services gratuitously.

Messrs. Rolph, Smith & Co. kindly furnish the cover, Messrs. Brown Bros. the binding, and C. B. Robinson, Esq., the composition, free ; while the enterprising publishers, who, without my knowledge, secured all this assistance, voluntarily agreed to devote the entire proceeds of the publication to the Hanlan Homestead Fund. The Toronto News Company have also kindly undertaken its circulation without charge.

In tendering my grateful acknowledgments to all these
