Miss May won her greatest success in "The Catch of the Season," her charming art and great personal beauty providing potential. personal beauty providing potential attractions for the public. It is more of a play than any musical work of character that has been offered the public. It tells a pretty and de-cidedly interesting story, and presents Mass May in several heart-winning love scenes. Of the half-dozen songs she sings, three made enormous hits in New York. "Buttercup," "Molly O'Halloran" and "Raining." Mr. Frchman has provided beautiful stage settings and supplied comedians, dancers and general entertainers of the first rank to assist Miss May. The music of the play is bright and dainty, and the fun clean, wholesome and abundant. The splendid gown display surpasses anything before seen in a mu-

The bill that Manager Shea is giv-ing his patrons at the Yonge-street Theatre this week will be one of the best of the season. The headline act best of the season. The headline act is Mme. Slapoffski, the well-known prima donna. She has not been heard in Toronto, where she has many friends, in some time, and she is sure of a warm welcome. The extra attraction on the bill is Sam Watson's Farmyard, a unique English comedy animal act. Celina Bobe will be heard in exceptionally good violin and xylophone solos, and Carlton Macy and Maude Hall have a great sketch in 'A Timely Awakening." Others will be the Three Meers, Asra and Parros Brothers.

Jan Kubelik's violin recital at Massey Hall on Friday evening will attract every music lover in the city. None who cares for music, of whatever kind, will care to miss it, and for all to whom the violin is the "king of in-struments," the occasion will have peculiar significance. "Paganini reinpeculiar significance. "Paganini reincarnated" is what they call Kubelik on the Centinent of Europe, where men are still living who heard the Italian wizard play. Certain it is that no living violinist save Kubelik can play the extraordinarily difficult compositions of Paganini as they were intended to be played. One of Paganini's greatest works will be in Kubelik's program when he appears here. Supplementing Kubelik will be Agnes Gardner Eyre, solo pianiste; Ludwig Schwab will be the accompanist. The sale of seats begins this morning. Winners of Prizes

The question of relative superiority between Jimmy Britt and Battling Nelson was as much discussed after their great battle as before. There is only one way to form a really fair and unbiased opinion of the case, and that is to see and study the motion pictures of the battle. These pictures, matchless in their clearness, perfect to the smallest detail, tell the whole story. These pictures will appear at the Star Theatre week beginning Monday. Feb. 19, in conjunction with "The California Girls' Company." J. W. Coffroth, president of the Colma (Cal.) Athletic Club, where the fight occurred, is the owner of the copyrighted films.
