THANKSGIVING DAY,

nics, sceptics and pessimists, who leed, are never without representa tion, can find abundant material for gibe and jest over the breach between he ideal celebration of a day of thanksgiving and the customary manner of servance. Yet it would be both uncharitable and untrue to describe its ointment as folly merely because with many-perhaps most-it is re garded as an opportunity for holiday festivity rather than religious meditation and heart uplifting to the Giver of all Good. For, after all, there is a certain solemnity in the aspect of a official acknowledgment to the Supreme for the gracious bounty of nature and the increased comforts due to the continuance of prosperous years. Even the thoughtless and indifferent may find in this a passing call that will awaken memories forgotten, revive abandoned ctors when they would be bet-er off them. Not that they are not etent to discharge the dutes, but it is only in justice to themelves and to the public that when iny trouble does arise in connection the board the ve names on it should be saved from ary annoyance and criticia and even 'un ssarv financial ty. Nobody likes to see a men between eighty and ninety associated with a board of direction that comes in for severe public criti-cism, and there is no reason why this should be so. Not one man in twenty who is over seventy years of age bught to continue on a board of direction, if there are younger shoulders to carry the load. An octogenerian pefore a royal commission or in a wit-

-especially if they are willing-ought to be allowed a chance. One great trouble with boards of direction in this country is that they do not bring in young men and young blood like hey do in the old country. The older men here think they are there forever, but in the old country if you watch any political organization, any financial organization or any social organization in the way of clubs and the like you will see that the chief stantly for contingencies such as that esponsibility in connection with the nanagement is placed on the shoulders of younger men. We noticed an item in the new olumns the other day that an old and respected gentleman long identified due care been taken to protect the with Canadian politics, had taken over shareholders of the Ontario Bank and the duties of president of an electric to secure them their due say in company in this country.
