on Bruce street were addeted, and he was asked to bring in a report on Edward street. He stated that the sewer on Bruce street was built by the county of Middlesex before that section had been annexed to the city. It is only fifteen inches in diameter, and was intended for cellar drainage, but has been used for sewage purposes. There are only two manholes in a distance of 2,500 feet. The engineer recommended that seven more manholes be built, and that the sewer be cleaned, which operations will cost $1,000, to be charged to the general rate.

Most of the members of the commit-tee attributed the conditions to the fact tee attributed the conditions to the later that the storm sewer bylaw was turned down by the ratepayers at the last election, and that the amended plans for a reduced storm sewer system were turned down by the Legislature. Minister Blown Up. Minister Blown Up.

Probably the most tragic incident in all the trouble caused by raw sewage floating around the cellars happened to a South London minister. He attempted to block the flow of material into his basement by inserting a plug in the pipe and standing on it. According to the delegation before the committee, both he and the plug were blown up, and the sewage continued its flow undisturbed. One citizen reported that the sewage had forced its way into the wath basins in his house. Others said that it was pushed from the catch basins on the street after every heavy basins on the street after every heavy

The city engineer will report on the street was sometimes impassable. Mr. Brazier said that if anything was done it should be a permanent job. Ald. Seabrook pointed out that it was somewhat of a hardship to force a sidewalk on property owners there who did not want it. Some of them owned big stretches of vacant land, and would have to pay large frontage taxes. Mr. Ranahan said the cemetery was willing to pay for a sidewalk from the grounds to the city limits, but had no money to go beyond that point.

Official word was received from the railway board that 24-hour protection of the Maitland and William street G. T. R. crossings had been authorized, the company to pay 60 per cent of the cost, the Maitland and William street G. T. R. crossings had been authorized, the company to pay 60 per cent of the cost, and the city the remainder.

Residents of the south side of Huron street again complained that mall-boxes owned by residents on the north side of the street, who were out of the city had been erected on their boulevard. City Engineer Brazier said they had been ordered to remove these, and that legal action would be taken if necessary, as it was a breach of the city bylaws.

Criticizes Police.

Criticism of the police department administration was voiced by Ald. Seabrook and Ald. Drake in connection with the case of E. N. Hart, a Market Lane merchant, who was brought to court for allowing his delivery auto to stand more than three hours in the Market Lane. An amendment of the traffic bylaw prohibiting parking on the lane, except by merchants, was moved. Ald. Seabrook pointed out that Mr. Hart was the only merchant affected, and that he had no other place to park his car, as he could not leave it on the market. Ald. Drake said the police should have other work to do than arguments.

Collect Milk Producers' License Fees.

The war-time privilege of keeping pigs in London has been abrogated. At Tuesday afternoon's meeting of the board of health complaints were read that pigs are still being raised within the city limits, and the board decided that pigs are still being raised within the city limits, and the board decided to warn the offenders that the industry must cease. The provincial authorities wrote that the new civic plumbing bylaw is still unsatisfactory and must be further revised before it can be given provincial indorsement. Complaints were received of sewerage being emptied into a creek in South London, but the health department inspectors reported that they had found no evidence to support the claims.

The board discovered an existing bylaw requiring milk producers to take law requiring milk producers to take out licenses as well as the retailers. License Inspector McCallum will be asked to endeavor to collect some of the Sample City Supply Every Day—Health Board Wants Sealed Containers.

Because the express handlers on the London and Port Stanley Railway en-joy an avid appetite for fresh, sweet milk, the London Board of Health will turned down by the Leasung to Concur in this P. R. Watkinson did not concur in this pointon, maintaining that the fault was in the construction of the sewers.

Mr. Brazier pointed out that the sewer was too small to carry the amount of sewage and water poured to the city council the samont of sewage and water poured into it, and said the condition was due to a general lack of storm sewers. He could give no relief till money was provided. Ald. Seabrook said the sewers were all right, if they were used for vided. Ald. Seabrook said the several farmers down the line was water purposes. But it is alleged that they skim the cream off the top, and so the milk registers a low average of butterfat by the time it reaches London.

Two dairymen will be prevented from selling milk in London unless they supply a better quality, and three will appear in police court—today for having disregarded warnings in the past.

One farmer told Inspector Tamlin that he had not only told the railwaymen to drink all the milk they wished, but he had also presented them with a number of chickens in order that they would condescend not to run by his milk cans or leave them at the barn instead of the station platform on their arrival in London.

THREE AUTOS COLLIDE. Market Streets. Ald. Seabrook said this would merely, mean that the water would flow in the front doors of the houses, instead of through the cellars.

The city engineer was asked to bring in a report on the cost of a pavement on Colborne street in the vicinity of the Alexandra School. Dr. H. A. Stevenson asked the committee to consider action of this kind. No action was taken in regard to bicycle riding on Linwood avenue walks. There are only cinder paths on this street. If these are declared to be sidewalks, the city will be liable for accidents which occur on them, although it will alter the search of the street in the vicinity of the street.
