PASTORAL LETTER

Of Archbishop McCarthy prior to his departure for Rome,

Read in the various Catholic Churches yesterday.

Right Rev. Monaigner Baly appointed Administrator of Diocese.

The following pastoral letter from His Grace the Archbishop who, with Bishop LeBlanc, of St. John, leaves for Rome shortly was read in the nediction in the Lord.

Dearly beloved.—In his solicitude for all the churches, the Sovereign Pontifi has prescribed that from year to year the Bishops of the various lands of Christendom shall come in their appointed turn to the City of Rome. Obedient to this mandate, the Bishops of Canada, during the year nineteen hundred and fourteen, will visit the See of Peter and Payhomage to his illustrous successor.

will visit the See of Peter and pay homage to his illustrous successor. Plus X. It will therefore be our duty and privilege, within the next few months, to give the Holy Father an account of the state of religion in this archdiceses, and to offer him the tribute of your love and loyalty and to ask his apostolic blessing upon our priests and people.

This journey we undertake the more willingly because we can speak with full confidence to our chief pastor of your fidelity and devotion, of the trials you have borns and the difficulties you have gyeroome in keep-observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." Wherefore, "he that will not hear the church let him be to you as the heathen and the publican." The value of individual belief and conduct depends on the sinserity and good will by which it is prompted, but it also depends upon its conformity with the purpose which He arpressed by investing His church with power to rule. As the Christian truth and the Christian have are the same for all men, they lay upon all the necessity of membership in the same body; and thus the unity which Christ established is the mity of a living organism wherein sach part draws life and vigor from the Spirit that animates the whole.

Our Saviour, it is true, had no thought of forcing men against their will to become members of His church or of holding them in spite of themselves to abide in that membership when many of His disciples, unable to hear His "hard agyings," spith hack and walked no more with Him, He did not constrain them to return. Though He knew and forested that His chosen Apostles would be "scandalised in Him" and forsake Him in the hitterest hour of His life, He set no compulsion on their will or hindrance on their actions. A tree service and a loyalty all the stronger because of its freedom, was what He required. To be led, not to be driven, to accept the truth and to obey the law willingly and gladly, was what He expected of His followers. But He is many others would serve themselves from the living vine of which He knew till well that many would use their liberty to hold aloof from the living vine of which the knew till well that many would use their liberty to hold aloof from the living vine of which the knew till well that many others would serve themselves from the living vine of which they had once been the branches. And so, in the course of time, it has come to pass that men have sought to mark out other paths of salvation, to build upon other foundations than that which Chills had laid, and nevertheless to geak in His name as though they knew what He intended better than the church and more fully than the Apostice thermans.

The countless digisions that have resulted are sometimes justified on the ground that they entitle the fresh human soul is brought into immediate relation with Chilst and thus eremption from any obligation in respect of belief and practice which an external authority might impose. But this striving after an intelligible or great that the whole labric of Christianity, as of every other religion; is reared upon the sisting ducknames of human desire.

It is not, then, surprising that the med of unification is so keenly felt by all who claim to be Christianity, as of every other religion; is reared ADHERE TO TRUTH. We exhort you, therefore, to be steadfast in your adherence to the truth which you have received through the church. It is a priceless freasure that must be jealously guarded in your minds and hearts. It is the richest portion of your own inheritance and the most prealous lessage that you can transmit to your childran. "Once delivered to the Saints." It has been handed down anchanged through the ceaseless vigildance of Peter's succeasors. To them all Christians owe a debt of gratitude which can be paid only by unfailing obedience and a sincere acceptance of the teaching which comes to us from the head of the church. Pray, therefore, for our common father whom God has appointed ruler of all the faithful, that hy word and example he may lead us and the whole Mois of Units into the everisating. Be mindful also of those who more directly minister unto you the word of God, taking beed of what St. Paul telle us: "And he gave some apostles, and some prophets, and other some exampelists, and other some examplests, and other some for the ministry, for the editying of the body of Christ; until we all meet into the unity of faith, and of the knowledge of the San of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the age of the fulness of Christ' (Ephes, IV, 11-13).

The Right Rev. Monsignor Daly has been appointed Administrator of the Dioese during our absence.

cur in all numan searching after truth. Explanations and theories that meet with enthusiastic reception in one generation are modified of reversed in the next. Yet such errors, though they show how imperiect is our knowledge and how limited our reason, are not fatal in the sphere of morality and conduct. A man may have false or inadequate views about things, which science discusses, and still lead an upright life. Nor would the nitmost discord among scientists prevent any or all of them from meeting the obligations imposed upon every human being. There is always the hope that future investigation will rectify the errors that now prevail and that scientific truths will maily triumph. And accordingly the wisest inquirers, instead of boasting overmuch of what has been accomplished, are rather disposed to dwall on the vast labor that must yet be performed before our knowledge is complete.

With the truth of religion, the case is different. Not, a mere theoretical interest or a temporal advantage is at state; the issue involves our eternativeliare. Each of us, within the harrow span of earthly life, has to work out his salvation and therefore has to know the truths on which all allowed shall have ceased and all conflicts shall have been reduced to unity. In fact, there is no need of postponement or waiting, What is necessary for salvation Christ revealed ind entrusted to the Church in order that severy man, whatever his ability or knowledge, might lay hold through faith on the truth of religion, apart from which no science, certain or exact its if may be, can point the way to complete living.
