LOGGIEVILLE.

Loggieville, Aug. 4.—Among the sections of the province which afford excellent advantages for camping purposes none if any surpass Loggieville.

Beautifully situated on the South Branch of the Miramichi, about 25 miles distant from the mouth of the river stands the flourishing town of Loggieville with a population of about 1,200. The depot is in the business centre of the place and it is but a few steps from the station to the "Terminal" House, which is known to the travelling public as one of the best hotels on the Miramichi.

About one mile distant is a camping ground known as "Washburn" Beach. Here a number of pleasure-seekers have summer cottages. The shore affords excellent opportunity for bathing. During the last few years extensive improvements have been made throughout the town. Many new dwellings have been erected, and several streets opened.

At the present time the public school building is being enlarged and improved. The work is under the supervision of Wm. Henderson. The building will be ready to occupy at the opening of the term.

Today being the first anniversary of war between Britain and Germany some of the places of business in the town are observing the day as a holiday. Many of the townfolk are attending the patriotic picnic in Chatham.

Miss Ruby Baker of Boston is spending the vacation with her mother, Mrs. Alger Baker.

Mrs. Irving is spending a while at her cottage "Spruce Rest."

Mrs. Harry Ryan and children of Fredericton are visiting relatives in town.

Miss Janie Stymiest and Miss Clara Kelly are visiting relatives at New Jersey.

Wm. Whalen has recently purchased a new auto.

Miss Flaherty is spending the vacation with out-of-town relatives.

Miss Gussie Kelly is visiting Moncton relatives.

Mrs. Lewis, wife of Rev. A. W. Lewis, who was stationed with the Presbyterian congregation here about 11 years ago, is spending a few weeks in town. She is warmly welcomed by her friends here. Mrs. Lewis notes many changes throughout the town.

Miss Annie Dickson, organist of Knox church, is enjoying a month's vacation.

Red Cross work in the town is progressing favorably. The ladies are enthusiastic in their efforts to provide necessary comforts for the boys at the front.

WOMEN'S REALM

Fashion Notes

Serge Favorite for Misses' Wear

Houses specializing in dresses for misses' wear report serge as first favorite in the fabric line for garments of the service or utility classification.

Here the princess dress is strongly emphasized. A long waist line, fitted sleeves of the set-in variety finished with smartly shaped cuffs in a variety of designs are favored. In colors, navy leads, with African brown and field-mouse gray following in close order, says Nugent's Bulletin.

Charmeuse and a new hard-finished satin faced fabric called mervellous, silk plaids as entire dress fabrics, serge and satin combinations, and plaid taffeta in combination are among the dress fabric features. For evening wear changeable taffetas of exceeding beauty in pastel shades are shown.

Neck and tulle and Georgette crepe have not been overlooked in the latter cataloguing. For day time wear skirts are short, often box plaited; much braid is used in trimming. Self-trimming and touches of deftly applied hand embroidery give individuality to the evening frocks.

Trelawney of the Wells

A black net hat of the returned Trelawney shape is draped with the finest black Chantilly, one side of the brim alone being decorated with one huge yellow water-lily and a hard green bud, the softness and grace of the hat itself being cleverly shown up by the very thick and unyielding flower.—The Queen (London.)

Fitted and Loose Effects

In the new lines there are two distinct types of coats to be found, says the Dry Goods Economist. One shows the more fitted form and the other is the more easy-fitting style. At present the coat made on smart, easy-fitting lines continues to meet with the most success, and buyers are purchasing the more fitted garments very slowly. It is expected, however, that with the development of the season the more fitted effects will meet with better success than at the present time.

The loose garments that have been in vogue for so long have been particularly satisfactory, as a large proportion of the coats could be sold without the necessity of making any alterations, which is always a boon to the retailer.

Parasols for Bathing

A very smart adjunct to the up-to-date bathing outfit is the parasol, and one has become quite accustomed now to the rather incongruous spectacle of woman attired in skirts to the knees and equipped with parasol, reticule and shade hats, trimmed with ogil or cockade.

The girl who is an enthusiastic swimmer is also enthusiastic about silk jersey bathing suits, for their is nothing more comfortable in the water. These suits are rather high priced, but they come in charming styles, daintily colored, with pipings of white.—Chicago Journal.

Handkerchief Bathing Suit

Not from one handkerchief but from what would remind one of a half a dozen large blue silk handkerchiefs with white polka dotted borders! Four of them form the skirt, overlapping into sixteen points, as if the modiste had snipped the centers from the four squares, slipping them one after the other over a plain bloomer-ed swimming suit of dark blue taffeta.

The other two handkerchiefs form the back and front of the waist, and tie in knots on the shoulders, allowing the taffeta waist of the undersuit to show discreetly through. Another handkerchief from the same family may be knotted over the close rubber cap.—Philadelphia North American.

Lace in Demand

A couple of years ago there was a time when a yard of tulle was worth ten of lace, so far as decorative effect was concerned. Lace, no matter how lovely, no matter how old, was at a discount. Now lace is used again, so the woman who has any in the proverbial treasure chest should get it out, have it cleaned, and then take it to her dressmaker to see what can be done with it, says the Washington Herald.

Of course, it has always been in demand for negligees—for bodice caps if nothing else. But now lace tunics and lace sleeves, lace bodices, lace insets, ruffles and girdles are all used. Lace and organdie combine smartly.

An attractive frock shown in one of the marvelous little specialty shops is made of organdie, much tucked, with a wide lace belt or girde, through which colored velvet is run, to hang in long ends in front.

Checked Silk Handbags

In keeping with the demand for black and white accessories—black and white checked stockings are one of the new things—there are black and white handbags. They are made of checked silk in a smart design, and along the bottom of the bag there is a little double puff or ruching of black silk. These bags have silk strap handles and a metal clasp.—Chicago Herald.

Crepe Paper for Decoration

One can make up so many pretty, inexpensive table decorations nowadays that it is possible to have again,

A smart coat of russet-brown, suede-finished cloth, with black and brown checked serge and a Russell velvet "Tam" make up an attractive scheme for the vacation.

things very often. Candle shades and pate cups may be trimmed with novelty cut from crepe paper, which costs 15 cents a fold, and the patterns are varied.—Exchange.

Wooden Frames in Windows

The use of wooden frames covered with cheese cloth in the windows is a great help in keeping out dust. Take them out at night and raise the windows to their fullest if you will. They are a help when the dust of the street is being stirred by motor cars and trucks, says the Chicago Herald. Commonly the cheese cloth, finished with a wide hem, is fastened to the oblong wooden frames with thumb tacks. An inventive woman makes a casing out of her cheese cloth, slipping it over the frames like a pillow slip and fastening it with snaps similar to those used by tailors.

Reliable Recipes

Orangeade

Six oranges, one cupful of boiling water, sugar to taste, and soda water. Wash and wipe the oranges, pare off the rinds very thinly, put them in a pitcher with fourteen lumps of sugar, the boiling water, and the strained juice of the oranges. Cover the pitcher, and leave it until cold.

To serve, pour one-fourth of this quantity into a tumbler and fill it up with soda water and some small pieces of ice.

Iced Tea

Lemon tea is delicious. Make a cupful of tea, add the same quantity of lemonade, sweeten to taste, and serve very cold.

Lemonade

Wash and dry three large fresh lemons, pare them very thinly, and put the rind into a pitcher with the strained juice of the lemons, one-half cupful of sugar and a quart of boiling water. Stir until the sugar is dissolved, then cover the pitcher, and strain when cold.

Barley Water

Put two ounces of pearl barley in a saucepan, cover it with cold water, let it come to the boil, and boil for eight minutes. Then strain out the

How Thin People Can Put On Flesh

A New Discovery.

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That fat passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and funny sawdust diets. Omit the flesh cream rub-ons. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of those single Sargol tablets. In two weeks note the difference. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy, "stay there" fat should be the net result. Sargol charges your weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh, new red blood corpuscles—gives the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body.

Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people gain all the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month while taking Sargol, and the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a scientific combination of six of the best barley, throwing away the water. Put the barley in a pitcher, add the thinly sliced fresh-producing elements known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all druggists sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.

pared rind of one lemon and three lumps of sugar, pour over two cupfuls of boiling water, cover the pitcher, and leave it until cold; then strain the sieve. Put one-half pound of lump sugar and one and one-half cupfuls of water into a saucepan, let the sugar dissolve, then boil it to a syrup; pour this onto the fruit juice, adding three cupfuls of cold water. Serve cold.

Current Water

Stalk and pick over one and one-half pounds of ripe red currants, then smash them with a wooden spoon, adding as you do so one cupful of water. Next put the fruit into a preserving pan with one cupful of granulated sugar and stir over the fire until it begins to simmer, then rub it through a sieve. Put one-half pound of lump sugar and one and one-half cupfuls of water into a saucepan, let the sugar dissolve, then boil it to a syrup; pour this onto the fruit juice, adding three cupfuls of cold water. Serve cold.

Peach Fritters

Remove skins from three or four peaches and cut in small pieces. Mix and sift one cup flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, three tablespoons powdered sugar and one fourth teaspoon salt, says the Chicago Herald. Add one third cup milk gradually, while stirring constantly, and one egg well beaten. Then add peaches. Drop by spoonfuls into hot fat and fry until delicately brown. Drain on brown paper, sprinkle with powdered sugar and send to table on folded napkin, with lemon sauce.

Watermelon By-Products

Some new things in the food line are by-products manufactured from watermelons. Heretofore, each season, thousands of melons have gone to waste, because of inadequate marketing conditions, says the Chicago Journal. Now a process has been invented whereby table vinegar of highest grade can be made from them, as well as cooking oil, sirup, melon pickles and even cattle food.

Household Hints

Stitch for Centrepiece

If you wish to make a centerpiece mainly of leaves, try this stitch. First work an ordinary cat stitch from side to side, following the outline of the leaf. A cat stitch is a series of stitches taken from side to side between two lines, says the New Haven Journal-Courier. After the leaf is filled with cat stitch, take a new thread, and starting up the top of the leaf, take two tight buttonhole stitches where the threads cross, then carry the thread across to the next crossed stitches on the opposite side and again take two buttonhole stitches. Work back and forth this way until the leaf is filled. Cover the marked line of the leaf with Kensington outline and it is complete.

Freshening Up Rugs

If you have any delicately colored rugs that have become creased and shabby looking, this is the treatment for them: Turn the rugs upside down and wet the backs with a broom dipped and shaken out in cold water; then stretch the rugs out firmly on the floor, and secure the four corners with rustless tacks. It may be necessary to use a few more if the mats are inclined to shrink up. Warm water, to which a little vinegar has been added, will freshen up the colors in the rug, and can be used with great advantage.
