

Foreword

of his customers, proves him ignorant of his own welfare, and into the bargain cheats himself out of the rich storehouse of knowledge that can be entered only through the magic key intrusted to the Commercial Ambassador — that daily reviewer of the results of human endeavor of every sort, from desperate failure to brilliant success. Hoch der Ambassador! It is to him and for him that I have written this book.