CULTIVATING THE CHILD.

How Any Trait May Be Fixed In a

Normal Human Being.

There is not a single desirable attrioute which, lacking in a plant, may not be bred into it. Choose what improve-ment you wish in a flower, a fruit or a tree, and by crossing, selection, cultivation and persistence you can fix this desirable trait irrevocably. Pick out desirable trait irrevocably. Fee durany trait you want in your child, granted that he is a normal child, be it honesty, fairness, purity, levableness, industry, thrift, what not. THE GOLDFINCH.

Changes In Plumage That Are Puz-zling to the Novice.

Most every one in America is acquainted with the goldfinch, but many people know the bird by the name of lettuce bird on account of its bright yellow color. Goldfinch is a very appropriate name, as the bright yellow of the male when in breeding plumage is like burnished gold. The female goldfinch is more modestly dressed than her mate. The changes in plumage of the male are very interesting and to the novice somewhat puzzling. Until the student becomes acquainted with the bird he may wonder why he sees no males during the winter. The truth is at this season the flocks of supposed female goldfinches are really of both sexes, the male bird having assumed in the previous fall, usually by the end of October, a plumage closely resembling that of the female and young bird of the year. The male retains this inconspicuous dress until late in February, when one can notice a gradual change taking place in some of the birds. This renewal of feathers is actively continued through March and April, and by the first of May our resplendent bird is with us again. The song period with the male goldfinch continues as long as he wears his gold and black livery, for it com-mences as early as the middle of March and ends late in August. Goldfinches and ends late in August. Governments are very cleanly in their habits and bathe frequently. Their nests are exquisite pieces of bird architecture, the inside being lined with the softest. epair and cure any disease conplant down. The mother bird is the builder, her handsome consort during the nest building time devoting most of his efforts to singing to cheer his industrious mate.

Grant's Presence of Mind, An instance of great presence of mind was narrated by John Russell Young, says a writer in the Grand that gain of blood gives the Magazine. Once during the civil war, when Grant was in subordinate command, he was reconnoitering alone near the enemy's lines. Suddenly he found himself confronted by one of the Confederates' pickets, who was for arresting him. "Sho! Sho!" said Grant, with the utmost coolness. "Can't you see I am reconnoitering in the enemy's uniform? Don't make a noise. I shall be back directly." And he walked away quietly until out of the picket's sight, then ran as nimbly as he could.

Dust In One's Eyes. To "cast dust in one's eyes" perfectly explains itself. It is, however, interesting to know that Epaminondas at the battle of Tegea defeated the Spartans by masking his movements with a large body of cavalry. He caused the horsemen to gallop to and fro in front of the enemy in such a way as to raise a cloud of dust and so veiled the movements of his infantry and enabled them to take up a new and more advantageous position.

A Premier's Wit.

A woman once told Lord Palmerston that her maid, who had been with her in the Isle of Wight, objected to going thither again because the climate not "embracing" enough. "What am I to do with such a woman?" she asked. You had better take her to the Isle of Man next time," said Lord Palmerston.

A JOCULAR MONARCH.

van the Terrible Had Cold Blooded

Ivan the Terrible forgot neither his devotions nor his diversions. His palace alternately resounded with praying and carousing. For his pastime bears were brought from Novgorod. When from his window he perceived a group of citizens collected he let slip two or three of these ferocious animals, and his delight on beholding the flight of the terrified creatures, and especially on hearing the cries of the victims, was unbounded. His bursts of laughter were loud and long continued. To console those who were maimed for life he would sometimes send each of them a small piece of gold.

Another of his chief amusements was in the company of jesters, whose duty it was to divert him, especially before and after any executions, but they often paid dearly for an unseasonable

Among these none was more distinguished than Prince Gvosdef, who held a high rank at court.

The czar, being one day dissatisfied with a jest, poured over the prince's head the boiling contents of a soup basin. The agonized wretch prepared to retreat from the table, but the tyrant struck him with a knife, and he fell senseless to the floor. Dr. Arnolph was instantly called.

"Save my good servant!" cried the czar. "I have jested with him a little too hard."

"So hard," replied the other, "that only God and your majesty can re-store him to life. He no longer breathes."

Ivan expressed his contempt, called the deceased favorite a dog and continued his amusements. Another day, while he sat at table, the waywode of Staritza, Boris Titof, appeared, bowed to the ground and sa-luted him after the customary manner. "God save thee, my dear waywode. Thou deservest a proof of my favor." favor and wished him a happy reign.

Bulow's Wenderful Memory. Bulow had a wonderful memory, as was evidenced by his astonishing feat of memorizing Kiel's concerto, which the man who wrote it could not accompany without notes. His accuracy was almost infallible. He was once rehearsing a composition of Liszt's for orchestra in that composer's presence without notes. Liszt interrupted to say that a certain note should have been played piano. "No," replied Bulow, "it is sforzando." "Look and see," persisted the composer. The score was produc-ed. Bulow was right. How everybody did applaud! In the excitement one of the brass wind players lost his place.

"Look for a b flat in your part," said measures farther on I wish to begin."

The Word "Asphalt."

Of deceitful ancestry is the word "asphalt." Apparently it means "not slippery." The Greeks themselves were tempted to derive "asphaltos" "a," not, and "sphallo," make to fall on the bloed-making glands and the increased supply of pure, tich blood it produces. It is only when the blood is impoverished and impure that disease finds a soil in which to root. The "Discovery" purifies the blood and makes it antagonistic to disease. The results of Friday's cyclone in this and surrounding districts are very extensive, there being scarce a beam or other, out building that is not either demolished or more or less injured. There are over fifty barns that are either unroofed or a heap of debris, while the slate on not a few new houses was torn off in natches, like so much paper; and the beautiful stretches of forest land are haid in ruins, nothing but the small undergrowth and stubs of the mighty are left standing.
