SUGGESTIONS FOR THE "24TH."

Naturally the first thing that enters the mind of military men when the spring season opens is what will the 24th of May demonstration consist of. In years gone by and for many years, at that, it has been the custom of the local regiments to journey to some distant city, and there have a good time. It has been intimated by General Cotton, of the headquarters staff, that he would like the regiments from Toronto and Hamilton to go to Niagara-on-the-Lake for the holiday, and, while there indulge in some tactical exercises, and probably a sham battle thrown in for good measure. Nothing has been heard of this scheme by any of the local officers lately, and they are inclined to think that it has fallen through. One of the prominent military officers in this district has thought of a splendid idea that would do much to make the citizens stay at home and watch the doings. He suggests that the regiments of the fifteenth destrict—the 13th and 91st, the 38th of Brantford and the 19th of 5t. Catharines—combine for the holiday and have a real military day. He thinks it would be a good thing to have the out-of-town regiments come here on Saturday night and camp out over Sunday, and then on the Monday, which is the 24th, have a big field day, and probably a miniature sham battle, concluding the exercises about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and letting the men go and have a good time until the trains pull out for home. Then to put the finishing touches let the combined bands give a monster band concert in the new armories in the evening. The officer also thought it would not be out of the way to hold a garrison parade on Sunday, in which all two would not be out of the way to hold a garrison parade on Sunday, in which all two would not be out of the way to hold a garrison parade on Sunday, in which all two would not be out of the way to hold a garrison parade on Sunday, in which all surface has a proposably the shead garrison parade on Sunda would not be out of the way to hold a garrison parade on Sunday, in which all the units connected with the fifteenth district would not be out of the way to hold a garrison parade on Sunday, in which all the units connected with the fifteenth district would not be out of the way to hold a gard a promoned of the connected with the fifteenth and a promoned of the connected with the fifteenth and a promoned of the connected with the fifteenth and a promoned of the connected with the fifteenth and a promoned of the connected with the connected with the connected with the fifteenth and a promoned of the connected with the connected with

PRAISE FOR SIR FREDRICK.

Some trepidation was felt for military men, who feared that, on account of the slashing in the estimates for 1909 the militia grant would be reduced to such an extent that the number of regiments that usually go to the annual training camp would have to be cut in half. This has been a groundless fear as far as the city regiments go, though at one time the rural militia were in some danger of losing their annual drill. The grant this year is ample for all requirements, and although lower by three or four hundred thousand dollars than last year, this is explained by the fact that the Quebec Tercentenary last year cost the Government over five hundred thousand dollars. The danger, although passed, was very real and the militia of Canada owe a vote of thanks to its official head, Sir Frederick Borden, who so strongly objected to the curtailment of the military grant.

to its official head, Sir Frederick Borden, who so strongly objected to the curtailment of the military grant.

The suspension of the annual drill, if only for one year, would have a bad effect upon the militia generally. Some years ago this method was adopted when the Government became hard up, and several regiments had to go one, and in some cases even two years, without drill. The result was disastrous, both officers and men losing interest in the work. Regiments had practically to be reorganized, and the militia as a whole was very seriously impaired. To turn back the hands of progress by elimitating drill for a year, for more than half of the militia, would have been discouraging, to say nothing of the precedent created for future governments in times of money stringency.

dier boys have been eagerly awaiting the opportunity of getting into harness again, and it is expected that the spring drills of this year will be the best in the history of the Hamilton garrison. Ever since the new armories were opened they have been crowded with the members of the different regiments, who are delighted with their new quarters. The rank and file are more than satisfied with their rooms, while the sergeants and officers are tickled to death with their appointments. Every night one will find the quarters filled and the bowling alleys of the officers and sergeants are in constant demand. There is every reason to believe that the armories will prove an enticing spot for the military man well into the summer. The 13th Regiment held its first spring parade last evening, and in the new armories, too. There was a fair attendance of the regiment, although it was not up to the standard usually set by the regiment at the opening of the season. However, it is early yet, and by Friday next there should be one of those grand turnouts that have been the pride of the officers for years back. Col. Moore addressed the soldiers briefly, touching upon the rules and regulations for the new armory, and also what he The history of the Army Service Corps garrison parade on Sunday, in which all the units connected with the fifteenth district would participate. This would be, indeed, an inspiring scene, and there is not a loyal citizen of Hamilton who would not welcome such a sight.

The expense of bringing these regiments to Hamilton would amount to considerable, and if the City Council could see its way clear to give the scheme a little boost, there is no doubt but that Victoria Day will go down in the history of this city as being one of the most interesting days that Hamilton has enjoyed since the time of the carnival.

SOME HARD DRILL.

The schedule as laid down by the Government calls for twelve days of drill for the spring. To accomplish this the regiments will have to do some hard work. Two hours constitute half a day, and five hours a full day. The drill will consist largely of advance guard and outpost, regular company and battalion drill. The schedule of the local regiments has not been printed as yet, but it.

The marching and firing competition of the 13th Regiment will be held on Good Friday, as usual. This is the and unual event, and the competition between the companies has always been very keen. There promises to be no

geants of the two regiments, and it is expected that a schedule will be drawn up in a short time, with teams from each of the officers' and seggeants' messes. The officers have four alleys and the sergeants have three, and one has to get down early if he wishes to catch a place on the teams. The shooting gallery, which is under the company rooms, has not been completed, but the work is going on. SEVEN YEARS

I was an invalid for seven years from fearful Womb Trouble. I had falling womb, with constant pain in the back and front of my body and all down my legs. There was a heavy discharge, and this made me weak, sleepless, restless and miserable. Often I was obliged to be in bed for a month at a time. I was treated by several doctors, but their treatment did me no permanent good. The 13th Bugle Band is in fine shape now, and having got into its new quarters is having a glorious time. The band will be heard from in the near future, and will uphold its position as one of the leading bugle bands in the country. Col.-Sergt. Board of Health Bitterly Opposed to Finance Committee

New York, where he will pursue his vocal studies, the command of A company will fall on the shoulders of Lieut. Linton, who is the senior lieutenant. Lieut. Einton will be acting captain, and in the event of Capt. Skedden not returning within six months, will assume full charge of the company. He is very popular with the boys of the company. The regiment will lose an efficient officer in Capt. Skedden, who has devoted considerable time to the furtherance of military activity in this city. He will carry with him the best wishes for future success in whatever business or profession he enters. If the City Council attempts to act on the recommendation of the Finance Committee and enlarge the present isolation buildings on the hospital grounds at a cost of $10,000, the Board of Health will likely take steps to prevent it. The matter was discussed at a special meeting of the board last night, and a very strong resolution opposing the scheme was passed. It was moved by Frank Quinn, seconded by James Dowling, and read as follows: Capt. Moodie is in correspondence with the officials of the C. A. A. U. in regard to the holding of the spring meet of the latter association. In the event of such a thing taking place it will be held in the armories, and will be under the auspices of the 91st A. A.
