Leader's Speech. Sorel, Aug. 9.—A platform erected in the town park here yesterday was the centre of an unusually large crowd, comtreal and elsewhere, who had come to listen to the Hon. Mr. Laurier and his CLOTHS TWEEDS, down a large number of passengers from Montreal and intermediate points, and the different boats running into Sorel from Berthier and parishes along the Richelieu river brought their due contributions to the crowd. Capt. Louis Morasse, mayor of Sorel, presided at the meeting, having been called to the chair on motion of Philippe Beauchemin, president of the organization committee. He opened the proceedings by presenting an address, couched in the usual complimentary terms, to Mr. Laurier, on behalf of the citizens. The address had been and Trouserings, signed by all the members of the Sorel town council. Mr. Laurier replied briefly. Short speeches were next delivered by Mr. Bruneau, Ald. The assemblage which he had the honor to address was undoubtedly one of the most important that he had ever addressed [Cheers.] He was glad to meet on that platform, besides the young, brave and energetic member for Richelieu, Mr. Bruneau, such men as Mr. Beausoleil, who ably elucidated every question of which he treated; Hon. Mr. Marchand, Dr. Mignault of Yamaska, F. Langelier, and last, but not least, Mr. Tarte. [Applause.] He was glad to meet that large gathering of farmers, merchants, mechanics and laborers. What was the reason that that crowd had assembled? Because their minds were troubled with unrest and anxiety, caused by the indecision, weakness and tergiversation of the Federal government in regard to a very important question. [Loud applause.] A for a reason which neither the government nor the friends of the government dared to explain. A general election ession had been convoked instead. He had said over and over again that it was a question of fact, and that the federal government had a right to interfere, but it had never yet interferred. It had shuffled and dallied with the question all along. Why had it not interferred? He would tell them why, and in doing so he was speaking with a sense of his responsibilities as a public man speaking to his countrymen. It was because in this country Catholics and Protestants had each their own ideas on the subject of education, and that the ideas of each were different. ANGERS OUT, WALLACE IN.

It was a significant fact that Mr. Angers had stepped out of the cabinet while Clarke Wallace remained in it. Mr. Angers was in favor of separate schools, while Clarke Wallace was opposed to them. Yet why had Mr. Angers left the government when it had stated that it would restore separate schools in Manitoba? Because he felt and he knew that the government did not mean what it said. (Cheers). He (Mr. Laurier) had been accused by the holy Minerve and others who proclaimed their ardent love of religion, when it paid them to do so, that he was a man of no religion. He did not boast of being very religious, but he could conscientionsly claim that he was as religious as Mr. Ouimet, or Sir Adolphe at election times. (Applause). The statement that Liberals had no religion was a low trick resorted for political purposes. Mr. Stewart did not come and we feared viled as he had been reviled by the Conservative press. Today he (Mr. Laurier) was denounced by the Conservative press as being a man devoid of religion, the day might come when justice would be meted out to him as well as it had been to Fournier. (Cheers). There was one thing which he would never do. For no reason whatever would he do or help to do anything of which his conscience, as an honest man, did not approve. A CHINESE MADSTONE.

Ben R. Spradley, an attache of the St. curious, and what he asserts to be one of the most usesul and valuable of articles-It is a Chinese snake stone, and there is said to be but one other in the country Indeed the one in Mr. Spradley's possessforeigners had no uspicion of the intend-been cut in two by Mr, Spradley, and half ion is but half a one, the original having of it given to a friend. The stone looks like a piece of oblong cannel coal, and is about one-eighth of an inch in thickness, three-eighths of an inch wide, and half an inch long. It is as light as a piece of cork, possesses a polished surface, and can be easily cut with a knife. It is not a stone, in the proper sense of the word, but is a manufactured article, and is porous. To cure snake bites or poisonous wounds of a similar nature with the stone the wound must first be scarified. Then the stone is applied to the wound. Each morning and evening it is taken off and put into a glass of lukewarm water to remain a few moments, until it discharges the wound has been washed in a strong solution of salt water and again scarified, the stone, which in the meantime has been rubbed in warm ashes until dry, is

> "I secured the stone," said Mr. Spradley, "from my father more than thirty the man who made it. From 1874 to 1877 I was with the party which was putting through the Texas Pacific Railroad, and during that time cured several of the party who were bitten by rattlers and other poisonous snakes. I have frequently loaned the stone to friends, and I cut the original in two, giving half of it to a particular friend of mine. I have not used the stone for some time, but I am ready to give a test of its merits at any time." Following are some excerpts from a written history of the stone, in the possession of Mr. Spradley: "This remedy for the prevention of schoolmate of his who was also a captain He also obtained full directions for making the same. He said the captain told he obtained it from a Chinese juggler, who frequently exhibited poisonous snakes and would even allow them to bite him. for the gratification of his audience, and then apply a piece of the stone, without receiving the least injury. The said captain, by paying the juggler liberally, and agreeing not to make any for sale in China, obtained the recipe for making, This remedy was applied by my father and mother to more than 200 persons within a lapse of forty years, and never failed in a single instance to affect a cure," Attached to this written history, which is signed by James J. Parker, Cabin Point. Surrey County, Va., is a certificate of cures performed by means of the stone by Parker's mother, which is signed by twenty-six citizen's of Cabin Point, the certificate reading as follows: "We, the undersigned citizens of Cabin Point, County of Surry and State of Virginia, do confidently believe the snake stone in the possession of James J. Parker to be infallible as a preventive of hydrophobia and a cure for all bites of a poisonous character, we having known and heard of persons who were unquestionably bitten by mad dogs and poisonous reptiles, who have visited this great remedy with never-failing success."

Of the twenty-six signers of the certificate, Mr. Spradley says all are now deadexcept one, a Mr. J. Deal, who lives in Hoochinoo is nothing more nor less than raw alcohol, being distilled mainly from raw sugar or molasses and cornmeal. Undiluted, the stuff has a double proof strength, makes a 'drunk' come freely, and but a few swallows of it will set a man howling in demoniac glee, and nothing but an Indian with his copper-lined stomach can stand a protracted spree on it. The Kake Indians probably lead all others in the manufacture of these spirits, and as proof of their knowledge in the art of making a double-proof article, we give the particulars of the awful fate of an expert Kake distiller which happened recently on that island. It seems that the Indian, while engaged in the manipulation of his little coal oil can still, imbibed too freely of its ticklings, and in a drunken stupor lay down by his fire of cedar logs and fell asleep, with his face uncomfortably close to the flames. Through some reason, known only to the medical fraterniiy, gas accumulated in the stomach, and the breath of the sleeper reaching the flames, this alcohol gas ignited. The sleeper suddenly leaped to his feet with a terrifying scream and fell back again writhing in agony. The man was burning internally. Smoke and even flames were issuing from his mouth, and his agony was something awful. His loud screeching brought the members of the camp about him, who looked on in silent, terror-stricken awe. unable to do anything for his relief.
