going through their mannovers, and peared to understand on as well as they did. At first they sang lively tunes, you know; and purty soon, when they got tired of these, they commenced on paalms

At last the gale coaxed Jim Blowhard to sing 'Old Hundred.' You know what an old tearin' bass voice Jim has. When he commenced, the dog began to get dreadfully interested. He pinted his nose right up at the ceilin' and every time Jim came & the Jow notes he'd sorter how!.

"" Who ? Jim!"

" Yo, blast you, the dog. Blowhard he surge away for a while, and jest then he turnet. I round and kinder bit his hind dears."

egs. h a mighty! Blowhard!"

No, ou all fired fool you, the dog of course. Then see I to the old woman—
Nancy Jsa se, see I, 'you jest bet your boot shat dog's something in his head.' And Nancy Jan e, see she, 'You git out—
I shant's do it. 'Jest then the dog picked something ap quickr's a streak. I didn't pay much at 'ention to it, and nobody moticed it.

"When sthem's at finished, all the gals

pay much at ention to it, and nobody moticed it.

When Slewh ard finished, all the gals carewided round ht m and comenced fattering him, when a saddenly wall heard a moise. It was the orfulest mixed up meise ever anybotly heard. Everybedy was scared nearly to death. Six of the gals fainted away in Blowhard's arms all at once. They wer hangin onto him from all sides, like string beaus on a pole. Blowhard sot at ill for a monent or two; it was more baugg'ta than he could stand, and he witted right off his seat onto the flore, and tried to errawl under the sofa. Before he get snor'n his head and aboulders under, the gals all came to and caught him by the foot and tried to a round the sofa lag and bellowed maurder; and the gals screeched and some on em' ran round the room nimeten times a minnit before they could find emything else to faint onto.

A new book of Nursery Rhymes, said to be the joint production of members and leave members of the Dominion Cabinet, has been sent to us for review. As an uncompromising foe of the Government it would be impossible for us to give it a favorable notice. Anyway, we couldn't do it. It does seem to us if the members of the Government would stick totheir legitimate business and leave poetry to those who know more about it, it would be better for the country. We give a few samples of this disgusting Dr. J Briggs' Allevantor, for the Cure of Catarrh Kenralgia, Rheumatiam &c., s unrivalled. In a thorough trial of its virtues, all will acknowledge its superiority. Fold by Druggists.
