Obituary.

RT. REV. MONSIGNOR REARDON. Rt. Rev. Monsignor Reardon, P.P. denly, on Friday last, death occurring in the Presbytery. Beloved by his parishinoners, his passing on the eve And lovely through the wreathed of the festival of Christmas changed joy into sorrow, for one who had guided the spiritual welfare of the people for almost quarter of a century ad left them to mourn. In their adversity and prosperity he watched with them as a father. Ever careful over his flock he advised and offered comfort, always the holy priest and He countless foes withstood. sincere friend. During the world war the deceased priest was a patriot of the truest type. In all the movements to advance the cause of Empire he took a very prominent part in word Through which fun and mirth peepe and deed, and the town of Placentia offered its best manhood to enlist in the ranks of army and navy. After the armistice the late Monsignor began the work of the erection of a Till John, moving in his slumber, monument to Placentia's dead, and June 23rd last, saw its completion. when, following Solemn High Mass, bishop Roche Monsignor Reardon was born in St. John's 73 years ago, and after spending several years at St. Bonaventure's College went to Ireland, taking passage by sailing vessel, leaving here in 1866. He took up studies for the priesthood in All Hallows College 15th, he was ordained Priest by the late Rt. Rev. Bishop Power, and was attached to the Cathedral for a few months. In 1873 he was sent to Harbor Breton, a parish also held by the late Most Rev. Archbishop Howley and the late Very Rev. Father Clarke, P.P., Torbay. After laboring there for several years he was transferred to St. Mary's, and Sept. 15th, 1897, the date of his silver jubilee as a priest was appointed to Placentia by Bishop Howley, where he carried out the last years of his sacredotal Domestic Prelate. He was the oldest priest in the Archdiocese, and the oldest in the Dominion except Rt. Rev. Monsignor Donnelly, who celebrated his golden jubilee a few weeks ago. During his Priesthood, Monsignor Reardon was most active in advancing education in the different parishes over which he presided. In Placentia the Convent School under his guidfew of the Priests now ordained for the Archdiocese were airectly under Radiator Burst.

This morning a radiator in the Board of Works building burst and flooded the place with water. The accident happened in the Food Control office but fortunately no one was present at the time. The heat had been off from the building during quence. Had the accident happened ent it would likely affect the sugar situation. The charwoman who was called to wipe up the water remarked that the accident was an act of Providence, but what she meant is not

A Fable for Christmas. (A. J. O'R.) In two lonely islet spots A stately angel stood; Fairest of all angels, He, The angel of Nativity,—
He had both the cots in sight, Watching, guarding, day and night.

Sturdy babe was John, I trow, Eyes of blue and hair of tow,— Fists drawn tight; as if in sleep Patsy, in the other cot, Watched the sunbeams glance, Watched the wreathed sea mists danc Like his brother, eyes of blue,

, through. Long the cots stood side by side And the babies, slumbering, waking Grew in lusty baby pride Flung his arm o'er Patsy's cot-Little thinking that its weight Was not any easy freightit was unveiled by His Grace Arch-Life within his little brother

> From the other cot arose Little fists thrust at the weight John pressed brother harder, think Half awake—to stop the fuss, realized the crying Meant his little brother dying.

Convulsed limbs, that in commotion Strive to grasp the breath of life, Kick as if in deadly strife; Till the fury of commotion Sets John's cot in dangerous motion Nearly wakes John up at last.

Then that stately angel bending Lifts John's arm, from Patsy's cot, Tucks it snugly, firmly in. Speaks, Oh, gently, yet speaks chid-

Must not with his strong Life from out his little brother. Then lifts Patsy quickly up, Marks the blood of suffocation From the baby's cheek recede, And, like tide of inundation.

"Little boys," the angel said, Each has its own little bed. Each is free to sleep or play, Or coo, or crow in its own way: Must be friendly, must be kind, In these little cots confined. And, if, in the coming night Furious hawk or dangerous kite Or the taloned eagle dread lamor make around your bed, Join together, heart and hand, Lo. the Star of Peace—The Dawn!

Xmas Festival at Bar Haven.

Special to Evening Telegram. BAR HAVEN, To-day. At St. Francis Xavier's Church, Solemn High Mass was celebrated at midnight on Christmas Eve, by Rev. Fr. Cacciola. At 9 o'clock on Xmas morning, a grand musical programme

inder the direction of Mr. Bernard Murphy, was rendered during High Mass. This mass was for the children of the parish and was attended by a large congregation. Again at 11 a.m., there was High Mass at which pleasing Xmas Carols were sung. Rev. Fr. Cacciola being the celebrant and the Sanctuary boys of Bar Haven assistants. Musical Vespers in the evening brought a memorable Xmas celebration to a close.

Carol Service at St. Thomas's.

The Carol Service held at St. Thom as's on Christmas Eve provided a real musical treat for all who attended it. The full choir was present and the excellent quality of their singing reflects great credit on their organist and choirmaster, Mr. H. W. Stirling. The carols rendered were all new ones, recently received from England, and were as follows: "Noel," Carol: Anthem. "On a Christmas Morn"; "Sleep, Holy Babe"; "Christus Natus Hodie": "When Jesus Came to Bethlehem": "A Virgin Unspotted": Breathe, Breathe O'er a World of "See Amid the Winter's Snow": "On the Birthday of Our King"; "O Holy Star, O Lovely Star"; "The Babe in Bethlehem's Manger Laid." The Carol "See Amid the Winter's Snow" was beautifully rendered by Miss E. Stirling and Mr. T. Seymour. Last night the carols were repeated and were much again apppreciated. At this service, besides

End of the Dresden.

The German cruiser Dresden wa the only ship of Vice-Admiral von Spee's squadron that escaped from the battle fought on Dec. 8, 1914, off the Falkland Island in the South Atlantic. The Dresden, which had sailed back into the Pacific was discovered off the Island of Juan Fernandez on March 14, 1915, by the cruisers Kent and Glasgow and the armed liner Orama, and after a brief en gagement, was blown up by her own crew to prevent capture. She had, of course, no chance against her op ponents. It transpired that the Dresden was in Chilian waters when th attack was made upon her, that is she was within three miles of the island which belongs to Chili. The British Government made full apology to Chili when the circumstances were brought to their attention the solos of Mr. Seymour and Miss pointing out at the same time that Stirling, Miss Olive Major also sang the Dresden had not been interned that is taken possession of by Chili, as it was her duty as a neutral to do if the enemy ship sought refuge; and further, that the Dresden's flag was flying and her guns trained for action when sighted.
