Re Had a Consultance. "Wonderful fellow, that Herlock Selmes," remarked the captain a few evenings age in the amokeroom. "I member the occasion when I was in troduced to him. It was at a crush at the Van Astorbifa. There was an aw-ful crowd, and we were standing up in a corner talking, when all at once I missed my watch. ""What's the matter?' inquired the detective when he noticed that I was upset, and I told him.

"Looking at the time, he observed, speaking so as to be heard for a yard or two around, 'Gentlemen, my friend here has lost his watch, but fortunately it is a striking repeater, and as it is now fifty-eight minutes to 10 when it strikes the hour we shall be sure to hear it and can so detect the thief if you will kindly listen for it.'

"Two or three fellows laughed, but all took it good naturedly except an ugly looking foreigner, who colored up under his dirt and tried to shuffle away. "That's our man,' said Solmes. "And so it was, for my watch was found on him. "Was it a repeater? Oh, no! There's where the talent came in."

Hanged and Burled and Lived. is not given to many men to be hanged and buried and yet be able to tell the tale, but such was the experience of one John Bartendale, who was executed at York in 1634 for felony. After his body had hung for nearly an hour it was buried. A gentleman passing by the grave, which had not been filled up, thought he saw the earth move, and with the help of his servant he disinterred the convict, who was still alive. It was the custom in those days to bury suicides and executed criminals without any coffin. The man was care-fully treated and entirely recovered. He became hostler at the coaching house in York and lived a most ex-He emplary life. When asked what he could tell in relation to hanging, as having experienced it; he replied, "That when I was turned off flashes of fire seemed to dart from my eyes, from which I fell into a state of darkness and insensibility."

Not Superstitious, But-

"No, I am not a believer in the supernatural," said the hard headed woman. Nevertheless, she went on to tell how some oriental personage she had met had declared that if you lost anything it is no good to look about for it, but to visualize it. Last week this woman lost a valuable hatpin. She searched high and low for it in vain. Then all of a sudden she remembered the words of the native, and she sat down and closed her eyes tightly and thought of noth-ing but her loss. A few minutes passed, and upon a disk of darkness there appeared the bright outline of a hat-pin seen through the folds of a blanket. Immediately afterward my friend wa startled by her maid's voice: "I hav "I have found the pin, ma'am. It was lying in the folds of a blanket on your bed!"--New York Commercial Advertiser.

Wireless Preferred to Cable. Sydney, N. S., Nov. 4.—The Do-minion Government cable steamer Tyrian left this port yesterday morning to kay a cable from Grosse Isle to Bryan Island, a distance of ten miles, and from Bryan Island to Anticosti, a distance of 110 miles. Government Engineer Keeley, who installed the wireless telegraphy sta-tion at Belle Isle, will have charge of laying the cable. He said yester-day that the Dominion Government's wireless station at Belle Isle was working perfectly and the system was so easy of operation that the operators used it in preference to the cable, which also connected the points linked by the Marconi sys-tem. "I expect." said Mr. Kosley "thet
