Letter.

A General Shake-Up in the Army Anticipated-Stormy Cabinet Meetings -Col. Henry's Career.

Paris, Sept. 1.-Lieut.-Col. Henry has committed suicide, having cut his throat with a razor he had concealed in his valise.

The fact of the suicide became known at Mont Valerien about 9 Henry was lying dead in a pool of throat. Shortly before midnight Madame Henry, who had been informed, went to the fortress and was admitted, the officials granting her permission to pass the night beside the body.

Figaro believes that the Chamber of Deputies will be convoked in extraordinary session, and that a strong parliamentary commission of inquiry will be appointed.

M. Cavaignac has declined to accept the resignation of Gen. Gonse, under chief of the general's staff.

COL. HENRY'S CONFESSION. When Lieut.-Col. Henry was summoned to the residence of the minister for war he found assembled there Col. Paty de Cleum, Count Esterhazy, Gen. De Boisdeffre, Gen, Roget and M. Cavaignac. The minister for war had the suspected letter on his desk. He took it up and said to Henry: "You did not mention the name of the agent who furnished this letter. My attention has been called to the fact that on the docket there is no name.' Col. Henry beat his forehead and then said he had no memory for names and had forgotten the name in this case, but he would know the man if he saw him. "It is a pity you have forgotten," said M. Calaignac, dryly. "We think the letter a forgery, and that you have been duped by a clever forger. Henry declared his belief in its authenticity, but in a very faint voice. "Come," said the minister, "no agent ever gave it to you. You wrote it in encil to disguise your handwriting the better. You are the forger!" The colonel's speech grew thick, but he denied the charge. Then it was repeated, and he gave fresh explanation, but his tongue seemed to cleave to the roof of his mouth, and it was feared that he would have an apoplec-tic stroke. "On your honor as a soldier," said M. Cavaignac, more gently, "did you or did you not write that letter?" "Since you appeal to my soldierly honor, it was I who wrote it," he re-

ANOTHER ACCOUNT. says the scene during Lieut.-Col. Henry's avowal was painful. When he saw it was almost useless to deny further, his tongue grew too thick for his mouth, and he was unable to speak. It was feared that he would have an apopletic stroke. After his arrest he was permitted to visit his wife while on his way to the fortress at Mont Valerin. She thought he really had a fit. He addressed her as "My poor wife," adding: "I am under The officer accompanying him was under orders not to lose sight of and B.

All three proceeded to his bedroom to get the necessary clothing. Henry then clasped his wife in his arms and exclaim ed: "My conscience is pure and free from every sting." This exclamation is much commented upon, as going to show that he may possibly have forged the letter under orders from his

AT ZOLA'S TRIAL. During the recent Zola trial, Henry accused Col. Picquart of falsifying telegrams. A duel followed, in which Henry was wounded. The next scene occurred in the chamber of deputies, where Col. Picquart proclaimed the letter a forgery, and, as a result, was arrested, while Henry's villainy was ewarded by his being appointed Col. Picquart's successor in the intelligence department. It is now evident that Henry forged the letter with the express object of paralyzing Col. Picquart's efforts to expose Major Count Esterhazy, and to get a revision of the Dreyfus case. The letter was written in bad French—a fact which first led it to be regarded as spurious.

HENRY'S CAREER. Lieut.-Col. Henry was a peasant's son. He was born at Pozey, in Marne, in 1848, and enlisted in a foot regiment as his brother's substitute in 1883. He had a good military record TENDERS WILL BE RECEIVED, AD. 1883. ment as his brother's substitute in 1883. He had a good military record for bravery and inexorable discipline. He was a prisoner of war in 1870, and was wounded in the Aigerian campaign. He retained much of the rough and ready manners of a non-commissioned officer. He was lacking in education, spoke no foreign language and cation, spoke no foreign language and owed his promotion primarily to his reputation for blunt straightforwardness. PARIS THRILLED. M. Faure has deferred his intended return to Havre. It would be impossible to describe the sensation that has thrilled Paris, and it is not unlikely that at the next meeting of the Chamber of deputies the government will be defeated. SHAKE-UP IN THE ARMY. Gen. Le Mouton De Boisdeffre, chief of the general staff of the French army, tendered his resignation to the forged evidence. M. Cavaignac, the minister of war, in reply, asked Gen. De Boisdeffre to remain to "see justice rendered in the matter." Gen. De Boisdeffre thanked M. Cavaignac for proofs of his esteem, but persisted in his resignation. He will be replaced therefor by Gen. Renouard, director of the military college. Col. Henry's confession threaten to rekindle the Dreyfus agitation more heatedly than ever, and seems likely to shake public confidence in the army. Even the Liberte, a strong anti-Dreyfus organ, says: "It must cause the deepest pain to all honorable men that officers of such standing show such a lack of moral sense." The Temps asserts that the disclosures made to the ministers have decided the minister of war to place Major Count Esterhazy on the retired list. STORMY SESSION OF THE CABI-

The cabinet held two stormy sittings under the presidency of M. Faure. It finally rose between 6 and 7 o'clock, having apparently failed to arrive a: a decision on the question of revising the Dreyfus sentence, for the customary official note was not issued. It is possible, however, looking to the excited state of public feeling, that the government deems it advisable to proceed cautiously and to conceal its de-cisions for the present. M. Del Casse, minister of foreign affairs, is said to blood, with a terrible gash in his have been violently attacked by his colleagues for having been ignorant of the intention of Emperor Nicholas to issue his disarmament proclamation, but in face of the revival of the Dreyfus affair, the disarmament proposal has taken quite a secondary place. It is alleged that several ministers, including M. Brisson, the premier; Maureljio, minister of commerce and M. Troulliot, minister of the colonies, demanded a revision, and the immediate supersession of several staff officers. M. Cavaignac, however, opposed this course, on the ground that Lieut.-Col. this Henry's forgery had not altered the case as affecting Dreyfus' guilt. The

In any case, the suicide occurred shortly after the prisoner had | Church. received a visit from one of the general staff, who, on leaving, ordered the sentry on duty before Col. Henry's place of confinement not to disturb the prisoner, as he had a lot of work to do. It is recalled that a similar opportunity to commit suicide was afforded to Dreyfus, who, however, refused to profit by it.

WHOLESALE RESIGNATIONS OF ARMY OFFICERS PROBABLE. It is generally believed that the rest of the general staff of the French army will follow the example of Gen. Boisdeffre, the chief of staff, and Gen. Gonse, the under chief, and tender their resignations. HAD ACCOMPLICES. It appears that the minister for war, M. Cavaignac, is convinced that Col. Henry had accomplices in the forgery of the incriminating document, and there are persistent reports that Col. Paty de Cleum will shortly be arrested. NEW TRIAL FOR DREYFUS. In this connection it is reported that the minister of justice, M. Sarrion, has already taken steps to grant Dreyfus a new trial. London, Sept. 1.-All the newspaper comment in London, Berlin, Vienna and elsewhere, regards a revision of the Dreyfus case as now inevitable.
