WHEN the police court was called to order When the police court was called to order yesterday morning, Magistrate Macrae was confronted with a formidable docket. As usual, the "homing" schooners tended rather to increase the supply of "plain drunks," of which the list was chiefly composed. Turning then to the ordinary business of the day, the court ordered Alfred Deaken to pay $5 for driving a wagon over the park roads. The case against J. Mackie was withdrawn. C.A., held in the board of trade rooms yesterday, was not as largely attended as could have been desired, yet the gentlemen present certainly represented Victoria's best business men. The Trassurer's report showed that since the re-opening of the rooms in March the income has been equal to the expenditure. Although the rooms are not as attractive as they used to be, still the average number of visitors daily is sixty, showing that there is a demand for the work and that the rooms should be kept open. A general disquession of the work was indulged in, but no definite action taken as to future development; the general sentiment being velopment; the general sentiment being that a canvass should be made to meet the estimated budget for next year's work of $2 600, and that the work should be pushed forward and the association made an institution works so the disc tution worthy of the city.

There was wild excitement on board the Northern Pacific steamship Sikh during the hour or so she was in port Sunday evening. It was caused by two of her Japanese passengers temporarily leaving two others when the steamer arrived here and coming into town. The forsaken ones were called upon by the ship's purser to produce their tickets before proceeding on the voyage, and not having them were "fired" off the steamer. They at once sought their comrades, and on finding them and getting their tickets hurried back to the vessel but were too late—the steamer had sailed, taking all their personal effects The Japanese, however, will not be allowed to taking all their personal effects The Japanese, however, will not be allowed to suffer loss by the N.P.
