USEFUL THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT POULTRY.

THE POULTRY YARD.

FOOD FOR ADULTS.

VERVTHING produced must proceed from something. Food is the foundation of all ani mal life, just as by fertilization proceeds healthy vegetable production.

Hens are live stock and, like all animals, should eat to maintain their species, then to transform into either flesh, fat or eggs, the surplus food they are apt to take.

First—The free hen. The hen being omnivorous her subsistence is an easy matter when she can go and come and wander about all day long. Those which live at liberty in the farm yard and its neighborhood, which can visit the stables whenever they wish, the vicinity of the kitchen, the manure piles, which can run on the street, in the orchard, fields and meadows, everything found is good for them and some scrap of food is picked up everywhere. Nothing escapes their notice; scattered grain, oats in horse dung, vegetable peelings, thousands of waste matters and myriads, to us, of invisible insects, weeds to be met with almost everywhere, near roads, by the sides of ditches, around fences, etc. Running around thus, hens partly feed themselves and, in fact, during the summer months, but little need be given them. Nevertheless, there is one fact to be noted : Are these external supplies in proportion to the number of fowls in your poultry house? The poultry raiser should supply such substance in proportion to what is lacking. Such should be the extent of his intervention at all times. Therefore, he should distribute, measure Those which lost, to them once or twice per day, and always in the

This band is light, neat and durable. It is easily put on and it "stays on" SURE. To put Band on, place it around the fowl's leg. Press it together. Then take the small locking piece with slot in it and slip it over the parts of the band that project outward. Then turn locking piece so that slot runs in the same direction as the band, i.e., horizontally. Then bend down backwards the two projecting pieces, flat with the rest of the band. The band is then on "to stay." This is extremely important, for it is most provoking to have a lot of birds scored and a week later find half the bands off. To have the birds scored again costs money. The "Peerless" stays on. It CAN'T come off. Price, post paid, 30c. per dozen. State breed and sex when order ng. H. B.
