

NOTES OF THE MONTH.

On the 12th of July a serious riot took place, between the Orangemen and Roman Catholics in Montreal, resulting in the death of one of the Orangemen.

Not wishing to disturb the peace of the city, the Orangemen, at the request of leading citizens, waived their right to a "procession," on the promise of the authorities that they would be protected in attending religious exercises, without their regalia. Faith was not kept with the Orangemen; a serious disturbance and reign of terror for a time was the result. Resolutions of Censure on the Mayor have been passed by mostly all the Orange Lodges in Ontario—pity that conduct so partial and culpable could not be punished more severely than by censure. 'Tis high time that distinctions between the rights of different creeds should cease, and the rights of all equally recognized. It is high time that partiality or cowardice in high places came to an end, otherwise a discontented, distrustful and disloyal spirit will manifest itself among a very important class of subjects, now the most peaceable and law abiding.
