Parish Notes

October, 1905, will long be remembered as a bright month, full of thanksgivings and sunshine. Even the farewells of the month have been not altogether sad, but accompanied by gifts and testimonials. On Oct. 22nd was celebrated the centenary of the Battle of Trafalgar and special services of praise and thanksgiving were offered up in every church in the Empire. At St. George's the day was specially marked by the large congregations, good singing and patriotic but not boastful sermons. Mrs. Stewart Houston sang Kipling's Recessional during the offertory, and her beautiful voice rang through the Church the solemn words of warning and recollection. In the afternoon the Army and Navy Veterans had a parade service, at which their Chaplain, Prof. Clark, preached. Sunday, Oct. 29th, was observed as our parochial Harvest Festival, Oct. 26th having been appointed as Thanksgiving Day. The Church was beautifully decorated by four members of the Sanctuary Guild and one associate member.

The grain used was literally "first-fruits," being the choice specimens sent down for special exhibition. Prof. Clark preached in the morning and the Rector in the evening, and the offertories throughout the day were given towards paying off the floating debt of the Church. This floating debt reappears annually, the truth being that the Church's income does not come up to its necessary expenditure. In the afternoon the annual pound service was held and packets were presented by the children for the old people.

We have to extend a welcome to the following new members who have taken seats in St. George's:—Mr. Donald Macdonald and Dr. Elliott, of Beverley St.; Messrs. J. E. Cameron, Garnet Vale and David Graham.

Special preachers during the month have been the Reverends Prof. Clark, Prof. Jenks and E. C. Cayley.

The Librarian of the Sunday School appeals for contributions of books for the Library. Has no one any nice story books they no longer need at home?

The Bible Class for Young Women, on Sunday afternoons, is conducted by Miss Boulton.

The new Superintendent of the Sunday School is Mr. Hamilton Mockridge, youngest son of the Rev. Charles Mockridge, who many years ago was curate at St. George's.

The name of Addie Dye has often been printed in this magazine, in old days, as a prize-winner in the Sunday School, and latterly as teacher and officer in school and guild. It is with regret we record her departure from Toronto and give her our best wishes for the future. She had many friends here and many parting gifts, but none touched her more than those presented by the Sunday School and St. Agatha's Guild—a writing case and a long gun-metal watch chain.
