

accomplished, and let our medical education be so directed as to bring about simplicity in living, as near as possible, to the normal functions of our organs, and our generation will be greatly benefited.