The Danforth section of the city had the most enthusiastic celebration of peace day. Over 70,000 of the people across the Don participated in one way dral and other churches on Wednesday. Copies of a special order of service were distributed to the schools of the city for use, and at a joint meeting of London schools 20,000 children took part in the exercises.

Time of Troops Extended

Rain which began last night continued thruout the whole of Sunday but this fact did not prevent crowds of persons from traversing the route of yesterday's victory parade to see the decorations and watch the comings and goings of the allied troops, who were busy the entire day sight-seeing.

The plans for the early departure or another and most of the houses were decorated with flags and color; many of the stores made special displays. But more than anything else was the glad free-will way in which the populace came out—men, women and children. It is now the most homelike section of Toronto: thousands of homes, all comparatively new. There is more family life in this new district and apparently more children in the homes than in any other part of the contingent of returned soldiers in uniform and mutti citizens, fraternal societies and a group of Riverdale residents in Calithumpian costumes. The route of the parade was Danforth to Logan and thence to Withrow Park.
