IMMIGRANTS ARE TOLD "FAIRY TALES" OF CANADA

Emigration Literature Provided in Old Land Assures a Great Reception Here.

Three special trains loaded with new citizens arrived at the Union station last night. Some of them will go on farms, the others have to be provided with work. Many more are coming.

These poor people, they say, were told that was a great welcome awaiting them on arrival; that the government had a large staff of guides and agents who would give every assistance to the new comers on their arrival, to enable them to get quickly settled, and obtain work.

They were warned, too, not to apply to outside parties for information or advice, as it would be provided free and they were to be taken care of by government officials, and to be in attendance at the place of landing, but would also travel on all railway trains carrying more passengers than the seaports, in order to give them advice and protection en route.

This is probably startling news to many of the emigrants, but the statement of a disappointed emigrant, but taken from the official handbook of information on Canada, issued by the emigration office, 31 Broadway, Westminster, London, England, which is run by the British papers advertisement agency, the London agents that state that emigrants booking through them will receive "government" letters of introduction, guaranteeing them, and arranging with new arrivals.

Where are those officials to be found? Were the emigrants to be found at the depot, that will take in the weary travelers without money, give them free temporary accommodation, and find them work.

The only place in Toronto that fulfills part of the above is the Ontario immigration office at the Union station, and they are ready to supply farm help. Is it any wonder that new arrivals complain of being misled here under misrepresentation?

The executive committee of the league have rented the old postoffice on Front-street, which they propose to fit up, equip and open immediately. Funds are urgently required to enable the league to carry out their plan.

The committee hope to be able to report at the meeting to be held on Thursday evening at Victoria Hall, Queen-street, that sufficient funds are in hand to cover the cost of the work for this season.

At the meeting some very interesting facts will be related that will open the eyes of the public to the character of the permanent quarters to be provided later will entirely depend upon the support received from the public.

THE SITE OF KNOX CHURCH TO-DAY LAST PICTURE OF KNOX SCHOOL HOUSE

ON SATURDAY we printed a picture of Old Knox Church and Knox School House. To-day we show the empty space where once and for so long Old Knox Church stood. Also we show the last picture of the School House it was possible to take. The men on the roof had already begun the work of demolition.

The first of these pictures show the West Wall of our present building, whereon the new building will adjoin, and which will then be removed. The second picture of the School House gives you another idea of the extent of space the new store will occupy.

IN RESTRAINT IS DANGER SAYS MR. GOLDWIN SMITH. Noted Scholar Tells Why He Will Support the Rational Sunday League.

The new Canadian Rational Sunday League, which was inaugurated last Friday afternoon for the purpose of opposing "tyrannical and restrictive legislation" regarding Sunday, and to promote healthy and innocent recreation on Sundays, numbers among its supporters Prof. Goldwin Smith.

On Saturday afternoon the World waited upon the distinguished scholar at his residence, and had some conversation with him about the movement. Mr. Smith said that he felt himself unable to be actively identified with any movement at his time of life, but would give his support to the movement, because he prized the institution of the seventh day being observed as a day of reverence.

It is the attempt to put a legal restraint upon people which is odious. The World quoted Luther's famous advice to his flock in repelling the growing spirit of narrow Sabbatarianism: "I say sing on the Sabbath, dance on the Sabbath, feast on the Sabbath."

Like Peter Goldwin Smith Peter Ryan disclaims any intention of becoming a propagandist or standard-bearer of the new movement, "but," says he, "when I saw the society advertised I sent them my subscription because I'm in favor of people being allowed to think for themselves on Sundays."

Dr. Milligan Mentions It. "A nation to do mighty things must strictly observe the Sabbath." Take Scotland, for instance, it has done great things, and there the Sabbath has always been so religiously kept that even the crowds knew it was Sunday. Some men call themselves rational, but I wonder they are not ashamed to put their names to such so-called committees.
