OBSERVE GUY FAWKES' DAY Sussex, N. B., Nov. 5—(Special)—The first celebration of Guy Fawkes day by Admiral Nelson Bodge, No. 124, was held here tonight, when members and their friends sat down to a tempting dinner served by the ladies of Chalmers Presby-terian church. The hall was tastefully decorated with mottoes, flags and other emblems. Many prominent Orangemen were in attendance and there were a number of invited guests. A feature of the dinner was the large attendance of ladies. The toast list was brief. The honored memory of King William was responded to by F. M. Sproul, of Hampton, and Rev. George Orman. Grand officers past and present brought forth eloquent speeches from Geo. W. Fowler, M. P.,past grand master for New Brunswick, and James A. Moore, past S. D. grand master; James A. Moore, past S. D. grand master, primary and county lodges were honored by Ald. Perry and W. B. A lively discussion took place between ne of the aldermen and members of the alliance as to how the council should go about enforcing the Scott act. The alliance were asked, now that they located the disease, to provide the remedy, in other words to recommend their man. The name of Lawson, now in Chatham, was brought up as a man who had been recommended and who would enforce the act.

Ald. Colpitts declared he had not supported Lawson's appointment or would he do so now. The ministers were asked if they knew the reputation of Lawson or the business he had been previously engaged in.

Rev. Mr. Thomas replied he only knew witness to be cross-examined.

The result of the alliance's visit to the council was to accomplish about what they wanted, namely stirring the council to action. Instead of continuing as in the past, by leaving the enforcement of the Scott act in the hands of the inspector, a resolution was passed reverting to the for mer system holding the chief of police re sponsible for the enforcement of the act The council decided tonight to priating fines from Scott act convictions for any other purpose than the enforcement of the act.

Later the council unanimously adopted a resolution to the effect that the Scott act fines must not be applied to any other purpose than the enforcement of the law. In the past fines from the enforcement of the act have gone into the miscellaneous fundand used for streets and side-walks principally.

Some change were made in the date.

In St. Lawrence and St. Louis wards so large is the Jewish population that they will soon be able to elect their own candidates. It is into these districts that thousands of refugees from Europe and principally Russians have recently come. Prominent Hebrews seemed astonished when shown that the election of mayor and aldermen would be held on a Saturday and they declared the Jewish vote would be absent in that event.
