STOP TREATING BY EDUCATION LEGISLATION IS PREMATURE

Ontario Anti-Treating Bill Held to Have Arrived Before its Time—Formation of Anti-Treating Associations Suggested Which May Bring Desired Result From Education.

(Toronto News, Thursday.)

The anti-treating bill is an excellent thing. Everyone says so. But for all that, it is not to become law just now. Mr. W. H. McNaught moved the second reading of the bill in the Legislature yesterday afternoon, making an excellent speech, and one full of sound reasons for the adoption of the measure. He pointed to the influence of the system in creating and aggravating the drink habit, and emphasized the good effects which would follow if it was abolished.

The Premier joined with members on both sides in regretting the evil of treating, but was inclined to rely more on the educative influences of such a discussion than on any good effect from a prohibitory law in the present state of public opinion. A suggestion for the formation of anti-treating associations, and in any case urged that the subject should be kept before the public constantly.

Several instances were given by speakers of the growth of the feeling against treating. Many clubs forbade it, and many messengers are now frowning on and discouraging the habit.

Mr. McNaught explained that his bill meant the reform of the treating system, which was unknown in the Old Country, where there was certainly less actual drunkenness than in Canada. "It was generally conceded that the excessive use of intoxicating liquor was a curse to any country, and this was proved by the statute book, which contained many drastic acts regulating and even prohibiting the practice of drinking. In the words of some, 'spirituous liquor was good as a medicine, but bad as a beverage. Whether this was true or not drinking made restrictive and legislative action necessary in this or any other country."

The bill aimed at the root of the evil, and at a practice which, in the minds of many, created more drunkenness than anything else. Treating was a custom which had a great hold on the people, and men going in for a single drink were lost out of count of drinks had often got too much. In many cases money was spent which was badly needed for other purposes, and habits were formed which sometimes brought pain to their graves.

This was no fancy picture, but one which could be seen daily anywhere in Toronto. But the evil, while bad in cities and towns, was infinitely worse in the country districts. Since his bill was introduced, he had received many letters from country districts, and all agreed that the effect of it would be to lessen the amount of liquor consumed and do away with drunkenness.

The case had been well stated by one of the oldest liquor dealers in the province, who said he had practically lived around hotels for ten years and had a good idea of the influence of the habit. "I honestly believe that there would be not one man in ten drunk if there was no treating," he writes. "Universal testimony says that if we did not have others, you will do more for temperance in one year than local option will in ten."

Mr. M. Daly, police magistrate, in addressing a meeting, spoke of it as a stupid, silly, unnecessary custom.

He defended his bill, saying that it was a real legislation and an infringement of personal liberty. While every man had a right to do as he pleased so long as he did not injure others, this right was, by common consent, greatly curtailed. When the evil of treating was considered, it could not be thought any interference with personal liberty to prohibit it. No one had a legal or moral right to induce another, even with his own consent, to do what was going to be an injury to him. In many ways personal liberty was confined, then why not here?

It might be, said Mr. McNaught, that while the majority were ready to abolish the habit they were not ready to do so by enactment. If so, he would have, at least, the satisfaction of drawing attention to the subject by his bill. Every citizen owed a duty to his fellow, and he had tried to do this as he saw it in regard to the bill, which he left in the hands of the house.

Mr. Preston (Brent), expressed his belief that treating was a very bad habit, and the increased by it, more outside than within the habit, was a very bad habit.

Major Hugh Clark (Bruce), said he had always been in favor of pulling the reins tight on the liquor traffic as well as everything else. Treating was a great evil and should be dealt with. As to the enforcement of such a law he was satisfied it would be observed. In effect there is such a law in some instances. A candidate cannot buy a drink for anyone for a couple of months before an election. In military maneuvers treating was not allowed. On every ground Major Clark supported the bill.

Arthur Wing Pinero's latest play, "His House in Order," is to be presented at the Empire Theatre, New York, next fall with John Drew and Margaret Livingston in the leading roles.

Cecil Raleigh, author of many Drury Lane melodramas, has been commissioned by Daniel Frohman to write a new comedy for Lawrence D'Orey.

In Chicago this week occurred the vaudeville debut of Mabel Hite, the smart comedienne of "The Girl and the Bandit," and other musical comedy. In conjunction with Walter Jones, who returns to the vaudeville stage, Miss Hite does singing and dancing specialties.

The supporting company in the new musical comedy drama entitled "My Tomboy Girl," that is one of the interesting attractions coming to the Academy of Music, April 2, with Lottie Williams in the principal part of Josie, which she does with the role of Captain Charlie, is said to be the most expensive melodramatic company on the road, having over fifty people in the cast.

IT CHOKED HIM

Mr. J. P. Taylor, of Dymont, Ont., had a serious time with Bronchitis. He knew just what to do and got well quickly.

This is what he says of Catarrh, the remedy that cured him.

"I must tell you how much Catarrh has been to me. I was so bad with Bronchitis that I sometimes thought it would soon be over with me. A spell of coughing would come on that fairly choked me and I was always left prostrated and weak."

"Since using Catarrh I have had no trouble at all. It strengthened my throat, stopped the cough, gave me free breathing and entirely cured me."

Why not cure yourself, why not get well for all time to come? Buy the large bottle of Catarrh of these points. It is a wonderful remedy for all these points. It is a wonderful remedy for all these points. It is a wonderful remedy for all these points.

Rev. Oswald W. Howard, D.D., professor in the Montreal Diocesan College, spent yesterday with the Rothery Collegiate school staff renewing acquaintances. He returned to Montreal last evening.

At a special meeting of the safety board yesterday the contract with the street railway for lighting the street was gone over with the recorder. Some slight changes and additions were made and the arrangement that lights of 2,000 candle power should be supplied was more accurately defined. The question of the racks in the city market was also considered, and the board decided to recommend that twelve racks instead of six should be auctioned. Two, as originally arranged, are to be sold at the upset price of $100 and the remainder at $50. The racks will be available for direct agents representing one firm.

Slippery Elm Lozenges

A special feature of the Myrtle-Harder Company during their engagement here has been the excellent specialties provided between the acts. While all were good, the rubo turn, done by the McGreevy, was particularly clever. It introduced excellent dancing by Jack McGreevy and his talented wife, a laughable burlesque musical turn with a violin and a battered horn as the instruments used and any quantity of clean rural comedy. Their act as well made up, well presented and best of all is not overdone. To me it seems one of the best turns of the kind seen here for a long time, and as it has proven a winner here, should be a good one for the future.

McGreevy if they ever decide to seek fame and fortune in the big vaudeville houses, in a really credible manner, Miss McGreevy have also done some good work in other lines since their appearance here. Mr. McGreevy is an amusing monologue artist in straight or make up, while his wife is an attractive young woman who sings well and dances very gracefully.

MUNDAY NIGHT.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

With both the local play houses presenting good attractions of different kinds the outlook for an enjoyable week for theatre-goers is brighter than it has been for some time.

At the York Theatre the New York Opera Company opened its return engagement last night with a first rate rendition of "Said Pasha." The old opera has been sung here so often that its lines, music and ludicrous situations are fairly familiar to most of the patrons of opera. The New York Company made an excellent impression and showed that they have greatly improved since their last appearance here. The chorus has been strengthened by the addition of several new voices, and their work now shows a delightful freshness and zest. The solo work by Miss Florence and Miss Campbell was enjoyable. Miss Campbell being obliged to respond to a triple encore for her nicely rendered Dreamland song, in the second act.

The fun making opportunities are in the hands of Messrs. Henderson, Ebner and Hanlon, in the roles of Haddad, Nockey and Said Pasha, and they could not have been more capably cast. The settings and costumes were excellent and the ensemble climaxes fully up to the best traditions of the opera. Said Pasha will be the bill tonight and tomorrow, while Souda's El Capitlan will hold the boards the balance of the week.

The Myrtle-Harder people produced "The Tide of Fortune" at the Opera House last night, to an enthusiastic audience. The piece is said to be a companion play to "Way Down East." The casting has been done with a great deal of care and without an exception the roles were handled in a really credible manner. Miss Myrtle appeared to splendid advantage as Mirandy. She seems to excel in juvenile and her work last night was very marked enthusiasm. Sara Kingsley was thoroughly at home in the role of Edith Chase and Miss Warren's Edna Martin a good character bit—left little

Annual Meeting of St. John Club.

The annual meeting of the St. John Tennis Club was held last night in the Church of England Institute rooms. The gathering was large and the interest shown augurs well for this sport the coming season. The officers for the ensuing year are: Percy W. Thompson, president; W. A. Lockhart, treasurer; and L. W. Peters, secretary.

The following will compose the ladies committee: Miss Clara Schofield, Miss Muriel Thompson, Mrs. L. W. Barker, Miss Constance Smith, and Miss Winnie Barnaby. The members of the tournament committee are W. A. Lockhart and Guy Robinson and Miss Clara Schofield.

The club has a limited membership of 100, divided evenly between the ladies and gentlemen. Fifteen vacancies were filled by the election of that number of new members last night, nine gentlemen and six ladies. It is believed that with the weather it will be possible to use the courts in two or three weeks.

Fernhill Cemetery Company.

At a meeting of the newly elected board of directors of the Fernhill Cemetery Company yesterday afternoon H. D. McLeod was re-elected president and W. E. Anderson secretary. They, with the following form the executive: D. J. McLaughlin, James H. McAvity, G. S. Fisher, E. T. Sturdee and Dr. Christie.

C. M. Bestwick was appointed chairman of the lot committee. A committee was also appointed to wait upon the municipal council with reference to a grant for the alms house lot in Fernhill. This committee consists of President McLeod, Hon. J. G. Forbes and C. M. Bestwick, with Mr. Bestwick as chairman.

The directors wish to correct an error in the report of the annual meeting in which it was stated the cost of perpetual care would be increased immediately. This increase does not go into effect until May, 1907.

The meeting elected J. P. Clayton superintendent of Fernhill.
