Canada is just now populated by two great classes, one the ordinary people who are suffering as they never suffered before from commercial distress and scarcity of work, and want of confidence in monetary circles; and the other the horde of Reform politicians who are receiving exceeding rich rewards for party services at the public expense. On the one hand, striving werkingmen and bankrupt merchants submitting with no good grace to increased taxation and to the prospect of a huge deficit next year. On the other the Fosters, the Edgars, the Charles Mackenzies, the Anglins, the Norrises and that ilk, among the Norrises and that ilk, among whom the loans annually borrowed in England at four and five per cent. are being dissipated and squandered, not only in defiance of the past professions of the governing party, but
