OLD MAN IS MARTYR TO ANTI-TOBACCO PLEDGE

Stricken at Religious Revival He Renounces
Old Habit.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Believed by his family and neighbors to be a victim of his devotion to an anti-tobacco pledge taken during a recent revival, John Henry Johnson, of Port Republic, died at his home in the little mainland city last night.
Johnson, who was 80 years of age, was among the audience of several hundred who listened to an evangelist hurl anathemas at tobacco from the pulpit of the St. Paul Methodist church during the height of the religious awakening.
Johnson was one of the men who swore off, although he had been a user of tobacco for fifty years. Within a few hours after his announcement, he was taken sick, and physicians declared that his nervous system was shattered by sudden abstinence from the weed.
Although informed that return to tobacco might save his life, the aged man refused to give in to the tempter. "I would rather die because I am trying to do right than perish in hell fire in another world," he declared.
Sturdy neighbors who gloried in the old man's attitude gave him encouragement. The aged martyr to his beliefs was conscious of the fact that he was in the strength that held him faithful.

CONGREGATION WHIPS HELL FIRE PREACHER

"No Baptism, No Heaven," Says Pastor and Hearers Attack Him.

ELKINS, W. Va., Feb. 7.—Because he declared from the pulpit that a person who was not baptized would go to hell, the Rev. S. M. West, pastor of the Christian Church at West, Wetzel county, was at the conclusion of services last Sunday met used up by the members of his congregation.
Mrs. Abby Postlethwaite, whose deceased brother had not been baptized, confronted the pastor as he left the church and slapped him in the face a number of times. Other members also attacked the minister.
The Rev. Mr. West appeared before the Grand Jury and procured the indictment of forty-eight members of the congregation. The judge of the circuit court fixed a number of them $25 each and another $50 for one hour.

INSULTED THE CROWN PRINCE
Hysterical Woman Makes Scandalous Scene in Bucharest Theatre.

BUCHAREST, Feb. 7.—A disgraceful scene occurred last night at the Lyric Theatre during a performance at which the Crown Prince and his wife were present. During the first act, a woman called out from the balcony: "Throw the Crown Prince's mistress out of the house," at the same time pointing to a well known member of the highest society.
There was great uproar. The Crown Prince left his box. The police removed the disturber, who is a Mrs. Jarcus, a hysterical scandalmonger. When she was examined by a judge, she acted in a distraught manner. She was remanded.

She was mixed up in a more sensational case in 1901, when her sister was shot and killed by one of her numerous lovers, a son of Gen. Candiano, a brutal degenerate, who, when he was confronted by the body of his victim, kicked it and exclaimed: "Quelle vache!"
The allegation made by Mrs. Jarcus against the Crown Prince is unfounded.

EARTHQUAKE INSURANCE.
Heavy Policies Being Written in England—
Era of Instability.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The recent earthquakes, the predictions of others and the scientific dictum that this is a period of instability in the earth's crust have created a growing business in insuring against earthquake risks in Great Britain. Lloyd's has created a special branch in this line of insurance, and a good business is being done.

A prominent commercial firm in Oxford street has just obtained earthquake insurance for $1,250,000 at the rate of 15 cents on each $500. An estate in Wales has been similarly insured for $500,000 at 30 cents per $500. The holders of mortgages on various properties are demanding that earthquake insurance be taken out.
It is the custom of British fire insurance companies to exclude earthquake liabilities in the United Kingdom as elsewhere.

LIES, DIVINE SAYS, LED HIM TO ACCEPT PULPIT

Startled Flock Hears Scathing Address by Pastor Recently Hired.

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—The Rev. Owen James, pastor of Centre Congregational Church, Dracut, Mass., resigned two weeks ago, claiming he had been influenced to come there from Pennsylvania by glowing accounts of the church and town, which he had since found to be gross misrepresentations.
"I have been sorely wounded," said the pastor from the pulpit; "more so than I ever was before in my life. You brought me here by glowing promises, and I find it a cold place, with many reminders of the untruths that influenced me to accept this pulpit. You ask me to remain here, and to take back the statements I was forced to make in order to clear my conscience. I can do neither. I consider it my right to remain as long as I desire, or to leave this place tomorrow, just as I see fit. When I do go I will never return to the town of Dracut again."

PARIS TO HEAR "SALOME"

Paying a Big Price for It—Strauss to Conduct—Mile, Destin in Title Role.

PARIS, Feb. 7.—Since the withdrawal of the opera "Salome" in New York the question as to when Paris will hear the work has been resumed. It is still a question whether it will be heard in the spring or fall, but preparations are being hastened for its production in the spring.
It seems that it would have been performed here before he had for the demands of Herr Strauss, the master of which Paris does not seem to appreciate. Negotiations were under way for its production at the Opera House, but Herr Strauss demanded that he benefit by special privileges, which would violate two articles of the regulations of the Society of Authors, which govern all productions here.
The negotiations were so prolonged that the Director of the Opera House was unable to offer the work until October, but Herr Strauss, who wishes to conduct the orchestra himself, was unable to be in Paris except in May. Consequently Director Gailhard has agreed to help toward an early production by contributing facilities to enable its presentation under the auspices of the Isola brothers at the Lyric Theatre.
The Isolas have accepted Herr Strauss's conditions, namely, to pay him $5,000, besides 10 per cent. of the receipts, which will go to his home town, the Society of Authors when he shall conform with its conditions.
This will make "Salome" an expensive production for the Lyric. It is contemplated to present it. Every performance must be made a gala one if the hoped for profitable results are to be obtained from a work that will cost ten times as much as the works of Wagner or Verdi. Mile, Destin, the actor who will sing the part of Herod, many, will sing in the character here.

BLACKSOD BAY AND HALIFAX FAST MAIL
SCHEME BEING PUSHED

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Blacksod Bay and the Halifax fast mail scheme is being pushed vigorously here. In view of the request for a British subsidy of $75,000 the promoters have most astutely secured the political co-operation of the Irish Nationalists. John Redmond at yesterday's deputation at Dublin admitted that he had no time to object of the empire. The friendship of Ireland was more important to the empire than of all the colonies put together, but he is blessing the scheme because it would benefit Ireland.
S. G. Fraser, C. E., who explained the scheme to Redmond asserted that although Lord Strathcona's official position forbade his becoming a promoter, not a single step had been taken without his approval.
Fraser added that Lord Strathcona was endeavoring to get the Canadian government to give a large subsidy, reference being doubtless to demand for a Canadian subsidy of one million dollars. Despite this statement it is understood that Lord Strathcona's personal attitude is still exactly as described in the cablegram of January 14.

LONDON INTERESTED IN THE THAW CASE

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The case of Harry K. Thaw is attracting almost as much interest here as in the United States. The newspapers this morning published many columns of the evidence given yesterday in detail.

GREAT EEL MYSTERY SOLVED
Science Finds That They Spawn at Sea and Travel Inland.
LONDON, Feb. 7.—The public just learns that it did not know where eels bred, but it seemed that eels had been puzzling biologists. Danish marine investigators have now completed investigations proving that so far as the European eel population is concerned the creatures spawn at a depth of 500 fathoms in the Atlantic Ocean contiguous to the British Isles and southwest Europe.
From innumerable eggs there appear tiny larvae called leptocephali, which are transparent, jellylike and flat, having something of the contour of a tailless herring. It is not known how long the eggs take to develop the leptocephali, but the latter occupy six months in transition to the familiar evers, which are about two inches long.
The evers then migrate in countless swarms to the shores of western Europe travelling in columns sometimes several yards wide and miles long. Nothing stops their progress. If they encounter a ship they separate to the right and left and rejoin in the vessel's wake. They invade every river and waterway on the coast, ascending steadily landward. They even ascend small waterfalls, penetrate streams and wriggle over swampy grounds into ponds and ditches.
