

WEEKLY SERMON.

The Rev. Dr. David Gregg on Christ's Mighty Contract.

Rev. Dr. David Gregg, pastor of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, N. Y., recently preached on "Christ's Mighty Contract." ... "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

THESE ARE TWO THINGS which impress me when I begin to think upon the inviting words of this text, and these are: First—There is a mighty contract which Jesus Christ has undertaken; and second—His contract, however great and daring, harmonizes with the earthly life which He lived among men. ... "I will give you rest."

JESUS KNEW ALL that men had tried to do for the world by way of philosophy and logic and religion, and He knew that He was putting Himself above them and centering the whole human race upon Himself; and at the same time He knew also the fullness of His own personality, and the reach of His truth, and the power of His cross, and the coming of the Holy Spirit to work in His name. He knew His mission for the world, and He knew His mission for the world, and He knew His mission for the world.

outcome. It embodied in it the grandest possible service, that could be rendered to mankind, all it worked out the eternal salvation of the soul. It is a great rest to have this life of Him when you come to deal with the dark problems of human life. ... "I will give you rest."

WHEN HE WAS FAR AWAY in Galilee death came to the home in Bethany and filled every heart there with bitterness and grief. What was the result? The friends were thinking of Jesus. "Oh, that Master were here!" Was Jesus thinking of His friends? He could think of nothing but His grief. ... "I will give you rest."

CHRIST COMES TO US in our perplexity and He tells us that God has not left us in such a state as these. He tells us that the divine and loving care of the Father is over all His children. ... "I will give you rest."

SOME OF THE MEN made curious little jars and tea cups on wheels, and some brought fruit in the bulge of their aprons. They brought nothing about these things; the subject was too solemn. But they put the things into the old man's hat, where he found them. He knew for whom they were intended. That whole pottery, full of men, coarse in nature, grew quiet as the months passed, and the men left of their profanity and became gentle and kind and loving in the shop and at home. ... "I will give you rest."
