

Slipp ousted by Saint Thomas SRC

By KAYE MACPHEE

At Saint Thomas' October 16th Regular SRC meeting Colin McKay made a notice of motion that the SRC call for the resignation of the Vice-President External Mark Slipp for failure to perform his duties as outlined in the STU SRC Constitution and BY-Laws. At October 23rd's regular meeting McKay moved (seconded by Pat Nowlan) that the motion be voted on. At that point Gail Wright, Council Chairman asked if there were any objections to her chairing the discussion and voting section of the meeting; none was voiced. Wright then cautioned all councillors to conduct themselves in an orderly fashion.

Speaking to the motion McKay commented that students deserve someone who will serve them fairly and Nowlan stated that Slipp was "never there" for those who wanted to "find out things about elections". Slipp responded saying that he admitted to neglecting his "complete duties" - that he did not do everything he could have, but added that the only people who tried to contact him were Jane Buckley or Mary Laslo and he was in daily contact with them. Slipp then outlined some of the things he did as Vice-President External aside from assisting the President Mary Laslo, citing the initiation of a Fundraising Committee; obtaining Express season tickets at the Aitken Centre which were revenue producing for the SRC; his introduction of permanent summer employment at Physical Plant for an executive member of council; his involvement in the Students' Alliance in which prior to Slipp's input STU did not have a voice; his involvement with the SUB Board and the Federation of Youth; and in the fall his supervisory capacity at the Aitken Centre and works for the Dean of Women.

Slipp stated that he's been honest and that he could document and justify what has been done. "The only duty I have neglected is the keeping of regular office hours" and that he never maintained that he had regular hours. "My regular duties have all been fulfilled...as outlined in the constitution", said Slipp.

Slipp also expressed concern regarding Faculty representatives on Council (STU SRC has three) and questioned their need and value. His concern generated interest to the point that a committee was set up to study the question. Another concern Slipp has was of a financial nature in that no one knew how much money there was in the SRC account for a twelve month period. His concern led to the formation of a committee to investigate this issue.

Slipp also stated that at this time he was prepared to spend a lot of time on the SRC and he feels that in the past he did work to the best of his ability. When queried about posting of Senior Class Election results Slipp said they were posted the same day in the locations required by the constitution. Slipp stated that he did not personally post them. The Councillor who did post them however was present at the meeting and verified Slipp's statement.

During a five minute recess President Laslo asked John Bosnitch of the UNB Student Union and Clayton Burns to leave the meeting room. Both Bosnitch and Burns refused. When the meeting was reconvened Bosnitch and Burns were formally asked by Chairperson Wright to leave. Bosnitch and Burns wish to speak to the motion. Wright, quoting from Robert's Rules, stated that they had the right to decide who may be present during its session and when, either by rule or by a vote, they decide that a person shall not remain in the room, it is the duty of the chair to enforce the rule or order, using whatever force is necessary to eject the party. (see para. 67, p. 119 Robert's Rules)

Bosnitch agreed that there may be a rule or vote but pointed out that neither was evident. Wright said that she would call Campus Security to have Burns and Bosnitch removed if necessary.

Bosnitch said that if he was removed by Campus Security he would be expelled from University but he would risk that as he felt he was in the right. As Bosnitch continued to speak some members of Council left the room in protest. Bosnitch then left the meeting, along with Burns.

Oliver Koncz was handed a pen and paper by either Burns or Bosnitch and was sent to the meeting to take notes. Mr. Koncz was told that he could stay but that he was not permitted to speak. The motion was defeated 4-11-0.

Slipp at this point was asked to leave the room by Wright but consensus of Council (8-7-0) was that he should be permitted to be present when further discussion and voting took place. Slipp said that "no excuses should be presented" and that the reasons for not doing something are irrelevant, "I did not do something I was supposed to do." The motion to ask Slipp to resign was carried 11-3-0 and Slipp was asked to step aside from the table.

Slipp thanked some of the members of council for not allowing personalities entering into the issue and stated that if anyone had any questions concerning upcoming events he would be available. Slipp also expressed surprise that the motion to ask him to resign was not brought sooner.

Bosnitch was on hand, outside the meeting room, to take photographs of Slipp leaving the meeting. At 8:10 Slipp re-entered the room and stated that every member of Council should be impeached due to failure to act according to the duties outlined in the constitution.

The Kick-assgame of the season

By CAL RIFKIN
Of the Brunswickan

On Oct. 20, 1984, the Bruns Barbarians defeated the CHSR Czar's Special Football Squad, the "Bunnies of Death", 21-14. With a team of seven determined journalistic wonders including Dave Mazerolle, Cal Johnston, Mike MacKinnon, Tim MacKinnon Richard Burton (not the dead one), and the front line of Kathi Davidson and Cindy Davis, the Barbarians walked all over the Bunnies, despite the fact that CHSR had almost 3 times as many players. This being the case, the Brunsies had to play both defensive and offensive lines while the Czars could change lines and even substitute players.

The game looked bleak when the teams met in the College Hill Social Club for the warm-up. Cal Johnston, Bruns News Editor, was heard to say, "We have met the enemy and they are big!" At 1500 hours, they left the comfort of the CHSC to face each other in the dreaded Media Bowl. For the past two years, the Czars had beaten the Bruns, but this year the Barbarians were determined not to fail and they showed their determination as they whimpered onto the field below the UNB Heating Plant. During a few practice runs, Editor-in-Chief, Dave Mazerole was seriously injured by a runaway pass. Dave's glasses were struck by the rogueball and actually cut his cheek. Despite great losses of blood, Dave decided to stay in the game.

As the playing commenced, the first touchdown was scored early in the first half by Entertainment Editor, Mike MacKinnon. His run down the side line left the Czar players, Bruiser, Crusher, Killer, Mom, and Blake, in the dust. Unfortunately he was bloodied in retaliation for his brilliant display of heroism (he ran down the sideline screaming "Help, they're gonna get meee!"). MacKinnon received a monstrous gash on his lower lip, as well as a tear on his lovingly cared for Bruns football jersey. You'll pay for this sacrilege, Bunnies. Even though he was bleeding profusely throughout the game, Mike continued to play and went on to score a second touchdown for the Barbarians. Suddenly, the Czar Bunnies of Death gave a great sigh of relief as the half-time whistle blew, they didn't have to be disgraced for 15 minutes.

The half-time show included a rare nude appearance by Derrick Stanford (Moosehead Rep and Bruns Ad Manager) and 5,000 live chickens in what was described as 53 more things to do in zero gravity. Should have been depravity. Boy Claude (Joel Leger) also performed his recent hit, co-produced with Jack Michaelson, "I'll beat it for ya". We were not amused.

The second half began with a whimper as the Barbarians for the Bruns stood on the sidelines and let the Bunnies score two touchdowns so they wouldn't get peeved and take the ball and go home.

The 151st Annual Media Bowl (give or take a few) went into overtime. It was tense, I tell you, damn tense. Well, not really that tense but it was pretty tense. Yeah, pretty darn tense. The ball was tossed into the air by last minute arrival, Todd Daley of the Bruns (the guy who ruined last year's Media Bowl pics), and plucked from the sky by the not dead Richard Burton and run down to the CHSR end zone for the final score of the game: 21-14. Hot damn, eh? We beat 'em. Rick-em, Rack-em, Rock-em, Ruck-em, get'em boys and really....fight! Yes, Father O'Malley we really knocked the "Bleep" off the opposing team. Now that I'm all done, Tim MacKinnon comes over and says he wants me to mention his great defensive plays. Here goes; Tim played defense pretty good. Otay, 'panky? 'Nuff fer now, but we'll be back next year to kill the Bunnies once more.
