QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous.

IMPORTING WESTERN RANGE HORSES.

Please let me know, through "The Farmer's Advocate," if there are any restrictions on bringing Western range horses into Ontario for sale. If so, what are they? A READER.

Ans.—We are advised from the office of the Veterinary Director General that there are none.

CAPPED HOCK.

I have an imported filly. She has a capped hock as large as a hen's egg, and hard. They say that she got it coming on the ship, three or four months ago. Would you be kind enough to let me know what is the best treatment for it? A. B. M.

Ans.—It sometimes takes a good deal of time and patience to remove an enlargement of this kind. The daily application of compound iodine ointment, with smart friction, will generally reduce it in time. If not effective, repeated blistering will remove it in time.

REFRIGERATOR.

Could you give us some descriptive plan of a refrigerator, so that a handy farmer could build one for his own use? Ontario County.

Ans.—We give a few of the principles on which refrigerators are built, from which you may be able to design something suitable. 1st.—Ice must be in upper part, as cooled air is heavy and descends. 2nd.—Water formed by melting ice must be run off to some receptacle in lower part, or out altogether. 3rd.—Inner walls, inclosing cool chamber, should be of some kind of sheet metal—a good conductor. 4th.—Outer walls, between which and inner there should be space for circulation of cooled air, should be thick, with air spaces, and be of wood or other non-conducting material. T.

LAYING-OUT HOGPEN, ETC.

As we intend building a hogpen, I would like to know if it would be best to run the cement foundation walls up above the level of the floor, a foot or two, so that the sills would not rot, or the hogs could not eat them. How would be the best way to lay out a pen, 20 x 32 feet, leaving room for a feed room and stove? How much cement would it take to lay floor about four or five inches thick? Have some pigs that weigh 75 or 80 lbs. There are a couple that do not seem to grow as well as the rest. What would be good to give them? There are 14 together. Would it be best to divide them? G. S.

Ans.—By running a three- or four-foot passage through center, lengthwise, a row of three pens, about 8 x 8 feet, could be left on each side, and two of the same size at one end for feed-room and stove. If larger and fewer pens are required, run the alley along one side. Directions for building walls and floors have been repeatedly given in these columns. We would certainly divide the pigs into two lots, and try a change and greater variety of feed.

SIL-BUILDING.

1. Will a silo, 15 x 30 feet, feed 30 head of cattle over winter?
2. How many loads in a cord of sand or gravel?
3. How many barrels of cement would be required?
4. Is a silo strong enough less than one foot in thickness?
5. How many days would a man and his tender take to build it? J. M.

Ans.—1. A round silo, thirty feet high and fifteen feet in diameter, will, allowing three feet for settling, contain ninety-five tons. That will supply thirty cattle with forty pounds of silage each per day for 158 days.

2. Contractors frequently haul one-third of a cord at a load, but most farmers find a quarter cord enough.

3. For a round cement silo of size mentioned above, and twelve-inch wall, fifteen cords of gravel, and fifty barrels of cement would be required, if mixed one to nine. A square silo, of same dimensions, would require one-third more.

4. We think wall of round silo would be perfectly strong with a thickness of ten inches, or even less, at bottom, and six inches at top, if plenty of stout wire hoops were imbedded in concrete.

5. Cannot say. T.
