CARIBOU TO CELEBRATE

Victoria Day to be Pro- perly Observed

Miners Hold Meeting and Appoint Committees to Make the Arrangements.

Caribou, May 7.—The miners of Caribou will celebrate Victoria day by a series of amusements having been made at a meeting recently held at Caribou.

The meeting was called to order at 7 o'clock and was presided over by Dr. J. H. Hadden, who acted as chairman. Carried.

After discussion it was decided to celebrate the 25th day of May at Caribou.

Resolved and seconded that a soliciting committee of seven or more be appointed. The following gentlemen were appointed to act on said committee: Messrs. J. T. Kelly, Cameron, Nordale, Joe Graham, Chas. Wilson, Thos. White, Hadden, Moore, Jack Wilson, Marks, Rogers, Capt. Thomas, W. H. Wright, John King.

Resolved and seconded that D. E. Hadden be elected permanent secretary. Carried.

Resolved and seconded that we have a committee of arrangements consisting of five. Carried.

Resolved and seconded that Mr. Jas. Hadden act as chairman of said committee. Carried.

The following gentlemen were appointed members of the committee of arrangements: Messrs. Moore, Hadden, Dr. Bell, Griffith.

That the committee of arrangements report to the secretary on Saturday evening the 10th inst. and that the sports be held on Monday, the 25th day of May.

Resolved and seconded that all necessary arrangements be left to the committee of arrangements, and in case of a full short of cash and funds it be necessary to call another public meeting to do so. Carried.

The following gentlemen were present at the meeting: Messrs. James McKel, Grossman, Baird, Chas. Wilson, White, Moore, Holliday, Hadden, Jack Wilson, Hadden, Lindgren, Dr. Bell, Griffith. Meeting adjourned.

Charles Carlos was arraigned before Inspector Rutledge yesterday for assault upon the complaint of John Brinkley of No. 1 above lower discovery. The affair grew out of a dispute over a water right, which both parties claimed from the "pup" that comes No. 2 claim on the left limit. The verdict was $15 and costs. The "pup" on No. 2 will soon be a worthy rival of its near relative on No. 1.

Known as "Troublesome Pup" from the number of disputes held over the ownership of its numerous water rights real and fancied.

The next case was the plea of Louis Hadden to give his brother Phylliasse Hadden the right to drink water without molestation for the next year. The intervention was granted and Phylliasse and the dark brown taste will be strangers for the next twelve months.

Today Bob Smith got $1 and costs for trespassing to use his water right along last evening's outing.

The morning Sam Fretwell, the active pilot of Rouse & Co.'s twelve motor launch, was before the majesty of the law on a charge of cruelty to animals. He got a verdict of $20 and costs or two months. Another charge against him was heard, this time for using abusive language but not to a verdict.

This was summed up to be about $5 and costs or 10 days. No slugging on Dominion owing to cold weather.

The roads are drying up quite fast now and the stages are making better time.

Some Prophecies That Came True

It is a very fortunate thing for some distinguished men that their names have falsified the predictions of their boyhood.

When, nearly forty years ago, a pale, pale-faced young middy, who seemed so frail that, as he says, "a puff of wind might have blown him away," climbed up the side of H. M. S. Marlborough to introduce himself to his first captain, one of the ship's men exclaimed to a comrade, "Here's another candidate for burying at sea, Bill."

As Lord Charles Berkeford says, when telling the story of his first introduction to the service he admits so well, "It wasn't a very cheering reception, was it?"

I fancy it would take more than a puff to blow me away now!"

"Unless you mend your ways, my boy," the master of Caldwell school, New Jersey, once solemnly remarked to his least hopeful boy after one of his many escapades, "you'll rise high in the world," making a significant gesture as if he were suspending something from a rope. "I mean to rise high, sir," the young incorrigible retorted, with an audacious smile and he did, in spite of all prediction, for, as Grover Cleveland

he has been twice president of the United States.

When the late Mr. Onslow Ford went, as a boy of 17, to study the art of which he was to become so distinguished an ornament, his master in despair exclaimed, "Ah! you will make a very good mason; but a sculptor, never!" And yet a dozen years later the Prince of Wales was uncovering his magnificent statue of Rowland Hill in the Royal Exchange the commission for which he had won in competition against the most famous sculptors of the day.

Sir Frank Lockwood's uncontrollable love of mischief and his distaste for his books, were the despair of his masters at the Manchester grammar school; and in later years, when he was a highly prosperous queen's counsel and member of parliament, he would tell with gusto how one of his masters used to predict the most unpleasant destinies for him. These gloomy forebodings he modified at the moment of parting finally from his unpromising pupil to these words of farewell: "Well, good-bye, Lockwood. I hope when next I hear of you it won't be anything discreditable."

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle tells with amusement, how his masters at Stonelyhurst were of one opinion that he would never come to any good; and an old schoolfellow has recalled how not one of all Ipswich Haggard's contemporaries at Ipswich grammar school had the remotest idea that Lie "shy, awkward boy" who used to spin yarns to them in the dormitory would ever "make a name for himself."

When Coquelin, the great French comedian, presented himself for admission to the Conservatoire, one of the examiners brutally said to him, "It is impossible that you should ever become an actor—you are alone would make it impossible," and when Charles Kean made his first appearance as an actor he was warned by candid friends that he would be hissed off the stage.

But it would be a mistake to infer that all early prophecies are so ludicrously wide of the mark. When the late Dr. Temple had just been admitted to Holy Orders, the officiating bishop (of Oxford) made this entry in his diary: "Among the candidates was a dark young man, of striking appearance, who is very likely to make his mark"—one of many shrewd predictions made by the dignitary, who was known to irreverent contemporaries as "Soapy Sam."

When the late Mr. Gladstone, as an Oxford undergraduate, still in his teens, had been speaking at the "Union" against the reform bill, Mozley remarked to Denison, "I have just listened to one of the best speeches I ever heard in my life; it was by young Gladstone, and, mark my words, some day he will be prime minister of England."

A similar prediction is said to have been made about Mr. Asquith by John Bright, who had listened with amazement to the statesmanlike speech by the youthful scholar of Balliol in 1872.

When the friends of the Rev. Ridley Horschell used to remonstrate with him for allowing his son to stay up until the early hours of the morning toiling away at his books, he would answer: "Oh! I mustn't interfere with him. You see, Father has made up his mind to be lord chancellor, and those who live long enough will surely see him on the Woolstack."

The late Mr. Sidney Cooper was not kept long in doubt as to his destiny, for when, as a boy of eight, he was busy drawing the bell tower of Canterbury cathedral, a canon who was passing asked to be allowed to look at his work. "Very good, my boy," he exclaimed, as he handed the slate back; "if you go on like this you'll be a Royal Academician some day." And this was the goal the youthful artist kept steadily in view although it took him just over half a century to reach it.

AGAIN ENLARGED

Marie Chivex Case Will Come Up on Tuesday.

Marie Chivex, accompanied by Miss Beatrice Wilson who has interested herself in the unfortunate woman, was again in the police court this morning when at the request of Sergeant Smith for the prosecution the case was once more enlarged, this time until Tuesday morning.

The woman is charged with being an inmate of a disorderly house in Klondike city and from her earnings it is alleged that John Frank, now held for his appearance on Monday, is living. She is but a young woman and is said to have been brought here only a few weeks ago from sunny France and started in the road of vice. The girl can not speak a word of English.

It is due to John Frank the carpenter to state that he is not the man held on the disgraceful charge opposite the same name on the police docket. The John Frank against whom the charge is laid is a short, very dark man. He is said to have a wife in Dawson.

Notice of Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the decoration and parade committee to-night at 8:30 o'clock at the D. A. A. A full attendance is requested.

GEO. VERNON,
Chairman.

EXCELLENT RECITAL

New Soloists Appear for the First Time

Best Musical Talent in the City Assisted in Making the Con- cert a Success

The organ recital given at the St. Andrew's Presbyterian church yesterday evening by Mr. Ernest Searelle served to introduce two new soloists to Dawson audiences, one of whom had never been heard before and the other only in a church choir and not on the concert stage. And more is the pity, too, of the latter, as her voice is one of marvelous sweetness and purity, as clear as a bell and as true as it is possible for a voice to be.

Mr. Victor Durand is a violinist but recently from New York and will prove a decided acquisition to musical circles. During the program he appeared twice, first in an obligato to the "Angel's Serenade" sung by Mrs. P. R. Ritchie and later in a solo, the berceuse from Godard's "Joceyn," responding to an encore demanded of the latter and giving Tobani's familiar "Coeurs et Fleurs."

Mr. Durand plays with excellent taste, his tone is large and of splendid quality and he plays in perfect tune, a rare thing in violin soloists. His selections portrayed the tone of his instrument, his perfect phrasing and faultless playing rather than any brilliancy of execution, and especially was this true of the berceuse, a soft, plaintive, tender lullaby of exquisite beauty. Mr. Durand's efforts would have been much more effective had he stood instead of sitting down while playing.

The other soloist who is comparatively new to Dawson is Mrs. J. A. McDougal who rendered Trotere's "A Rose in Heaven" and for an encore gave "Violets." Mrs. McDougal betrayed a little nervousness at first, but before she had sung a half dozen bars the audience had entirely lost sight of it if it was noticed at all. Her selections were particularly well adapted to the delicious mezzo voice of which she is the happy possessor and her number was the distinctive pleasure of the evening, an opinion also held by the audience as evinced by the hearty reception accorded the singer upon her entrance and also by the manner in which an encore was demanded. There is not a note in Mrs. McDougal's voice that is harsh or metallic, but on the contrary it is as rich, round and full of sympathy as possible, possessing a quality that is a gift of Nature and can not be acquired by cultivation. It is unfortunate that the public has not had more opportunities to hear Mrs. McDougal.

Mr. Searelle contributed three numbers, the coronation march from Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete," and offertory by Lefebure-Wely and a moreau characteristic "The Enchanted Bells," ending the program with the familiar march from "Tannhauser."

All were well received, were excellently played and very enjoyable. The effect produced in "The Enchanted Bells" was very beautiful.

A mixed quartette consisting of Mrs. Ritchie, Mrs. Thompson, Mr. McMeekin and Mr. Bozorth gave two numbers, the first an arrangement for a quartette of "The Lost Chord," and the second "God is a Spirit."

Both were well sung, particularly the first named. In all his writings Sullivan never penned a more beautiful theme than that contained in "The Lost Chord" which has been sung as a solo, duo, trio, quartette, and chorus for the past twenty years. The voices of the quartette blended admirably and their singing was very much enjoyed.

Mrs. Ritchie sang the "Angel's Serenade" with violin obligato by Mr. Durand, a simple but very effective piece, and very well sung though a tone too low to be suitable for Mrs. Ritchie's voice which is a high soprano. The phrasing was admirable and so pleasing were her efforts that an encore was demanded.

Mr. Frank Johnson gave a couple of his French dialect stories in a manner that none can imitate. "Le Vieux Temp" provoked so much laughter that "La belle p'tit Canadienne" was given as an encore.

Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Torrey were heard in a duet that was very pleasing and upon an encore being insisted upon repeated the same selection.

Mr. Searelle in the accompaniments had more than one opportunity to display the beauties of his organ which he did not fail to do. The woodwind stops have a most exquisite sweetness rarely heard in an organ of even twice the size of that over which he presides and in the accompaniment to Mr. Durand's solo they spoke with a plainness that was almost human.

The church was comfortably filled and it was considered the recital was one of the most artistic ever given in the city.

Overseer Dalgleish, J. H. Russell and Dr. D. MacLeod are acting on the committee to arrange the sports and prizes.

The invited guests of honor of the day will be Governor Congdon, Major Wood, Mayor McLennan, Consul Saylor and Councilmen Landreville and Pringle.

Something like $1000 have been raised already for the celebration. At least $1200 will be secured without a doubt.

A friend of Dean Swift one day sent him a fowl as a present by a servant-lad, who had frequently been on similar errands, but had never received anything from the Dean. He opened the study door, and, dropping his burden on the floor, called out, "My master has sent you a fowl."

"Young man," said the Dean, "is this the way you deliver a message? Let me teach you better manners. Sit down on my chair. We will change places, and I will show you how to behave in future."

The boy sat down, and the Dean, going out, came to the door, and, making a low bow, said: "Sir, my master sends you his kind compliments, and hopes you are well, and requests your acceptance of a small present."

"Indeed!" replied the boy. "Return him my best thanks; and here is a half crown for yourself." The Dean, thus caught in his own trap, laughed heartily and gave the boy a crown for his ready wit.

My Inver Bay
Och! Inver Bay, on a harvest day
And the sun goin' down the sky
When with many's the laugh the boats put afloat,
And many's the merry cry!
To Cork's own Cove, the one might rove,
He wouldn't find, machree,
A rarer bay, a fairer bay,
A sweeter bay, nor thee!
For the Kaiser's rod and his realms so broad,
I wouldn't swap, not I.
My Inver Bay of a harvest day,
And the sun goin' down the sky!
