Helping to Sell Canadian Scenery

ARRIVE is a reproduction from an old print depicting an "Exciting Trial of Speed between Mr. Cooper's Locomotive 'Tom Thumb' and one of Stockton & Slocum Horse Cars," in August 1825. CENTRE—Exterior of latest model observation car as used by the Canadian Pacific Railway. BELOW are interior views of the same luxurious car.

NO railroad on the Continent of America is much more than a century old, yet it seems, and is indeed, a far cry to the days of the old horse-drawn railway vehicles and the open cars drawn by the first locomotives, which superseded them. Perhaps in no country in the world has railroad engineering the last half century. As late as 1870-73 the Quebec Government encouraged development by building railways entirely of wood. The rails were of straight-grained hard maple, 12 feet in length, but the knots were weak spots which often caused the rail to break and occasion a delay of, perhaps, hours. In wet weather no progress could be made at all and there are not a few living today who remember having to help the fireman and engineer load up with wood in order to speed their travel.

What a fair try it is, from the old cars, exposed to the elements at all times, or boxed in so that fresh air was at a premium, to the luxurious parlor, sleeping, compartment and observation cars of today. Canada had just as much scenery in the old days as it has now, the same glorious expanses and wooded hillsides, the same wonderful peaks and splendid rivers, yet Canadian scenery could not be "sold" then, because it was almost impossible to enjoy what was going on around, or that through which the voyager was passing as he was confined to a hard, narrow seat for hours, with no comfort other than the thought that perhaps the end of the journey would bring relief.
