Pale and Languid.

The Condition of Very Many Young Girls in Canada.

They are Subject to Headaches, Heart Trouble, and an Indisposition to Exercise—Parents Should Act Promptly in Such Cases.

Miss Alma Gauthier, daughter of Mr. Adolphe Gauthier, proprietor of a well known hotel at Three Rivers, Que., enjoys a wide popularity among her young friends, and they have recently had occasion to rejoice at her restoration to health after a serious illness. When a reporter called to ascertain the facts of the case Miss Gauthier was out of the city on visit, but her father very gladly consented to give the story of her cure. He said: "I believe that had it not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, my daughter Alma might now have been in her grave, and I would be ungrateful indeed if I did not at all times say a kind word in favor of the medicine that restored her to health. My daughter's health first began to give way several years ago. At first the trouble did not appear to be serious, and we thought she would soon regain her accustomed health. As time went on, however, this proved not to be the case. She grew weaker, was troubled with headaches, poor appetite, dizziness and a feeling of almost constant anguish. She was treated by a good doctor, but still there was no improvement. She seemed to be gradually fading away. If she walked up stairs she would have to stop several times to rest on the way. She lost all her color and her face was as white as chalk. Her trouble was clearly that which afflicts so many young women entering womanhood; and we feared it would develop into consumption. One day a friend of the family urged her to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and she consented, and procured a couple of boxes. Before they were quite gone there was a slight improvement in her appetite and we looked upon this as a hopeful sign. Another half dozen boxes were procured and under their use she day by day acquired new strength and new interest in life. She is now as healthy a girl as there is in Three Rivers, with every trace of her pallor and languor gone. This is entirely due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I am rejoiced to be able to say so publicly."

The case of Miss Gauthier certainly carries with it a lesson to other parents, whose daughters may be pale, languid, easily tired, or subject to headaches, or the other distressing symptoms that mark the onward progress of anemia. In cases of this kind Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will give more certain and speedy results than any other medicine. They act promptly and directly, making new, rich red blood, and strengthening the nerves, and correct all the irregularities incident to this critical period.

Sold at all dealers or sent post paid at 50c a box or 6 boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont. Do not be persuaded to take some substitute.

God Save the Queen.

"One of the most successful presentations ever produced in the Maple City," was the universal verdict of the crowded Opera House at the Grand Patriotic Concert last evening.

The advance sale of reserved seats bespoke an immense house, but long before the commencement of the program every seat was filled and many ladies, who unfortunately had not secured reserved coupons, had to avail themselves of seats in the top gallery.

The program was throughout an excellent one and was most heartily enjoyed. It was under the musical direction of E. J. Forsythe, organist and choirmaster of St. Patrick's Church, whom a large number of the credit for the successful performance is due. As chairman of the musical committee Mr. Forsythe mapped out the entire program and has spent much time in training the choruses and the selection of the soloists, and his well earned many eulogies extended to him. In the chorus work Mr. Forsythe found an able lieutenant in Dr. L. C. DeCov, conductor of the orchestra, who orchestrated all the music and selected and trained the musicians. Too much praise cannot be accorded Miss Nellie Rhody, the accomplished pianist, who played all the accompaniments with exquisite taste and skill.

Of the officers of the evening none deserve higher eulogy than Jas. Scott Gray, the master of ceremonies, who performed the arduous duties of stage manager in a most capable and energetic manner. Another gentleman who contributed much was Ivor E. Brock, who did all the much admired decorating and draping.

But the gentleman to whom the concert in itself, its success and hearty welcome of patriotism inspired, are all due, was Major J. B. Rankin, the energetic and enthusiastic organizer and chairman of the general committee. From the inception of the movement until its successful culmination Major Rankin has been the life and moving spirit in the enterprise. No sacrifice of time, effort or money to Major Rankin was too great and he made many a personal sacrifice and to his excellence as an organizer can be ascribed the unequalled success of the undertaking. Patriots of the Maple City are under a lasting debt of gratitude to this gentleman.

THE DECORATIONS

of the opera house, which was brilliantly on feet, were much admired. The top gallery was gracefully draped in red and gold, the balcony in blue and gold and chorus stage sitting in white and gold. The boxes were draped in red and white and blue, while over the stage was suspended an admirable portrait of her majesty, draped with Union Jacks and bunting.

Of the program itself too much cannot be said. The choruses were hearty, strong, well balanced and excellently blended. Harry Horstead's rendition of the tenor solo in the Maple Leaf was excellent and much appreciated. Wm. H. Brackin, the popular young vocalist, made his first appearance at the Grand and established himself as a Maple City patron by a magnificent rendition of the baritone obligato in Kipling's Recessional, which was greeted with round upon round of applause. J. G. Mullen rendered in a most spirited and acceptable manner the splendid solo in Soldiers of the Queen and received a very liberal share of the honors.

The selections of the City Band, conducted by H. C. Philp, and the Excelsior Band, conductor G. Sauerbrenn, were very appropriate and heartily received. The bands also rendered excellent music at the front of the theatre prior to the commencement of the program.

The addresses of Major Smith and ex-Warden Arthur Laverton touched the patriotic chord and were enthusiastically received.

OUTSIDE CONTRIBUTORS.

Another most enjoyable feature was the contributions to the program by the outside talent, all of which were most highly appreciated. They included an admirable selection from the Benheim quartette, splendid vocal solos by Dr. C. B. Oliver, of Merlin, and Alex. McPherson, of Benheim, and the excellent elocutionary presentation of Miss Lydia Kathleen Duffus, of Thamesville.

All the local soloists, vocal and instrumental, and the elocutionists were at their best, and are deserving of special mention individually. Their selections were chosen with great taste and skill and admirably rendered.

The ladies quartette and male quartette and octette were exceedingly enjoyable and were all honored with appreciation.

The Naval Brigade, in "Fun and Fight" was the original idea of Gen. Ivor E. Brock, and capably carried out by Gunners Harry Wemp, Frank Dennis, Tom Baxter and Charlie Holmes, who managed a miniature cannon and on the call of Buglar Walter Peck a double discharge from the instrument of war sent Union Jacks flying through the audience, amid the cheers of the little gunners. This was one of the most delightful features of the evening, and was entirely Mr. Brock's idea.

The presentation of the veterans' medals was made by Lieut.-Col. Holmes, D. O. C. M. D. No. 1, amid much applause. In addressing the audience, Col. Holmes prophesied that ere long Chatham and Kent would have a battalion of their own. (Applause.)

At the conclusion of the performance and after the departure of the audience Major Rankin in a brief address thanked the choruses, soloists, elocutionists and others who assisted in the presentation. The large chorus responded with three hearty cheers for Major Rankin and Musical Director Forsythe.

THE ORCHESTRA.

Violins—Wm. Brackin, Jno. Blythe, Charles Robinson, Ray Peck, Blake Arnold, Ed. Piggott, Robt. Clements, Frank Trotter.

Flutes—J. W. Wilson, Ed. Coleman. Double Bass—Casper Schwemler.

Rice Drum—Geo. Webster. Pianist—Miss Nellie Rhody.

Conductor—Dr. L. C. DeCov.

EXPRESSION OF THANKS.

Owing to the unavoidable delay and moving occasioned in the presentation of the medals Major J. B. Rankin did not take opportunity last evening to express the gratitude of the management to those who contributed so generously to the enterprise. He desires to extend grateful acknowledgments to:

Re. A. McVeen, manager of the Opera House, for the free use of the building.

S. Stephenson, proprietor of The Planet, for all the printing, done gratis.

The S. H. Lumber Co., for free use of lumber and chairs.

Cuckey and Pritchard for erecting the stage platform free of charge.

Thos. Stone & Son for the free use of all material for decorating purposes.

Ivor E. Brock for decorating the stage and building up the stage.

City newspapers for advertising announcements.

Jas. Scott Gray, stage manager, for three days selling tickets.

W. W. Seane for posting bills, and E. J. Forsythe, musical director, and members of chorus and quartettes, soloists, violinists, elocutionists, mandolin club, orchestra, two bands, the public generally for patronage, and all others who assisted in making the concert a success and contributing to the fund.

Major Rankin will make a public financial statement as soon as all returns are in, and the money will be applied according to the personal wish of the patrons.

MR. PARDO'S THOUGHTFULNESS.

During the presentation Major J. B. Rankin received the following telegram from T. L. Pardo, M. P. P., Toronto: "Impossible to attend concert. Have mailed cheque for ten dollars to Patriotic Fund. T. L. PARDO."

GOD BLESS OUR MEN.

God save our men and arms, Shield from all dire alarms, God save our men.

Facing the awful fall, Of the foe's shell and ball, Yet may they carry all, God save our men.

God save our men in front, Bearing the battle's brunt, God save our men. Bless those who bring us the news, Bless those who bring us the news, Waiting to aid and cheer, God bless our men.

Help them to bear reverse, Guide them in every course, God Save our men. And when this strife is done, Peace be to every gun, We'll sing with voices one, God bless our men.

OUR OWN CANADA

And its Relation to the Mother Land Past and Present.

Very interesting Address by Matthew Wilson, O. C., at the Macaulay Club Banquet.

The following is the address in full Matthew Wilson, O. C., delivered at the annual banquet of the Macaulay Club Thursday night:—

I thank you for the reception of this toast and the honor you have done me by the invitation to reply. The club, the theme, the occasion and the late events in Africa unite here to make every Canadian, while sore at heart, proud of Canada. The war, though necessary it may be, though justified in our Maker's sight, is nevertheless a horrid affliction and presents an awful undertaking for our citizens abroad.

The bullet comes, and there A deatleat heart you see And God alone to-night knows where The vacant place may be.

While the home is peaceful and prosperous the young children live in filial subjection with now and then a little irritability and resentment when the proverbial slipper is applied to emphasize with force an explanation that the child should walk in the light of his parent's wisdom. The value of the parent's protection and counsel, the debt of gratitude from the son to the mother are never thought of. The power of the parent over the family or others may be noticed, but the combined strength of the parent and child is never brought into play nor even considered.

As time passes on, however, and the child comes to maturity of judgment and body he begins to look with admiration upon the past wisdom and ease which have covered his early life; and instead of finding fault and fighting against the parent's authority the child seeks to avail himself of the good name and honorable heritage to which he is heir—to follow the good example that has been set and to sing at every opportunity the praises of the fond mother at whose knees he had knelt and whose kisses had healed his many wounds.

This is a relationship between parent and child to be earnestly sought and devoutly desired.

Note that the mother of honor and honest pride, the one of gentle encouragement to noble aspirations, can ever fill her son with that admiration and love which beget the reciprocal devotion and praise. And at the same time none but the worthy son of the worthy parent is capable of appreciating the mother's anxious tears and tireless care for his success.

We might well ask if these combined circumstances do not represent human home life in its perfection. Noble and inspiring as that state is, I think not. Perfection is to be found a little further on, when in strength and judgment, in practice and experience the child in his turn has settled his character and shown his wisdom, and has become the adviser and protector of the parent from whom he previously received instructions—when their interest and love have become blended together and paid by common affliction—when parent and child stand side by side to offer a common thanksgiving or to mourn a common loss.

WITH NATIONS AS CHILDREN.

Just so it is with a mother nation if that same honor, that same love and pride, that same loving care and gentle encouragement to noble aspirations are imparted to her colonies and tenderly but unceasingly impressed upon her children.

Such has been the childhood and growth of our great colony, Canada, and I think I may add—to the admiration and proud satisfaction of our mother land, Even the older ones here can look back far enough to see some of the childish irritations and some of the restraints or limitations, but these things happily ended soon after the amalgamation of the provinces into one dominion. The great responsibilities and ventured upon vast undertakings which challenged the admiration of the world.

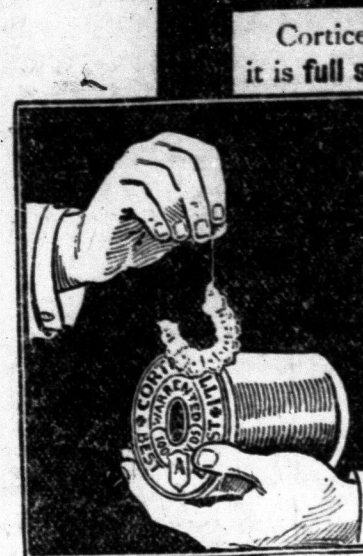

And just as we grew in strength and wisdom our mother fondly endeavored our authority; and in the past 20 years of mature judgment and practical experience we have learned to look back with flash lights upon our parent's judgment and patience; while she drew herself up and standing proud amongst the matron nations of the universe, pointed to us as a result of her principles of government, and looking around with a quently smile, defied them all to show an offspring equal to hers. We pointed to her and her dominions, upon which she never set; to her government, which has grown and developed and strengthened like the oak; to her influence for good upon the world; and to her army and navy which nothing could withstand.

All is now changed. The mature child of the past 20 years is the strong partner of to-day, and the interests of the parent and offspring are being now welded together in one whole by the biting fire of deadly weapons and the heavy blows of war. No longer shall we point to Great Britain and speak of her armies and her strength. It is now our armies and our strength.

We shall participate her joys and help to bear her sorrows; and the fine metal of which Canada is composed will be but purified by the heat of many trials. In future the tears that trickle from her cheek will fall upon our hands and we shall rise and exclaim as the Jews of old swore:—O, Jerusalem, Jerusalem, in the hour that we forget thee, may in God's book of the just our souls be forgotten.

OUR NATIONAL POSITION.

But I linger too long in this time of war to show our astonishing advancement and high position in that theatre in which nations play. Let us look at our material position. We are no longer mere immigrants and set-

THE SMITHS MIXED UP.

In the despatch to the Toronto Globe Wednesday the number of killed given was nineteen, but the list shows that Pte. Patrick McCreary, of the 76th Battalion, Sussex, N. B., in the list was not killed. R. Smith, of London, was also reported killed, but the official list gives J. Smith, who was a member of "B" Company, but he comes from the 22nd (Oxford) Rifles, Woodstock, and was reported wounded in the first list. He belonged to Thamesford, and when the people there heard at first he was wounded they subscribed $25 and sent it to him.
