A THRILLING RESCUE

OUT OF THE VERY JAWS OF DEATH WAS HE SNATCHED.

An Old Whaleman's Exciting Story of a Race For Life That Made His Hair Turn Gray and Caused Him to Quit the Business.

"It was in 1875," said the old sea capwhaler Rivenoak looking for blubber in the south Atlantic, with a seat in the second mate's whaleboat. We had had the boats ready to lower and the mastheads manned for over three weeks be-fore we sighted grease, and when the cry, "There she blows!" rang out from the fore skysail yard the old man went wild with delight. 'Sperm whale sure!' he bawled. 'Down from aloft, every one! Stand by to lower!' We got the boats off in good shape, and our boat took the lead, which we held till we came up with the whale. The boat header let gc his harpoon, sending it out of sight into the side of the monster, which started off at a rate of speed that made the boat hum through the water. She kept this up for 20 minutes, and we soon lost sight of the Rivenoak and the other boats. And then, as though tiring of pulling us along, she suddenly showed flukes and began to make for the bottom like a load of pig lead. The rope, one end of which was attached to the harpoon in the whale's back, ran out of the boat so fast that it looked like a thread of blue smoke.

"'Cut that rope if it fouls,' cried the mate, tossing me a hatchet, 'and lose no time about it! If you don't, God help us! The beast is going to sound 100 athoms, sure!"
"I had just leaned forward to pick up the implement when there was a sudden jerk, a crashing, whirring sound, and I knew that the rope had fouled. The next minute I felt myself drawn down through the ocean like a shot from a gun. I caught a brief glimpse of the longboat flashing through the water, a number of struggling forms, and then I began to come up. It seemed ages before I reached the surface and those blue skies never seemed so welcome before. Only one of my comrades succeeded in getting out of the boat, and he was floating about on a long plank which had been stored in the bottom of the boat for just such a purpose. I swam up and caught hold of the other end of it. Luckily the water was calm and the plank kept our heads well out of water. Not a sign of out ship or small boats did we see, however, and the thought came over me that we might just as well have been pulled to the bottom by the whale as to die by inches. The hours wore on, however, and we began to grow weak and it got to be a question of how much longer we could hold out.

"Just as we were about to despair of ever being rescued, my companion, Bill Royce, gave a shout of joy and pointed out over the ocean toward a big steam frigate which was pointing in our direction. We were quite sure she saw us as we must have been plainly marked against the angry colors of the sunset. The ves-sel looked like a man-of-war, for her spars were clean cut and rakish and we caught the glint of polished brass work. The smoke was pouring out of her fun nel and in a few minutes she was within quarter of a mile of us. I remarked to Royce that we were very lucky, and rereiving no reply I turned to look at him.

"I have never seen such a look in a man's face before nor since. It was as white as a sheet, his eyes seemed to bulge out of his head and his teeth rattled together with castanets. He caught my look and in reply pointed off in the direction opposite to that from which the

"I saw but one shark. He was quite distance off and was making for us in a leisurely way. The men on the warship saw it too and realized our danger. A single dull boom was heard, and a solid shot struck about 50 feet to one side of the man eater, which paid no attention to the compliment, but continued to make for us with a slightly increased speed. Behind him, about 30 feet in the rear, was another shark. Both were quite near now. So was the warship.
"We could hear the crew manning the davits and falls; we could hear the splash as the small boat took to the water. Again the gun boomed from the warship, but this time the shot went clear over the sharks and struck the water a quarter of a mile beyond. Nearer and nearer came the first shark, and we now saw that the small boat could not reach us in time.

"The beast made straight for Royce, who screamed with terror. Over on his back turned the shark, with his cavernous mouth open and his long, cruel teeth reeking with froth. The boat was still reeking with froth. The boat was still 20 yards off. Royce in sheer terror let go his hold on the plank and tried to swim for it. The next instant the shark was upon him. I closed my eyes, heard a shrick from Royce, and when I looked the water was stained with blood, but Royce was gone. It was my turn now. The second shark was almost upon me, and I caught a glimpse of his little swinish eyes as he turned over on his back. The yards of the warship were thronged, and nothing could be heard but the splash of the approaching boat. I was paralyzed. I could not have left the plank to lyzed. I could not have left the plank to save my soul. Nearer came the shark, and again I shut my eyes. I could even hear the snuffling of the beast, and then came the clear, cool command: 'Steady, men! Aim! Fire!' A volley of musketry awoke the stillness, and then I lost consciousness. When I came to, I was on the deck of the United States ship—

The jackies in the rowboat had shot the shark when it was within three feet of me.

Since then, gentlemen, I have never been in a whaler, and I bear an everlasting grudge against sharks, not only because of my close call, but because it made my hair turn as white as you now see it, which was not becoming to a boy of 25."

OPPOSED TO BALL VALVES an Old Detective Tells How One Them Figured In an Escape.

"I never had but one prisoner escape from me," said an old ráilroad detective, from Bad to Worse.

"and that was under very peculiar cir-cumstances. In 1882, when I was work-ing for the Atchison, Topel:a and Santa Be road, I captured a fellow named Jim Lake, who was wanted for robbing freight cars. I got him near Trinidad, Colo., and after securing the requ papers started east with him for Kansas City. Lake was a little, consumptive chap, as frail as a woman, and I didn't consider it necessary to even put the handcuffs on him. With one twist I could have broken him in two. Besides,

I didn't care to cause him needless hu-miliation by exhibiting him before the other passengers in the role of a prisoner, so we simply sat side by side, like two fellow tourists, and nobody in the cars had any idea he was under arrest. "Naturally we did a good deal of talk-ing, and at about dusk of the first evening out Lake turned the conversation to curious mechanical contrivances and described several remarkable machines he had seen. He had been a skilled engihad seen. He had been a skilled engineer earlier in life, and, being a good talker, soon got me deeply interested. Among other things he told me about an airpump with a singular ball valve. 'The ball lies in a socket,' he said, 'and the greater the air pressure behind it the tighter it stick.' To illustrate, he twisted as all envelope into a cone and drontighter it stick.' To illustrate, he twisted an old envelope into a cone and dropped a paper wad into the mouth. 'Now, when I blow,' he continued, 'you'll see that the wad stays right where it is.' Like a fool, I stared at the thing, and he blew violently into the little end. At the same instant I felt as if a raging furnace had suddenly belched its flames right into my face. I couldn't see, I couldn't see, I couldn't breathe; for a moment or two I couldn't breathe; for a moment or two I couldn't even move. My throat and nostrils were on fire and I felt sure my eyes had been burned literally out of their had been burned literally out of their sockets. "What had happened was simply this: The envelope was full of red pepper and I had received the charge, point blank, at about a six inch range. While I was gasping the scoundrel ran to the other end of the car. 'My friend has a fit!' he shouted. 'I'm going after water!' Of course, he jumped off, and that was the last of him. He was never caught. One day shortly after a man tried to sell me a lawn sprinkler. 'It has a patent ball valve,' he said. 'I don't want it,' I replied'.'

TIPPING IN GERMANY. Curious Readiness of the People to Give Small Fees. The question of giving gratuities to waiters and servants is as much a vexed one in this country as it is on your side of the channel. Even your manservant or maid expects in Germany a "tip" from your guests after they have dined or lunched with you, and it constantly hap pens that on engaging a servant you are asked: "How about tips? Can I expect nuch from this source, and may I keep all I get, or have I to share the tips with other servants?" I have even known mistresses hold out as an inducement to servants the fact that they entertain a good deal, whereby the wages are con siderably supplemented by gratuities from guests. One very curious feature about German everyday life is the readiness of people to give a "trinkgeld," the equivapeople to give a "trinkgelo," the equiva-lent of the French "pourboire," under which name the donation is more fa-miliar to English ears. The feature is curious, because the Teuton is by nature thrifty, and many of them are more close than thrifty. And yet the same per son who will expect a hard working teacher of languages to give lessons at from sixpence to 1 shilling an hour will often be seen to bestow a groschen on the shop servant who has brought a parcel to his house or a halfpenny on the tramway conductor for handing him his penny ticket. The postal officials who pay the money orders and bring the money to your house are entitled to charge a halfpenny for doing so, but look very sour if you do not add an-other halfpenny of your own accord. Small "tips" all around are de rigueur in German daily life.

It is always understood that the porter and the boots at a hotel may expect a gratuity from the guests. Now, the porter does little more for you than hand you your key and take off his hat to you as you enter and leave your hostelry, and in small towns he summons the boots at your departure by vigorously ringing the bell, and for these amenities he is rewarded in a sort of geometrical procession. The boots really does render servsion. The boots really does render services; he blacks your boots and brushes your clothes and is ready to assist you to pack and sits on your portmanteau for you if need be when you want to lock it. Notwithstanding this it often happens that he comes off second or third best in # the way of rewards.

Fishing For an Object. "After I had watched a colored man fishing in a South Carolina brickyard pond for 40 minutes without pulling up his hook," said the traveler, "I asked him if he thought there were any fish there to be caught."

"'No, sah, I reckon not,' he replied. "'But you seem to be fishing." "But perhaps you are not fishing for fish. "'No. sah.' "I waited ten minutes for him to ex-plain, but as he did not I finally asked him what particular object he had in "'De objick, sah,' he repeated withou taking his eyes off the pond or moving the pole; 'de objick of my fishin fur fish whar dere haln't any is to let de ole woman see dat I hain't got no time to pick up de hoe and work in de truck patch."

The Soft Hat,

Louis Kossuth introduced the soft hat into America. He came here in exils wearing one with a black ostrich feather trimmed jauntily on the side, and we immediately adopted it, minus the plume, It became the fashionable head cover-It became the fashionable head covering and has remained so ever since in the southern and western states. The army campaign hat and the Rough Rider hat had their origin in a Tyrolean hat that was brought here by some American traveler. The Alpine hat comes, as its name suggests, from the country of the Alps and is purely Tyrolean.—

Gave Up Hope. Friend Recom-mends CUTICURA. Change in One Night. Cured One Month.

I was troubled with eczema on the face for five months, during which time I was in care of physicians. My face was in such a condition that I could not go out. It was going from bad to worse and I gave up all hope, when a friend of mine highly recommended CUTICURA REMEDIES. The first night after I washed my face with CUTICURA SOAF and used CUTICURA (oithment) and CUTICURA REMOUVERT it changed wonderfully, and continuing the treatment it removed all scales and scabs. From that day I was able to go out, and in a month my face was able to go out, and in a month my face was as clean as ever. THOMAS J. SOTH, July 23, 1808. 212 Stagg St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE POWER OF BEAUTY.

Burglar Who Preferred a Kiss to Keep ing the Swag He Had Gathered.

"I fancy," said a hardsome woman of fifty or more, "that there is as much truth as poetry in what has been said and is being said about the power of woman's beauty. Of course, it is supposed that only poets know anything about the matter; but I can bear testimony of a different sort, and it is from my own experience.
When I was a girl of twenty I was really very pretty and I had no end of gay gallants dancing attendance on me all the time, which was some sign of the truth of my statement, for I was neither very rich nor very bright. Just an ordinary, real pretty girl, that was all. But the power was there, though I was not conscious of Its strength until after my experience, "I lived in a Southern city of 25,000 people, and one night I attended a dance a half-dozen blocks from my home, and did not get back until 1 o'clock in the morning, my escort being the gentleman who is now my hus and. He proposed to me that night, and when I came into the house fancy I must have been prettier than ever was before, for I never was so happy. The house was still, for the only people in it, except two old ser vants away back in the ell, were my father and mother, who had gone to bed hours before. I slipped upstairs to my room as quietly as a mouse and turning up the gas I was confronted by a burglar who pointed a pistol at me and told me not to make any noise or he would kill me. I didn't faint, because I was so happy that it in-spired me, I suppose, and I stood still, looking at him. He looked at me, too, dressed in my best gown and shining with a lot of jewels, for our family had some fine diamonds and other things of ornament that had descended to me, and like most Southern girls I liked to wear them, even when it was not in the best taste.

"'I wouldn't hurt as pretty a girl as you are for the world,' he said with a bow, 'but I've got to have the shiners, so just take them off and hand them over, while I pick up what I can find lying around loose.' "With trembling fingers I took off my handsome jewels while he gathered up all he could find on my dressing case, and put them in his pocket, keep-ing the pistol pointed at me. He was not a bad looking man, and as I put out my hand to him with the jewelry in it, I smiled at him, as frightened as was, and asked him if he wouldn't go right away. But he did not take the jewelry, and he did not go away. He simply stared at me in undisguised admiration, and took out of his pocket the trinkets he had gathered from the dressing case.

"'If you will excuse me, miss, for mpertinence,' he said. 'I'll say to you that you are the prettiest girl I ever saw in my life, and I always did admire pretty girls. I hate to rob you like this, and if you will let me kiss you, just on your cheek where it is pinkest, I'll leave everything else and take only the remembrance of that as a reward for this night's job.

"This time I did almost faint, but I tried to be strong, and succeeded so well that I kept my wits. It was something dreadful to be kissed by a burglar, but he was so respectful, and really did admire me, and besides I was saving several thousand dollars worth of jewels, so I didn't say a word but just turned my cheek toward him. He took off his cap, bert forward ness and got about well by the use of a cane. In ten days was nearly well. I can sincerely recommend it as the best Liniment that I know of in use. I will relieve you of my presence which I assure you would never have occurred had I known as much as I know now.

"I thought I never could do it, but I did, and I stood in the door till he disappeared around the corner; then I collapsed utterly, and the night watchman found me there fifteen or twenty minutes afterward, and roused the house. By the time I knew enough to tell anything the burglar was far, far away. The story got into the papers, of course, and in a week or two I received a note of regret from my burglar, postmarked Cincinnati, which was the only clue we ever had of him. But the kissing part of the story was not printed. I kept that to myself, and the first person to whom I told it was my husband, and he was gallant enough to say that the burglar had got the better part of the bargain."

A Maid Who Fought for Liberty. "The Battle of Bunker Hill fired Deborah Sampson's patriotism and brought to her the resolution to fight n the Continental Army until liberty was secured," writes Mabel Percy Haskell, in the Ladies' Home Journal, of "The Gir! Who Fought in the Revolution." "She revealed her purposition, but with the small sum of money she had laid by from the sale of her chickens she purchased the wool to make the cloth for her suit, weaving it herself and making the garments in secret. She informed her employer just prior to leaving that she was going to seek employment in Boston, and set off with her clothes in a parcel without creating any suspicions as to her plan. Deborah changed her garments in the woods, and came forth a man to all appearances and made her way to Taunton, and thence to Billingham, where she intmediately enlisted in a recruiting party under the name of 'Robert Shurtleff,' the small party of recruits going immediately to Worcester to join the company of Captain Thayer. A deep interest was taken by the Captain in Robert Shurtleff, the earnestness and beauty of the youth appealing strongly to him, and a home was given the young recruit in the officer's own family. Here Deborah Sampson experi-enced her first sensations at playing the part of a man, for a young lady visiting Captain Thayer's family fell deeply in love with the handsome young soldier."
