Very few knew the many warm friends the late W. E. Hamilton had among the leading citizens of Chatham. The late editor of the Market Guide was always a gentleman and "e'er his failings leaned to virtue's side," and it is no wonder that many mourn his sudden departure. N. H. Stevens was among the number and he was always a warm friend of the dead man of letters. In the fall, Mr. Stevens always saw that the aged editor had warm underclothes and the overcoat Mr. Hamilton was wearing overcoat Mr. Hamilton was wearing at the time of his death was a present from his friend the President of the Canada Flour Mills Co. His Honor Judge Bell and Sheriff Gemmill were also among the number of those who made life brighter for the late editor of the Market Guide.

W. H. TAYLOR,

LIFE GUARDS. The Life Guards are two regiments of cavalry forming part of the British household troops. They are gallant soldiers, and every loyal British hear is proud of them. Not only the king's household, but yours, ours, every-body's should have its life guards. I could scarcely use them to stand or walk upon. I left the hospital, went home and tried a number of liniments; none did me any good. I left the hospital when the greatest foes of life, diseases, find allies in the very elements, and the greatest foes of life, diseases, find allies in the very elements, and the greatest foes of life, diseases, find allies in the very elements, and the greatest foes of life, diseases, find allies in the very elements, and the greatest foes of life, diseases, find allies in the very elements, and the greatest foes of life, diseases, and the greatest foes of life, diseases was then recommended to try as colds, influenza, catarrh, the grip Kelpion; and from the first applica-tion of Kelpion the pain and stiffness month of March. The best way that ceased, and by the free use of it, we know of to guard against these well rubbed in I was enabled in diseases is to strengthen the system with Hood's Sarsaparilla-the greatand suffered comparatively no pain when necessary, and would not be without it in my would not be without it in my with Hood's Sarsaparina—the greatest of all life guards. It removes the conditions in which these diseases make their most successful attack, gives vigor and tone to all the vital organs and functions, and imparts a genial warmth to the blood. Remember the weaker the system the great er the exposure to disease. Sarsaparilla makes the system strong.
