Tis evenin's calm and peace hour When sha lders softly creep, An I every little smelly flower flas bowed its head in sleep; Waen taty bugs and stingin' bees Are dreamin' ov their sins, An I neath the blankets playful fleas Are tickling people's shins.

Now me and my dear partner sit As solid as two rocks, He grabbin' ov me round the waist, A darnin' ov his socks; And oh! what blissful reclin's squirm And wriggle in my breast.

While Joseph's heart for me beats warm Beneath his home-made vest. And while in sweet content I sit From care and sorrow free My thoughts to bygone days do flit The oid farm house I see once more, Where hop vines creep and cling,

The honey-suckles 'round the door Where bumble bees do sing. The holly hawks and poppies gay, The scented mignonette.

The medder with its fragrant hay

Where Joe and I first met: The barn-yard where the the chicks and hen Are scatterin' up the ground, The rosster crowin' on the fence

The mooly cow with sleepy eyes Achewin' ov her gum, Her tail awiskin' of the flics Which round her buz and hum, Here's me and Joe upon the cart. A swingin' ov our feet,

Joe's sayin suthin' bout his heart And talks most awful sweet, And I inside my sunto met Agigglin' and ablushin'. Say, "No Joe, I can't just yet, I wish you'd stop yer gushin'."

But Joe he grabs me 'round the neck, My hand he does imprison, And swears his heart will surely break If I don't promise to be his'n Just then I hear my daddy shout (While clingin' through the bars)
"Hello! what are you two about?"

Says Joe, "We'er playin' cars!" You'd orter seen me scoot and run Right through them hens and chickens, Poutlery flyin' round like fun

And screechin' like the dickens. "Eh! What dy'e say ?" I rub my head And wake up what a shock!
Olegal," says he, "I'm off to bed, My fallin' sock I quickly catch

And finish all my stitches.
Then lay it down and start to patch My pardner's Sunday breeches.

Her Majesty, being intent on her work, took little notice of the flock, and merely moved a little nearer the side of the road. A bey in charge of the sheep shouted at the top of a stanthe sheep shouted at the top of a sten-torian voice, 'Stan' oot 'o the road, 'oman, and lat the sheep gas by!' Her the sheep shouted at the top of a stentorian voice, 'Stan' out 'o the road, 'oman, and lat the sheep gase by!' Her Majesty not moying out of the way juites of fast as the sheepherd, he again shouted, 'Fst are ye standin' there for ? Gang out o' that, at lat the sheep pass!' One of Her Majesty's attendanta, who had been at a distance, on hearing his royal mistrees thus radely assailed, wont up to the shepherd; and thus addressed him, 'Do you know who it is you have been speaking so rudely to, boy?' 'Na—I naither ken nor care; but, be she fa' she likes, she sudna be i' the sheep's road.' 'That's the Queen,' said the official. The boy looked astonished, and after recovering his senses, said, with great simplicity, 'The Queen! Od, fat way disna she pit on claes that fouk can ken her?'
